SHAMROCK'S BOW DENTED SATURDAY; LAST RACE TODAY

High Seas Endangered Challenger, Hence Her Willingness to Wait Until Today.

BOTH CRAFT TAKE SPINS

Windward and Leeward Course or the Reverse to be Sailed, According to Weather.

RESOLUTE IN GOOD TRIM

Was Not Taken to Dry Dock—Applegate Hears from Indignant Compatriots.

Moderate Winds, Northwest and North, for Today's Race

Moderate northwest and north winds, with fair weather, was the Weather Bureau's forecast last night for the yacht race today.

Barring excessive breezes or calms the final race between Resolute and Shamrock IV. will be held today, starting from off the Ambrose Light vessel at noon, and from there going over a windward and leeward course of fifteen miles to a leg, or thirty miles all told.

A windward and leeward course, or the reverse, is one which, according to the experts, should favor the American defender of America's Cup, but the Race Committee had nothing to do with the kind of course to be sailed, as that is one of the prearranged details.

Local conditions at the Hook suggested that there would be a good breeze, probably from west to north, today, and that would mean in case of the former that the Race Committee would have to send the racers on a leeward leg first, to off Jones's Inlet, beyond Long Beach, and then back on the windward leg to the Ambrose Light vessel, or else establish the starting line much further to the eastward, or in the case of a northerly breeze, the line would have to be established well to the southward to give the yachts the weather leg first, but it is hardly believed that the committee would take the yachts off Long Beach or Long Branch to start them for the sake of getting the weather leg first.

Reports received Saturday night to the effect that the Resolute was to be hauled out at the Staten Island Shipbuilding plant yesterday for a general overhauling proved to be incorrect, as the white American sloop indulged in a brief spin in Sandy Hook Bay yesterday morning and remained at her moorings during the rest of the day, while the Shamrock was given a spin in the afternoon.

Shamrock's Weak Bow.

It was the fear that the bulging bow of the Shamrock IV. could not resist the battering of the heavy seas Saturday which caused Captain William P. Burton and his advisers on board to acquiesce in a postponement of the race until today.

That admission was made yesterday on board the Killarney, tender of the challenger for the America's Cup, as she lay between the Shamrock IV. and the 23-meter Shamrock on the Horseshoe inside Sandy Hook.

It was admitted that, because of her flat bow, the Resolute was less likely to experience trouble at the waterline, but it was declared that neither craft could have withstood the pressure of the wind which swept past Ambrose Lightship at noon Saturday when the defender and challenger appeared for the start of the fifth race.

"Neither craft is built for racing under conditions such as prevailed Saturday at the starting line," said Colonel Duncan Neill, Sir Thomas's personal representative. "The wind would have torn the sails to shreds, even if the masts withstood its pressure. That fact was recognized by Captain Burton of the Shamrock, and I assume that is what actuated Captain Adams of the Resolute to agree to a postponement.

"Reports were published that the postponement followed a conference I had with Sir Thomas. There is no truth in such reports. Captain Burton had acquiesced to a postponement before I left the Shamrock in a launch to call on Sir Thomas on the Victoria. The purpose of my visit to Sir Thomas was merely to take to him the daily accumulation of mail and telegrams received on the Killarney for him. I informed him at the same time why Captain Burton had agreed to the postponement and later Captain Burton visited the Victoria to inform Sir Thomas of the dangers which would have attended any attempt to race."

Colonel Neill said that everything was in readiness for today's contest with the defender. He said that the crew of the challenger during the day had spread her sails on deck to dry and stretch them and that the silk-finish light canvas of the Shamrock IV. is as fit for sailing as could be expected.

Shamrock's Bow Dented.

Colonel Neill would not discuss the fears of Captain Burton and his advisers that the hull of the Shamrock IV. could not withstand the rough seas over the windward and leeward course Saturday.

From another source it was learned, however, that soon after the challenger left her moorings buoy near the south

Announce Pledges to Ratify Suffrage in Tennessee

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 25.—Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, announced here tonight that sufficient pledges had been obtained by her organization and other suffrage leagues to insure ratification of the Federal suffrage amendment by the special session of the Tennessee Legislature, which Governor Roberts has announced he will call for Aug. 9.

NATIONAL INCOME EXCEEDS EXPENSE

Last Fiscal Year Shows Surplus Receipts for First Time in Three Years.

DEBT CUT $1,185,184,692

Secretary Houston Predicts 'Important Further Reduction' in Next Six Months.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—In a statement issued today, David F. Houston, Secretary of the Treasury, takes a rather optimistic view of the national finances. While there was an apparent deficit in the operations of the Treasury for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1920, Secretary Houston points out that through certain fiscal transactions a surplus of $291,221,547 was realized for that period. This, it is stated, is the first time in three years that the Government's income has exceeded its expenditures.

The national debt, Mr. Houston explains, reached its peak on Aug. 31, 1919. Since that time there has been a reduction, to June 30, 1920, of $2,297,380,180. On July 20, 1920, a further reduction of about $35,000,000 was shown, leaving the gross debt $24,264,309,821.

Secretary Houston calls attention to his letter of June 10, 1920, addressed to banks and trust companies, in which he said that the completed operations of the fiscal year would show little, if any, current deficit. "The results show," he remarked, "that the Treasury's expectations have been realized."

In his statement today Mr. Houston announces that further issues of Treasury certificates will be offered from time to time to provide for the current requirements of the Government and to meet maturities of Treasury certificates now outstanding. The amount of these issues will depend, he says, on the extent of the burdens imposed on the Treasury by the Transportation act, including particularly the liability on the Government guarantee to the railroads, which is yet unascertained.

Expects Further Reduction.

While there may be temporary increases in both gross and floating debt, Mr. Houston expects that, barring additional burdens imposed by legislation, there will be an important further reduction in the quarters ending March 31 and June 30, 1921. Secretary Houston's statement reads:

"My letter of June 10, 1920, to banks and trust companies, in connection with the offering of Treasury certificates of indebtedness dated June 15, called attention to the fact that Treasury certificates to the amount of nearly $1,000,000,000 would mature on or before June 15, and stated, first, that the completed operations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, should show little, if any, current deficit, and second, that both gross debt and floating debt would be further greatly reduced by the operations incident to the handling of the Treasury certificate maturities from June 15 to July 15. The results show that the Treasury's expectations have been realized.

"On the basis of daily Treasury statements the total ordinary receipts for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1920, amounted to $6,694,565,388.88, and current ordinary disbursements amounted to $6,766,444,461.09, leaving a net current deficit (excess of disbursements over ordinary receipts) of only $71,879,072.21 for the fiscal year 1920, the first full fiscal year after hostilities ceased. After taking into account the special deposit of the War Finance Corporation, resulting from its redemption of United States securities (explained on Page 2 of the daily Treasury statement for June 30, 1920), the net ordinary disbursements for the fiscal year 1920 were $6,403,343,841.21, leaving an adjusted surplus (excess of ordinary receipts over net ordinary disbursements) of $291,221,547.67 for the fiscal year.

"The operations incident to the handling of the maturities of Treasury certificates from June 15 to July 15 have now been completed, and have resulted in further reductions in both the gross debt and the floating debt of the United States. The gross debt on June 30, 1920, on the basis of daily Treasury statements, amounted to $24,299,321,467.07, as against $25,484,506,160.65 at the end of the previous fiscal year on June 30, 1919, and $26,596,701,648.01 on Aug. 31, 1919, when the gross debt was at its peak. In other words, the gross debt on June 30, 1920, has been reduced by $2,297,380,180.94 from its peak on Aug. 31, 1919, and by $1,185,184,692.98 from the figure on June 30, 1919.

"On July 20, 1920, on the basis of daily Treasury statements, the gross

Republicans Determined to Make Its Overthrow Dominant Note of Convention.

WILL BE CAMPAIGN ISSUE

HUGO AND HOOKER DEFIANT

Will Take Their Gubernatorial Candidacies to Primaries, Irrespective of Convention Action.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 25.—The one regret expressed by Republican leaders assembling here for the Convention Tuesday is that it will be unofficial. They are fully determined that their next State convention shall have power to do more than "go through the motions" with full sanction of the law.

If the leaders have their way the funeral oration of direct primaries will be delivered about Wednesday, when the "recommendation" of candidates becomes the order of business. Incidentally it is apparent that a happier and more jubilant crowd never gathered for a funeral. The question of candidates, platform and "other business that may properly come before the Convention," to use the regulation formula, has become secondary to that design. On every hand is heard the statement that if this is not a "real" convention it will be the next thing to it.

The course and conduct of the convention undoubtedly will result in direct primaries becoming a new issue in the State campaign. The leaders are making the avowal that the election of a Republican Governor of their own choosing and of a Republican Legislature to stand behind him will mean the repeal of the direct primary law at next year's session of the Legislature.

Will Be State Campaign Issue.

The Republicans have sought for the last two years to have the law repealed and the official State convention restored as the vehicle for nominating candidates for State offices and Judges. Inasmuch as the only obstacle has been the veto power of a Democratic Governor who will be a candidate for re-election this year, and his avowed determination to use it, it is regarded as certain that the Democrats will gladly accept the issue.

It relation to this it was intimated here tonight that, while two years ago and in 1916, the Democrats at their unofficial State Convention recommended a full set of candidates for State offices, while the Republican Convention in both years refrained from taking any action, the situation may be reversed this year. Should the Republicans this week recommend candidates for nominations, the Democrats, whose convention will follow a week later, may determine to leave it to the primaries to decide whether Governor Smith should be renominated. As there is no opposition in sight, there could be no doubt regarding the outcome, anyhow.

National Convention Cited.

There is not a Republican leader of any prominence here who does not declare in favor of the convention recommending a full State ticket. Nor is there one who is not dead set against a continuance of the direct primaries as an agency for selecting candidates. The situation which arose at the National Convention in Chicago, when that greater and more broadly representative party was compelled to turn its back on the candidates who had been victorious in preferential primaries in favor of a candidate who had not been conspicuously successful in them, is being cited as indicative of the futility of the direct primary system.

The consensus of opinion is aptly reflected in a statement by Charles Betts, member of the Assembly and of the Republican State Committee from Wayne County:

"I believe," he said, "that the convention should pick a full ticket of men who will make good when they get in. I am tired of losing when we win. All other parties, including the Prohibition Party, let their conventions pick the party candidates. It seems to me we ought to have enough courage to do the same. Direct primaries were designed to blindfold the voters and bankrupt the candidates."

This is fairly typical of the feelings of all but a few leaders committed to some candidate who has been engaged for months in building up strength for a primary contest.

Candidates who are openly contending for nominations, with a few exceptions, are opposed to convention designation. But their opposition is not likely to weigh heavily in the balance once the convention gets under way.

The women's attitude has been the subject of much discussion today at conferences of the leaders. Tonight it was suggested that while there would be no departure from the prepared program, the resolution recommending candidates might be softened by a declaration that the action of the convention should not be regarded as in any way estopping a candidate from making his appeal in the primaries without danger therefrom to his regularity or standing in the party. It is understood this course was suggested by Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the New York County Committee,

DALLAS, Texas, July 25.—Joseph Weldon Bailey, former United States Senator from Texas, was leading Pat M. Neff, his nearest opponent, for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination in yesterday's primary by approximately 5,000 votes tonight.

Two hundred and twenty counties give Bailey 98,149, Neff 93,365, R. E. Thomason 62,115 and B. F. Looney 34,408.

Diplomas Found Among Effects of Harry E. Campbell Show He Abandoned Career.

EPIDEMIC RECALLED HIM

Quit Restaurant to Fight Influenza in Pittsburgh, Then Resumed Menial Toil.

In the death last night of Harry E. Campbell, employed for the last three years as a dishwasher in Shanley's restaurant in West Forty-second Street, there came to light the story of a man holding a diploma from a prominent medical college and for many years a practicing physician in Pittsburgh who for some mysterious reason had left his career for menial toil. Until he was found dead in a rooming house at 205 West Fifty-sixth Street neither his employers nor the few acquaintances that he had made knew of his former connections.

Mrs. Johanna Hunting, proprietor of the rooming house where Campbell had made his home for three years, recalled early last night that he had not left his hall bedroom during the day. She knocked on his door and, receiving no answer, entered. She found Campbell lying on the floor apparently unconscious.

Mrs. Hunting summoned Patrolman Walsh of the West Forty-seventh Street Station, who in turn called Dr. Siegel of Bellevue Hospital. Dr. Siegel pronounced the man dead from a cerebral hemorrhage. The body was taken to the Morgue on instructions from the Medical Examiner.

Examining Campbell's effects, the police came upon two medical diplomas, one issued by the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, which was dated 1882, and another from the Allegheny County Medical Association, dated April 22, 1878. Another document showed that Campbell had held the post of attending physician at the Municipal Hospital in Philadelphia.

Daughter on Concert Stage.

The police also found a letter addressed to Miss F. Lulu Findlay, at Kittanning, Pa., signed by Campbell, in which he wrote that his daughter, known by her stage name of Eleanor Corcoran, was going to sing in that city. He asked Miss Findlay to attend the concert and give him a report of how his daughter was received. Mrs. Hunting recalled that on one of the few occasions when Campbell referred to his family life he had told her his daughter had been educated abroad, where she had gone with her mother and a sister.

Campbell had two wardrobes, one of which gave an insight into his former life. He had evening clothes of fine texture and a number of business suits of the sort a prosperous physician might wear. There were shoes, shirts and underclothing of expensive make that appeared to have been little worn.

The other wardrobe consisted of his working clothes, stained from the labor he performed as a dishwasher. There was also an "extra" suit which he wore on his day off, or when he went out in the evening. All were of the cheapest make. This wardrobe was

IDENTIFY VICTIM OF TRUNK MURDER; TWO MEN IN JAIL

CHICAGO SALESMAN HELD

Detroit Policeman, Friend of Couple, to Visit Suspect, Also Known as Leroy.

MYSTERY NEAR SOLUTION

Alabama Man Who Surrendered Refuses to Leave Jail, Fearing Slayer's Vengeance.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, July 25.—Detroit's trunk crime passed out of the haze of guesswork tonight with three developments on which the police based their confidence that they were nearing a solution and that the victim was Katherine Jackson, a Southern girl, known here as Mrs. Eugene Leroy.

Patrolman Leo Trumbull of the McClellan Avenue Police Station and Mrs. Trumbull, acquaintances of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy, positively identified the clothing in the trunk as having belonged to the man and woman known as the Leroys and their assurance was borne out by a similar identification by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Pfister, 93 Trumbull Avenue, who also knew the couple.

Roy Millen, 29 years old, a salesman, who gave his home as Romeo, Mich., and thought by the Chicago police to be the mysterious "E. Leroy," was arrested at a Chicago hotel Sunday. Millen, who is said to be known in Chicago as Leroy, sent his wife to Detroit early in April, according to the Chicago police. A few weeks later he left Chicago by automobile for this city.

On that journey he was accompanied by a woman, the Chicago detective office says, whom he is said to have taken on several trips to resorts on the Chicago outskirts. This woman, again the police have it, has not been heard of since. Millen returned to Chicago with his wife July 19.

Millen's Trunk Seized.

The police found a trunk in Millen's hotel room which had not been opened at midnight. Millen's story is that he visited Detroit frequently to see relatives living in Romeo, Mich. He was in this city a month ago, he said.

The trunk bears several express labels, one showing it was shipped from Romeo, Mich., to Chicago July 17, consigned to R. H. Millen at the hotel where Millen was arrested. Another label shows it was received by R. H. Millen at Romeo, Mich., April 12 of this year.

Chief of Detectives Fox advised the Chicago police to hold Millen and confiscate his effects. Patrolman Trumbull and a member of the Homicide Squad left for Chicago at midnight to talk with the suspect.

Mrs. Olive M. Trumbull, wife of Patrolman Trumbull, said she met Katherine Jackson at the Interurban Hotel in the Fall of 1919, and two nights later the girl introduced Eugene Leroy to them. Two weeks later they announced their marriage.

Had Been Married Before.

The girl confided in Mrs. Trumbull that she had been married before to a boxer and had lived unhappily with him in Birmingham, Ala., until a divorce separated them. She said that this time it was going to be different; at least, that she intended to do her level best to make it so.

They went to live at 238 Lysander Street and then to 93 Trumbull Avenue. Mrs. Trumbull remembered the rose-colored sweater coat well, she said. The other woman had allowed her to wear it several times. She was familiar with the man's blue sack coat, too, that was found in the trunk. So was Patrolman Trumbull. It belonged to Leroy, they were certain.

All did not go so well with the Leroys, however. The bride visited Mrs. Trum-

Separatist Leader Seized in French Zone By German Police; France to Make Protest

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 25.—An incident capable of disagreeable possibilities has occurred between France and Germany because of the arrest at Wiesbaden of Dr. Hans Dorten, the Rhineland separatist leader. Wiesbaden is in occupied territory and Dorten was spirited into unoccupied territory without the consent or authorization of the allied authorities. Premier Millerand today ordered General Degoutte, commanding the French Army of Occupation, to make an immediate report, and it is probable that Berlin will be asked for explanations. The French military authorities have several times saved Dorten from the Berlin authorities, who have formally accused him of treason because of his activities toward the establishment of a separate Rhineland, a project hitherto favored by the French Government.

Dorten, it will be remembered, was the head of the movement for a Rhineland State in June of last year. He proposed to have Coblenz for its capital and was ardently backed by General Mangin, who at that time commanded the French troops on the Rhine. The movement was checked by the refusal of General Liggett, commanding the American troops on the Rhine, who acted under direction of President Wilson, who was then in Paris, and the British commander.

Since then Dorten has carried on his agitation from Wiesbaden. On Friday afternoon Dorten was standing in front of his home in Wiesbaden when three men jumped from an automobile and with drawn revolvers orced him to accompany them. They went off in the direction of Frankfort. When the French military authorities learned of the event they called on the police of Wiesbaden for an explanation. The latter said they knew nothing of the arrest and later stated that the arrest had been made by agents of the Frankfort police under a warrant issued by the high court of Leipsic charging Dorten with a political offense.

A semi-official French statement points out that Article 31, Section 2, of the regulations of the Rhineland High Commission forbids the German authorities to act on charges of political or commercial offenses during the armistice without the agreement of the commission, and adds that coming just after Premier Millerand's declaration that the French Government would not work for a separatist movement, the arrest of Dr. Dorten has the appearance of premeditated provocation of the French military authorities. On two previous occasions the French had specifically refused to turn over Dr. Dorten for trial on the charges for which he was spirited out of occupied territory.

SOVIET OFFERS PEACE TO ALL THE ALLIES; TRUCE PARLEY IS BEGUN WITH THE POLES; ADRIANOPLE FALLS; FRENCH IN DAMASCUS

Adrianople Is Captured by Greek Forces; Turks Unable to Halt Foe's Advance in Thrace

LONDON, July 25.—The Greeks have occupied Adrianople, according to an announcement made in the Athens newspapers on Saturday and forwarded to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

King Alexander will enter Adrianople on Sunday.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 24 (Associated Press).—The Greek forces in Thrace occupied Eski-Baba, the junction point of the Constantinople and Kirk-Kilisseh Railway line, on Saturday. They immediately pushed northward toward Kirk-Kilisseh and westward along the railway and northwestward along the highway toward Adrianople. The Turks, offering slight resistance, are fleeing rapidly toward Adrianople.

Reports received here say the Greeks were beginning a heavy offensive against Adrianople today. The pleas of Colonel Jafar Tayar, the Turkish Nationalist Commander in Adrianople, for stubborn resistance apparently are having little effect, the Turks being unwilling to face the Greek artillery, which is displaying good markmanship.

The Turkish commander at Tchataldja has telegraphed Colonel Jafar Tayar, saying the Turkish resistance was feeble against Greek landing parties and asking what to do when the Greeks advanced eastward. Colonel Jafar Tayar has declared he will kill himself rather than surrender.

Feisal Supposed to Have Fled to the Interior After Defeat by Gouraud's Army.

SHARP BATTLE IS FOUGHT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 25.—The French Foreign Office announces that French troops under General Gouraud occupied yesterday the city of Damascus seat of the Government of Emir Feisal, "King of Syria."

The reason given for the action is that the Emir Feisal failed to observe the terms of the ultimatum of General Gouraud which he had previously accepted.

The occupation of Damascus followed a bitter battle, in which Yussuf Azim, Minister of War in the Damascus Cabinet, was killed.

No statement is made as to whether Emir Feisal was captured. It is more than likely he has fled into the interior. It is expected that another head of the Syrians will be named, with French approval.

Aleppo was occupied two days ago, and so now the French hold the main railroad line from Damascus north into Cilicia, so much needed for the supplying of their troops in the latter region.

On July 20 it was announced that Feisal had accepted the terms of Gouraud's ultimatum, which called for recognition of the French mandate and reduction of the Arab Army. But on the next day, the official acceptance not having reached Gouraud, he ordered his troops to move ahead both on Aleppo and Damascus. On the morning of the 22d the Emir sent a messenger to Gouraud to say that the acceptance had been dispatched within the time limit and that its non-arrival was due to an accident. Gouraud accepted this excuse and halted his troops, which were advancing from Zahle to Damascus. But on the afternoon of the same day, east of Kalah, a troop of 400 of Feisal's cavalry attacked a French detachment guarding the Homs-Tripoli railroad junction. At the same time French aviators reported the massing of troops between the French and Damascus. To the north Arabs were reported marching toward the French near Aleppo.

Yesterday morning Gouraud learned that in the defile through the mountain range which separates the Plain of Bekku from that of Damascus a large force of Feisal's troops were in position and that Yussuf Azim had arrived at Kham Maisolun. General Gouraud ordered General Goybet, in immediate command, to attack.

The French troops met the Sheriffian troops armed with machine guns and field cannon. The French troops were composed of white infantry, Algerian riflemen, African ghasseurs, with Moroccans and Senegalese.

The French report gives no exact idea of casualties except to say that there was a prolonged combat and that their losses were not too great. The fight lasted from early morning until 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Syrians broke and fled, leaving nine cannon, twenty-five machine guns and considerable material. The body of Feisal's War Minister was found among the dead on the battlefield.

At 5 o'clock a Colonel of Feisal's forces, accompanied by a French Colonel who had been stationed at Damascus as liaison officer, came to Goybet's headquarters to say that the Syrians would offer no further resistance to the occupation of Damascus and that the city would assure the feeding of the French troops until the railroad line, broken in the battle, could be rebuilt. The advance then began, and the French troops marched into the European quarter of Damascus.

Gouraud will probably await orders from Paris before taking the next step. It goes without saying that the French will insist on the abdication of Emir Feisal, who turned on them after Paris had paid him 80,000,000 francs. He will be succeeded by a man who will consent in advance to follow French advice. It is reported that Emir Said will be King of Syria.

BERLIN, July 25.—Berlin and its vicinity were almost denuded recently of troops, which, with extreme secrecy, were dispatched to the Eastern frontier to guard against Polish or Russian invasion.

The authorities thought this secrecy necessary, fearing rebellious actions by the anarchistic elements should they become aware of the Government's temporary helplessness. During the last three days, however, troops from other parts of Germany arrived to fill the Doeberitz and other vacated garrisons in and near the capital.

Just at present all is quiet here, and to a new casual visitor to Germany the apprehensive measures of the Government would seem quite superfluous. Most likely all will remain quiet until after the harvest unless the armistice negotiations should fail and Russian troops reach the frontier in large masses. Then, in all probability, would happen what the reactionary press feared might break immediately, even before or during the harvest, namely, a rising of the Red hosts in all the mining and industrial districts and parts of Germany where the landed Junkers are still supreme. Revelations of such plans have become a standing feature of papers like the Lokal Anzeiger and the Deutsche Tageszeitung.

Truth Dawning on Reactionaries.

The Independent Socialist and Communist organs have laughed at these revelations, and with some justification, because the reactionaries have neither realized the time for which these risings are prepared nor their intrinsic relations with happenings in Russia, and it is only now that the truth is dawning upon them and the rest of the German population.

For a long time past the leaders of the Independent Socialists and Communists have been in constant connection with Moscow and acting on Bolshevist orders, nor have they tried very hard to conceal these facts. But, as in the fatal July days of 1914, the German people never dreamed of the dangerous game the Kaiser was playing, so the intercourse between the Muscovites and German Reds has been regarded as comparatively harmless, in view of the enormous distance between Moscow and Berlin.

The wealthy classes especially had become surprisingly optimistic. After the Deutsche Volksparti's success in the recent election they thought that the time for revolutions was over and that with the new Government order and stability had returned. Even Hugo Stinnes believed that, and before he went to Spa he said as much to the miners. From certain agencies which until then he had financed in their fight against Bolshevism or outlawry under other names Stinnes suddenly withdrew his financial aid, contending there was no more danger. That was before Spa. This morning before the Government's Economic Commission he spoke his fears of the consequences of the Spa arrangement and the approach of the Bolsheviki from the East were bound to have on the German masses.

The approach of Bolshevism today is the sole topic of all classes of the population. Some people still refuse to believe there is any real danger. They argue that Bolshevism will finally receive its death blow from the militarism of France, which, today, they German Government Bars Exportation of Munitions to Either Russia or Poland.

LONDON, Monday, July 26.—The Russian Soviet Government has notified Great Britain that it is willing to meet the leading Allies for a peace conference in London, but as a preliminary to such a conference it demands the surrender of General Wrangel, the anti-Bolshevist commander in the south, under a guarantee of personal safety, according to The Daily Mail.

In the note conveying this decision, says the newspaper, the Soviet informs Great Britain of its willingness to agree to an armistice in Poland and expresses its astonishment at Great Britain's action in interrupting the discussion of trade relations with Russia.

Another Bolshevist communication received here concerning operations on the Polish front, but bearing no date, reads:

"In the direction of Bielostok we forced the Niemen River and are continuing to advance. In the direction of Kobryn (northeast of Brest-Litovsk) we occupied the town of Ruseany. In the direction of Kovel we captured a Polish divisional staff and a quantity of material.

VIENNA, July 25.—From well informed sources I learn that the Soviet peace conditions for Poland will be very severe, but that the Soviet Government will not insist on Russia and Germany having a common frontier and will only demand free commercial intercourse with Germany and unhindered use of Danzig harbor.

WARSAW, July 24 (Associated Press.)—Armistice negotiations between representatives of Poland and Soviet Russia probably will be held at Brest-Litovsk, according to Diet circles today.

Negotiations to bring about the initial meeting of the military commanders to arrange for a conference between the deputations of both sides already are under way somewhere on the front lines.

BERLIN, July 25.—The German Government today proclaimed an ordinance prohibiting the exportation and transit of arms, munitions, explosives or other war materials to Poland or Russia.

The proclamation adds that Germany exercises the right she enjoys in accordance with the law of nations, which remains untouched by the provisions of the Peace Treaty.

The Government today approved the draft of a law providing for disarmament of the population.

Premier, in Peasant Garb, Tells Members Nation Must Rely on Its Own Forces.

WARSAW, July 24 (Associated Press).—Poland's first coalition Cabinet took office today soon after it was announced that the Soviets had accepted Poland's armistice proposals.

Vincent Witos, who has been the leader of the popular Peasant Party and President of the Polish Parliament, is the new Premier; Ignace Daszynski, Socialist leader, Vice Premier; Prince Eugene Sapieha, Minister of Foreign Affairs; General Leszniewski, Minister of War; Ladislas Grabski, Minister of Finance, and M. Skulski, who was Premier, succeeding Ignace Jan Paderewski last December, Minister of the Interior. A number of changes appear among other chiefs of home affairs. The Cabinet is known generally as a Government desiring peace. The members are well known and are said to have the confidence of all classes.

At the time extra newspapers announced the Bolshevist acceptance of the Armistice proposals and Warsaw was perceptibly relieved after days of strain due to the Reds' advance. Witos, as Premier, made his initial bow to the diet. The members showed no excitement on the topic regarding which the whole city fairly buzzed.

The Premier, who had just arrived from the Witos estate in Galicia, was attired in simple peasant's garments, a well-worn brown suit, a soft shirt without cravat and high black leather boots. He was enthusiastically received by his brother members when he mounted the speaker's stand.

M. Witos said the new Government was prepared to conclude peace based upon the principles of justice and freedom, otherwise the entire nation would unite to fight for the republic's independence. He declared that Poland had the right to expect allied help, in view of the danger of a Bolshevist invasion, but that the country must rely chiefly upon its own forces and not depend too much upon military aid from the outside, no matter what the circumstances.

The new Premier has been one of the most active members of the Diet since the body was created.

ASK WHAT SOVIETS WILL NOW DEMAND

French Officials and Press Speculate on Use Moscow Will Make of Victory.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 25.—The attention of the diplomatic world was turned today toward Moscow. What use will the Soviet Government make of its victory over Poland is the question now being asked. Will the Soviets make the mistake the victorious Germans made at Brest-Litovsk, or will they give Poland easy terms and say to the world that they do not seek any fruits of conquest and do not wish to fight any one who does not fight them?

No word had reached Paris up to tonight of any terms Moscow proposes. In the meanwhile the diplomats of the Quay d'Orsay are torturing themselves by speculating how much they can have to say about peace arrangements. Taking note of Moscow's reply to Lloyd George that Moscow was capable of making peace for itself, they fear they will have very little to say. It is true that the English and French Governments, through their missions which arrived yesterday at Warsaw, will essay to give the Poles the benefit of their advice. Just how much weight this advice will carry it is difficult to say at this time.

Probable Course of Soviets.

Despite their ingrown hostility to Sovietism and despite their unceasing opposition French diplomats admit that the Soviets appear to be playing a very wily game and is in a position to reap enormous propaganda benefits from the situation. Should they be easy on Poland and use this to prove that they are rather more decent than most folks suppose, it is admitted Red leaders can make out a strong primafacie case. As matter of fact, this is what Paris expects them to do and then to remind Lloyd George that he must on this new conditions resume negotiations with Krassin, who now awaits only the word of the British Premier to resume his voyage to London.

The French Foreign Office does not for one moment surrender its old theory that Germany plans to link up with Soviet Russia for military purposes, and therefore the French are very anxious that Trotsky shall not carry out his plan of having Poland as a bridge to the westward rather than a barrier. Lloyd George is not so sure the Germans are planning this and some leaders of French opinion scout it, but the idea still remains the directing force in the Quai Dorsay.

The French Nationalist press today receives the Soviets' agreement to the armistice with a hostility rather hard to understand since this same press knows perfectly well that, aided ably to Poland in any effectual manner, had the Red armies kept up the fight, would have presented almost insurmountable obstacles for the nations burdened with debt and weary of war. One or two papers, notably the Matin, say it is best to be frank and admit Moscow appears reasonable, but most of the Paris press finds new charges to fling at Lenin and Trotzky.

Distrust of Moscow's Aims.

Pertinax in the Echo de Paris says the armistice is immaterial because Bolshevist danger to Poland will remain and Moscow is not to be trusted anyhow. The Petit Journal says, "If the Soviets give up the invasion of Poland it is only for the purpose of getting a better foothold there by pacific means. The Bolsheviki have no need of territorial conquests. They wish a new field for propaganda so they can link up with Germany."

In an interesting analysis of the situation Figaro finds that the Soviet chiefs have called off their army because they were afraid of its successes, were afraid that if won too much they could not control it. Figaro argues that the so called Red Army is not a Red Army at all, but the Russian Army, just like all other Russian armies, fighting for country and patriotism. But country and patriotism are foes of Bolshevism and therefore every victory for the patriotic army is a defeat for Bolshevism. Therefore, says Figaro, the Bolsheviki stopped the Russian Army from winning any more victories.

La Victoire actually regrets that the Soviets granted the armistice. It says that the Allies could have got Finland, Rumania and Hungary into the fight against the Bolsheviki and perhaps have finished them whereas as things are working out they are not crushed at all. Briand's paper l'Eclair says the whole business is the doing of Lloyd George, but blames him rather than praises. Saint Brice in The Journal says the Soviets realize that against a free Poland moderation is a better weapon than violence and warns Warsaw against the voice of the siren.

Liberte says:

"The Moscowites wish in the eyes of the world to appear as people who are forced to make war and seize the first opportunity to make peace," and then says the Allies must prevent Poland from falling a prey to their wiles.

The Intransigeant sees in the Soviet armistice action a step similar to that the Allies took in November, 1918, and adds the hope that it is as big a mistake for the Bolsheviki as it was for the Allies.

"Moral Victory" for Reds.

The Martin says: "We might as well be frank—the decision of the Soviets is remarkable evidence of political prudence. It is furthermore a great relief for Lloyd George and Millerand. If the Red Army had kept up its offensive it is by no means sure that it could have been stopped before it reached Warsaw."

The Martin then says the Allies should be happy that Moscow has solved for them the effort Germany was making to get out of Bolshevist danger permission for a larger army. Then the Martin adds:

"There is no use fooling ourselves—the Soviets have gained an immense moral victory. In full success they halt their army. More than that, they give the order to withdraw. This moderation will make much more easy for them the resumption of economic negotiations which they hope to turn into political negotiations."

The Matin says it hopes Poland will not forget her lesson. "Poland is indispensable to the peace of Europe. She ought to attack no one and her great frontiers ought to make her very prudent as the future, for she is surrounded by hostile peoples."

The Matin concludes by hoping France can save Poland from being the plaything of Moscow.

Alfred Capus in the Gaulois says he is tired of hearing the bugaboo about Germany and the Bolsheviki. He writes: "We commit a great mistake in frightening ourselves over the possibility of an alliance between Germany and Bolshevism. Germany fears Bolshevism more than we do, and she is more exposed to it. When she tries to tell us that if we are for the enforcement of the treaty she will join up with the Red masses she is trying to fool us."

The Journal des Debats tonight says France should not change her attitude toward the Soviets, and that to give way because the Soviets had won a military success would be to play with suicide.

The Temps tonight recalls that ten months ago Premier Paderewski asked permission of the allied Premiers to open negotiations with Russia, and they refused him. Therefore the Temps believes England and France face very heavy responsibilities now. This journal says that France must do everything possible to see that Poland preserves its independence, but outside of that it will be difficult for Paris to have much to say in the coming negotiations.

Beneath all of the comment of the press and officials Paris really recognizes the incontestable fact that for the present hour the Soviets have the better of the argument which has been going on between them and the Allies for the last two years and they want to see what use the Soviets will make of that advantage.

FIRE NEAR PARK ROUTS 60.

Sleeping Physician Is Saved by His Fellow Tennants.

Tenants in the Pasadena Apartments, at 10 West Sixty-first Street, smelled smoke early this morning. Investigating, they traced the smoke to the apartment on the twelfth floor occupied by Dr. H. Haubold. No response followed their knocks on the door, and when they broke into the apartment they found a lively blaze in the dining room.

Dr. Haubold was asleep in his bedroom and had to be awakened by his fellow-tenants. The smake which filled the building caused the sixty tenants in the building to flee to the street in their night clothes. The fire, which was confined to the dining room, was quickly put out.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD.

Police Believe Mrs. Anna Seedorf, 70, Died of Natural Causes.

The body of Mrs. Anna Seedorf, 70 years old, was found late yesterday afternoon in her apartment on the fourth floor of a house at 455 West 143d Street by Thomas Wohlsen of 602 St. Nicholas Avenue, caretaker of the house. The woman was dressed in night clothes and had been dead for several days. The body was found lying on the floor beside a couch in the living room.

According to the police, Wohlsen, who is also sexton of the Lutheran Church of the Atonement at Edgecombe Avenue and 140th Street, is accustomed to go through the house daily. He never went to the top floor, however, because he know that Mrs. Seedorf occupied the four rooms there. Wohlsen went to the top floor yesterday, where he found the doors unlocked and discovered Mrs. Seedorf's body. The police believe her death was due to natural causes.

PILGRIMS' PAGEANT AT SOUTHAMPTON

"John Alden's Choice" Presented Before American and British Spectators.

SPEAKERS DISCUSS LEAGUE

Copyright, 1920, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

SOUTHAMPTON, July 25.—On the old Southampton quay, the very spot from which the Pilgrim Fathers started 300 years ago on their great adventure, the citizens of Southampton have just reenacted the embarkation. A pageant entitled "John Alden's Choice" was the principal feature of the first series of celebrations of the Mayflower tercentenary which will be held in various towns and villages of England in the next month or two.

The author of the play is Miss Myra Lovett, daughter of the Rev. Canon Lovett, a local clergyman, and the players are all local amateurs who have been rehearsing for months, and whose performance does credit to Canon Lovett, who acted as producer and pageantmaster.

The principal figure is John Alden, who was the only member of the band who came from Southampton. Tradition says that Alden was a New Forest gypsy, but it is certain that he was a cooper's apprentice in Southampton, and it is also certain that he was not a Puritan, but joined the band from love of adventure and of Priscilla Mullen, who afterward became Priscilla Alden.

The Mayor of Southampton at that time, John Richards, who was in sympathy with the Pilgrims, was represented by Alderman C. J. Sharp, who has been twice Mayor of the city, and Vicar Holyrod by the Rev. L. S. Etheridge. John Carver, William Brewster, Edward Winslow, Isaac Allerton, Miles Standish and William Bradford also appear in the play, which also reproduces in John Alden's dream of the future the inauguration of Washington, the Boston Tea Party, Civil War scenes, and finally America coming to the aid of Great Britain in the great war.

The final scene is the embarkation of the Pilgrims, while hundreds of assembled townspeople watch the start from the same spot where their ancestors were spectators. All are singing the hymn, "O God of Jacob, by Whose Hand." Above all stands the Pilgrims' Memorial, and beside the old walls of Southampton, which are a few yards away, is the Huguenot church where the Pilgrims worshipped.

Thhe pageant was opened by Lord Birkenhead, Lord Chancellor of England, and among the spectators were J. Butler Wright, Counsellor of the American Embassy; General C. H. Sherrill, of New York; Mr. J. Savage, American Consul at Southampton, and many other Americans.

Before the pageant the Mayor gave a luncheon in the pier pavilion a few yards away, and after it aquatic sports were held in the harbor.

The pageant was opened by Lord out this week. Later there will be similar celebrations in Plymouth, where the Mayflower and Speedwell put in and which was the final port of departure for the Pilgrims.

Speaking at the luncheon Lord Birkenhead said:

"I profoundly believe that in the state of affairs produced by the war and in view of the threat to civilization only the close association and sympathy of the British and American people can avert the perils which menace the world. I attach the greatest possible importance to the part to be played by the League of Nations, which was an American conception, and if it fails, the greatest share of the responsibility must be borne by America. It rests with America to define the extent of this power and responsibilities, and I assert without fear of contradiction that all Europe will accept the terms given it by the American nation. We all shall and must acquiesce in the American view."

General Sherrill, in his response, made a notable reference to the Anglo-Japanese treaty situation.

"The strongest basis for an Anglo-American alliance is being brought about in the Pacific," he said. "Australia has certain policies to which she clings, and which are on all fours with the policy of Canada and the policy of our Western States. Based on these policies will be built up an enduring Anglo-Saxon alliance which will stand against all attacks.

"There has been much misunderstanding about the League of Nations in Europe, but I can say that, whatever may be the result of our election, some method of co-operation between America and the nations of Europe will be worked out. I believe myself the foundation is now being laid in the establishment of the International Court at The Hague, and that justice and law will take the place of force."

Hungarians Ask Germany for Bela Kun's Extradition

BUDAPEST, Hungary, July 24.—A long note has been sent to the German Government asking the extradition of Bela Kun, former Communist Dictator of Hungary.

The communication points out that Kun is accused of murder and forgery and has forfeited his right to asylum.

BERLIN, July 24.—The Independent Socialists are planning a great open air demonstration against the extradition of Bela Kun. The Independents will demand that Hungary's request for his extradition be rejected on the basis of international law.

BOLSHEVIKI MARCHING TO JOIN THE TURKS

Enver Pasha Reported With Force Overrunning Armenia—Unrest in Georgia Growing.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 24 (Associated Press). — Considerable Russian Bolshevist forces, chiefly cavalry, are overrunning the Karabagh district of Armenia, known as the "Black Garden," apparently with the purpose of joining the Turkish Nationalists. The Russian Bolsheviki are approaching Shusna (100 miles southeast of Erivan). It is reported that Enver Pasha is accompanying the forces, which constitute a special army created for operations in Turkey.

The Armenians probably aggregate only 25,000 troops, many of whom are declared to be of Bolshevist tendencies, and Armenian resistance to a large Bolshevist movement, therefore, it is believed, will be ineffective.

Unrest is growing in Georgia. Greek and other foreigners are leaving Batum and Poti by hundreds daily. Agitators are fomenting quarrels between the Georgians and Tatars and Turks at Batum, where the situation is reported to be critical.

The Armenians have protested to Moscow against the alleged violation of the treaty recently concluded with the Soviet Government. It is stated, however, that all treaties with the Bolsheviki in the Caucasus apparently were wholly time-gaining devices which were disregarded as soon as the fighting with Poland began.

Foreign observers here express the belief that the Bolsheviki can take over entire control in the Caucasus whenever they see fit, including control of the railway and troop dispositions.

Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Nationalist leader, continues to issue communications declaring that the Greek successes are unimportant. These communications declare that as the Bolsheviki are coming to the support of the Nationalists, the Turks will continue to retreat eastward if necessary until they obtain satisfactory positions from which to give battle.

WORLD JURISTS GLAD OF WORK AT HAGUE

END LABORS WITH FUNCTION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, July 24.—Although, owing to his attitude toward the League of Nations, Elihu Root was unable to deliver an official speech, he undoubtedly was the most prominent figure at the farewell meeting of the Jurists' Committee in the Carnegie Peace Palace this afternoon.

After weeks of the most serious but animated legal conferences, the Peace Palace was the scene of an interesting and animated gathering. As at the opening ceremony of the jurists five weeks ago, President Descamps made a speech, this time speaking of the work the committee had accomplished and the constitution, competency and procedure of the new court.

The President pointed out that the Secretariat would be entrusted to deliver the final project, now signed and sealed, to the Council of the League of Nations at San Sebastian.

The Dutch Foreign Minister, Jonkheer Van Karnekeek, replied, expressing pleasure over the honor conferred on Holland by the decision to have the seat of the court at The Hague.

The ceremony was attended by the whole diplomatic corps, all the important Dutch Ministers and the official world.

The Jurists' Conference will leave a mark on The Hague, which is now destined to become a more active centre of international law than ever before. Not only will there be a court of arbitration, but the permanent Court of International Justice will be here, and among the legal activities will be a continuous series of conferences on international law, for laying down new laws.

Moreover, the Academy of International Law, established in 1913 at The Hague, will begin work right away, and there will be constant courses by professors and first class jurists from all over the world for students. It is thus anticipated that in future law students will complete their studies by The Hague course.

Elihu Root has been actively interested in all these plans, recommending them most warmly to the committee.

At the conclusion of the ceremony in the Peace Palace I spoke with Foreign Minister Van Karnebeek on the question of the court. He expressed great satisfaction that The Hague had been chosen as the seat of the permanent Court of International Justice. "I think that The Hague, with its quiet atmosphere, removed from all political and other influences, is the very place for such work, as people can work quietly and undisturbed. You have here a pleasant spot for a sojourn," he said, adding: "Moreover, it is a matter of past tradition that The Hague is the place for questions of international law. It will now be seen whether arbitration or justice will be more in demand. I foresee much work for the court, but it must be built up gradually. There must not be a failing off.

"Netherlanders are truly interested in all these questions of international law and The Hague will become an active centre, although it is difficult to see how soon the work can begin."

I also spoke with a number of delegates on the eve of their departure to their various countries. All expressed the greatest satisfaction over the work accomplished. Mr. Root stated that he was delighted with the manner in which the work was completed. Lord Phillimore expressed pleasure over the way in which he and Mr. Root were able to work together, following along the same lines. "There has been much space work, it is true, but Anglo-Saxon ideas won out in the end," he said.

The Belgian Baron Descamps said: "Although I would have preferred to spend a little more time completing the draft, I am hopeful and confident about the great future of the court. I am sure the League will pass the project."

The Italian delegate, Bussatti, said: "The court will be able to accomplish a tremendous work, but it should be advertised throughout the world."

GIRL SHOT FOR CLOTHES.

Kentucky Mountain Folk Stirred at Hearing of Accused Woman.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 25.—Envious of pretty clothes worn by Alice Hammock, her chum, Goldie Sturgill, a young girl of Letcher County, is accused at Whitesburg of having shot Miss Hammock three times. The wounded girl will likely die. Miss Sturgill was held at her examining trial to answer to the Grand Jury under $7,000 bond.

Miss Hammock's story was that, while walking together, Miss Sturgill shot her in the back, robbed her of a quantity of clothing and while she was kneeling and begging for her life shot her twice again and disappeared.

The wounded girl dragged herself a mile from the scene of the shooting, told her story and collapsed.

Miss Sturgill's arrest followed. She denied the charge. It is alleged, however, that the clothing was found in the Sturgill home.

Both young women are members of prominent families. The examining trial attracted hundreds of mountaineers. The case is without parallel in Kentucky.

POLICE PLAN SANITARIUM.

Proceeds of Annual Games to Be Used for That Purpose.

Out of the funds obtained through the annual police games to be held Aug. 21 and Aug. 28 at the Gravesend track, a sanitarium in the Catskills or in the Adirondacks is to be erected for members of the Police Department who become ill. This was announced yesterday by Police Commissioner Enright.

"The funds collected from the Field Day Games of 1919 are being used to pay pensions, equal to the pension allowed widows provided for by the statute, to the widows and orphans of members of the force who have served less than ten years and who, under law are not entitled to any pension.

"Many of the members of the force, through accident or disease, were incapacitated and badly broken in health, and as their meagre funds were quickly exhausted they and their families are unable to pay for medical treatment out of the half pay allowed while on sick leave.

"Relief has been given in such cases and the afflicted officers have been sent away for treatment at the expense of the Police Relief Fund. Fifty thousand dollars was also set aside for the purpose of starting the police stores, which are supplying members with a great many of the necessities of life at cost.

"It will be necessary to raise further revenue through the medium of the annual field day games to maintain the Police Relief Fund, as the demands upon it are heavy and constantly increasing. Out of the funds which will be collected this year it is proposed to erect a sanitarium at some elevated point, perhaps in the Catskills or Adirondacks, where members of the force who are suffering from tuberculosis or other pulmonary trouble, or who have broken down as a result of disease or accident, can go for recuperation without any personal expense."

RIOT AND PILLAGE IN TREVES

French Troops Intervene When Germans Loot Stores.

PARIS, July 25.—During demonstrations in protest against the high cost of living in Treves fifteen persons were wounded and several stores were pillaged, according to a dispatch to the Matin today.

The police arrested thirty persons, after which the French occupational forces intervened and restored order.

TO MAKE MARRIAGE EASIER FOR FRENCH

MUCH OPPOSITION SHOWN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 24.—A bill to allow French men and French women to marry without the consent of both parents and grandparents, if alive, has just be introduced in the French Senate. According to the present law no man or woman may marry without the consent of the family, and if either parent objects to the son's or daughter's choice of a mate the objection lodged with the Mayor is sufficient to prevent any ceremony.

The hardship of this law has been complained about by young France for centuries, but no attempt has ever been made to change it. Even now the proposed reform does not go very far. All it proposes is that if one of the parents or grandparents approves the objections of the others shall be overruled. In cases where the parents are separated or divorced the consent of the one who has the guardianship of the child will be necessary.

Reasonable as this proposal seems to Americans, it is causing some opposition as tending to a slackening of family ties and authority, and there is likely to be a long discussion before it is adopted.

Another bill, with even less chance of success, has been introduced into the Senate for the elimination of the word "obey" from the woman's part of the marriage service. The words in the French code read:

"The husband owes protection; the wife owes obedience to the husband."

The proposed bill would remove the latter phrase, relieving wives of any obligations.

Almost all the press comment on the proposal is unfavorable, and in feminist papers it is characterized as reminiscent of Bolshevism, likely to lead first to anarchy and then to tyranny in the home.

GERMANY RETURNS BOOKS.

Louvain Gets Back 10,000 of Those Stolen During the War.

LONDON, July 25.—A dispatch to The London Times from Brussels reports the arrival in Louvain of the first consignment of 10,000 books from Germany for the library of Louvain University, in accordance with the terms of the Peace Treaty.

The dispatch adds that representatives of the Reparation Commission are searching Germany for books stolen from Louvain during the war.

BIG CZECH STRIKE OVER.

Demands of Workers in the Textile Industries Are Granted.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, July 22.—The strike in the northern district of the country, involving 30,000 men, was settled yesterday.

The strikers' demands for a full flour ration, clothing, footwear and State assistance to the unemployed, who are numerous in the textile industries, were granted.

Ammonia Pipe Bursts in Y. M. C. A.

Ammonia fumes swept through the basement of the Y. M. C. A. Building at 318 West Fifty-seventh Street late yesterday afternoon, but were prevented from reaching the upper floors, where meetings and other activities were going on, by the timely arrival of the Rescue Squad of the Fire Department. No damage was done and there was no excitement.

CHURCHILL LASHES TRADE UNION CRITICS

Says Great Powers Made Bargain with Kolchak for Which He Is Condemned.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 25.—Winston Churchill has sent a spirited reply to the Leicester and District Trades Council, which forwarded to him a resolution protesting against his "secret agreement with Admiral Kolchak for the supply of troops to wage war on Soviet Russia." Further, "it views with alarm the continued contempt for public opinion manifested by the House of Commons with regard to these revelations, and considers that the presence of Mr. Churchill in the War Office is a public scandal and a danger to the country."

Mr. Churchill begins by declaring that he never made any such secret agreement.

"What your council is perhaps thinking of," he continues, "is the agreement made with Kolchak on July 3 last year by the five grat powers, Britain, the United States, France, Italy and Japan, in which, after receiving from him assurances that if successful he would establish a free constituent assembly on a democratic franchise for Russia, they promised him the continuance of their aid and support. This agreement was signed, among others, by President Wilson himself."

As regards the House of Commons' contempt for public opinion, he points out that the Labor Party has many opportunities for obtaining the fullest possible Parliamentary discussion of the so-called Russian revelations.

Finally, Mr. Churchill writes:

"I wonder what would happen to the members of your council if, instead of living under the free British Constitution, they were enjoying the inestimable benefits of civil rule in Russia. What would happen, for instance, to the Moscow and District Trades Council if they sent a resolution to Comrade Trotsky to the effect that his presence at the Russian War Office was a public scandal and a danger to the country? I do not think they would get a reasoned letter in reply. I think much more likely they would be in jail before night, and very likely in their coffins before the next morning."

WOULD TRADE WITH HOLLAND.

Soviet Hopes for World Recognition Through Commercial Relations.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, July 25.—Although no official steps have yet been taken by the Soviet Government regarding the resumption of trade relations with the Netherlands, an approach is expected in the near future. The road has already been paved by a long interview the correspondent of the semi-official Nieuwe Courant has had with the Berlin representative of the Soviet Government, Wigdor Kopp.

From a person in close touch with Soviet politicians I learn that the main policy of the Bolsevik at present is to enter into commercial relations with as many powers as possible, especially neutral countries, believing they can do more in this way toward obtaining world recognition and thus attain their ends. Their military success in Poland, they say, will be used to force recognition and trading concessions.

A Dutch Communist member recently asked the Foreign Minister what were Holland's relations with Soviet Russia. The Minister replied that the idea of trade relations was being considered with great attention, but that otherwise there was no change of attitude toward the Soviet Government.

Kopp declared in the interview mentioned that Russia was honestly prepared to resume relations with Holland. He denied that a trade commission would soon be converted into a centre of political propaganda, saying that this would only lead to discovery and the breaking off of relations, and that there were plenty of other ways of propaganda.

Kopp thought the establishment of relations with Holland would be easier than with former enemies, and that Holland would enjoy the same privileges as Great Britain. He even considered it possible that an arrangement could be made whereby Dutch claims against Russian concerns which have been socialized or expropriated would be recognized.

IDENTIFY VICTIM OF TRUNK MURDER

bull some weeks after. In the meanwhile A. A. Tatum of Birmingham had come to town at Mrs. Leroy's invitation following an altercation in the Leroy home.

"She told me," said Mrs. Trumbull, "that Leroy followed her in the street one night with a dagger."

Visits between the Trumbulls and the Leroys became less frequent, however, when the former couple moved to Highland Park.

Asked Secrecy About Moving.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Pfister picked up the threads where the Trumbulls dropped them as the Le Roys moved out of the neighborhood. The Le Roys lived in the same house with the Pfisters at 93 Trumbull Avenue. Pfister himself did the carting of their goods when they moved, and later when they went to 105 Harper Avenue, the apartment house from which the trunk containing the body supposedly was shipped, they again called in Pfister to move their furniture.

"If any one asks you where we live now don't tell them," said Leroy when he was paying the cartage bill, Pfister told the police.

Mrs. Pfister said she recognized the clothing in the trunk. She said she knew particularly well the woman's brown coat with fur collar having worn it once herself.

Tatum Surrenders.

Tatum, whose name appears on the shipping bills of the murder trunk, surrendered to the police of Birmingham.

Tatum, a linotype operator, walked into Birmingham Police Headquarters Saturday and told detectives he believed the woman whose mutilated body was found in the trunk shipped from Detroit June 10 and found in New York last Friday morning was Katherine Jackson, originally of Starkeville, Miss.

He denied emphatically that he had anything to do with the crime, admitting knowing Eugene Leroy, who, he said, was a mechanical engineer with some automobile company, and told of visits made him at the Park Hotel, this city, by the Jackson woman. She went at times by the name of Katherine Dixon, according to Tatum.

Tatum said he could not explain the use of his name on the shipping bills, but believed it was done to divert suspicion from the real murderer by offering a false lead.

His acquaintance with the Jackson woman began in Birmingham in June, 1919. Two months later she went to Nashville, Tenn. He corresponded with her. In October she came to Detroit, and wrote him from this city on stationery of the Interurban Hotel. She asked for money, and Tatum says he sent her some.

Gives Police Woman's Letters.

The Interurban Hotel records Sunday disclosed a Katherine Jackson of Nashville registering on the afternoon of Oct. 30, 1919. She was assigned to Room 114. The length of her stay could not be learned with definiteness, but Room 114 showed no change on the register for two weeks or more.

Tatum says he did not hear from the Jackson woman again until April of this year, when, he says, she invited him to Detroit. He arrived in May, registering at the Park Hotel on the 5th. Not having her address, he wrote her in care of general delivery. She called on him at the Park, accompanied by a Mrs. Trumbull, according to Tatum. It was in Detroit, he said, he first learned she was married. She said something about medical treatment she was receiving at the offices of the Detroit Board of Health, Tatum said.

He turned over to the Birmingham authorities several letters, said to have been written by the Jackson woman to Tatum, in which she calls him "Daddy," and uses endearing language. She was a brunette and 19 or 20 years old, Tatum says.

Offers to Return to Detroit.

Tatum said he never visited the apartment house at 105 Harper Avenue, from which the murder trunk apparently was sent; that he never met S. E. G. Brooks, manager of the building; that he was willing to return to Detroit to face Mrs. Brooks or any one else, and that he had heard nothing of the Jackson woman after June 4 or 5. Tatum says he left Detroit for Birmingham June 28.

Nothing was said in dispatches of the nature of the sickness for which the Jackson woman was receiving treatment at the Board of Health, and access to the Department's records could not be had Sunday.

Detroit and New York police are now hunting for a man of medium build, dark complexion and shiny black hair. The man wanted also wears sporty clothes and is frequently in the company of women.

The police advance the theory that if the trunk forwarded to Detroit by a New York expressman was one of the two which Mrs. Brooks says she saw going out from the "Leroy" apartment in June, it is possible that the second trunk contained the heart, lungs and other parts of the body and likely was shipped to some other fictitious address where it is lying unclaimed. They are trying to locate it.

An angle presented by the suspicion that the murdered women might be Katherine Dan, 20 years old, of Cannonsburg, Pa., who disappeared some time ago, lost importance when the police of Washington, Pa., learned that Miss Dan's relatives had received a letter from her several days after the murder trunk reached New York.

STARKVILLE, Miss., July 25.—No one could be found here tonight who recalls any woman named Katherine Jackson, residing at or near this place, this name being that of a woman Allen Tatum of Birmingham, Ala., is quoted in press dispatches as believing to be the murdered woman whose body was found in a trunk shipped from Detroit to New York.

NO CHARGE AGAINST TATUM.

Fearing Vengeance by "Leroy," However, He Stays in Jail.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 25.—Expressing fear that "E. Leroy," whom he named in his statements to police here in connection with the investigation of the Detroit-New York trunk murder mystery, might take vengeance on him, Allen A. Tatum, a linotype operator of Birmingham, continued to remain at Police Headquarters here tonight. No charge has been placed against Tatum, and although he has been at liberty to leave headquarters he has remained there since relating him story yesterday afternoon.

Tatum repeated today his assertions that he believed the murdered woman to be Katherine Jackson of Starkville, Miss., but again denied any knowledge of how she met her death.

Tatum is quoted as having told the police that he last saw the Jackson woman about June 4 or 5 in Detroit. He had heard she was ill, he said, and as she had repeatedly told him her husband was jealous of her he decided it was advisable for him to return to Birmingham. Tatum said he had known the woman in this city before she went to Detroit and that he had gone there to see her at her invitation and had lent her sums of money.

Tatum, according to the police, said he saw the Jackson woman several times and was told by her that she had married a man by the name of "E. Leroy."

Tatum is quoted as saying he never met Leroy and as expressing an opinion that the latter must have heard of his attentions to his wife, killed her and shipped the trunk to "A. A. Tatum" to get revenge.

The police questioned Tatum at length as to his assertion that after coming here he received a letter from the woman bearing a Detroit postmark of June 26. The police pointed out that if such were a fact the woman could not have been Katherine Jackson, as the labels on the trunk containing the body showed that it was expressed from Detroit to New York June 10.

Birmingham police tonight were awaiting instructions from Detroit and New York police before taking any action in the case.

SEES CHECK AS CLUE IN TRUNK MYSTERY

Expressman Tells of Dealings with O. J. Fernandez, Whom He Knew Also as O. J. Woods.

In the solution of the mystery that grew out of the discovery here last Friday of the mutilated body of an unidentified young woman in a trunk, a canceled check for $6.78 which Andrew J. Branic, expressman, of 212 West Thirty-fifth Street showed newspaper men yesterday may play an important part.

Branic exhibited it as evidence to support his circumstantial story, which indicates that the man who shipped the trunk from Detroit on June 10 either was a man he had known since October, 1918, as O. J. Fernandez, or was some one who knew Fernandez intimately.

The country-wide search for Fernandez and his friend, Joseph Yanez, continued without results so far as could be learned here. For although the police never would have heard Branic's story if Branic had not read the accounts in newspapers, the police continued to refuse information to newspaper men. When asked if a general alarm had been sent out for Fernandez and Yanez the police replied that they would divulge nothing that "might help a guilty person to escape."

As it is, whoever did ship the trunk has had since June 11, at the least, to escape. And of course there was plenty of time to sail for a foreign port.

Branic Elaborates His Theory.

In connection with the check, Branic amplified his tale, already told the police, on which he bases his conviction of the identity of the consigner of the death trunk. He has no doubt himself that the "E. Le Roy" who left the apartment house at 105 Harper Avenue, Detroit, about the middle of June, saying that he was going to join his wife (who hadn't been seen to leave) was the same "E. Le Roy" whose indorsement appears on the back of the check.

It will be recalled that the trunk, which arrived here June 13, purported to come from "A. A. Tatum, 105 Harper Avenue, Detroit," and that a few days later Branic received a letter dated Detroit, June 11, the day after shipment, and signed "A. A. Tatum," asking him to call for the trunk and hold it until called for.

Branic said yesterday that he couldn't understand why he didn't get the trunk, unless it was his extreme good fortune. He went twice to the "On hand" department of the American Railway Express Company's warehouse, 228 East Forty-fourth Street, where the gruesome contents finally were discovered, but was told that there was no such article of baggage. Nevertheless, express company records show the trunk was removed to the "On hand" department on June 17, four days after its arrival.

Initials on Trunk Changed.

The check, upon which so much importance now is placed, was drawn on the Pennsylvania station branch of the Corn Exchange Bank by Branic, payable to "E. Le Roy," and bears the indorsement "E. Le Roy" in a large, studied hand, with many flourishes. Beneath the signature is the stamp of the Detroit Y. M. C. A., where it was cashed.

"This man was known to me as O. J. Fernandez until last Summer," Branic said, "when Joseph Yanez came to me and said that Fernandez had been arrested under the name of 'O. J. Woods' in connection with the death of somebody in an auto accident between Coney Island and New York.

"On July 10 last year Fernandez left with me a fine, big wardrobe trunk on which he had had stenciled the initials 'O. J. W.' He borrowed $20 from me at the same time to help him out of the auto scrape and to get him out of New York.

"That Fall he went first to Toledo, and then to Detroit. During that time he sent back to me $10 of the $20. I got a letter from him in Detroit on Dec. 25. On Jan. 7 this year he wrote asking me to send him the trunk in care of the Y. M. C. A. in Detroit. In the letter he instructed me to have the initials 'O. J. W.' erased, and to address the trunk to 'E. Le Roy.' He inclosed a check for $25, and told me to return any change due, after deducting the express charges for the trunk, storage charges and the $10 he still owed me from the $20 loan.

"I sent the trunk as directed, and also this check for $6.78. See, it is dated Jan. 7. Some days later I received a letter from him asking why I hadn't sent the trunk and check. Meanwhile the check had been returned by the Detroit Y. M. C. A. as 'not called for.'

"I mailed the check to him again, and told him about its being returned. This time he called for it, and got both the letter and the trunk. I received the canceled check through my bank, stamped Feb. 16 and 17.

"If I had gotten that trunk and had stored it in my warehouse, which is under my home, you can imagine the fix I would be in now," Branic continued. "I would never have gotten over it. I don't know why, because of my kindness, I should have been used to help cloak a horrible crime, as this appears to be."

Branic is eager to do everything in his power to help identify the body and discover the murderer or murderers. He amplified further his description of Fernandez, or Woods, by saying that he and Yanez both spoke English well, but with a slight accent, and that they usually spoke Spanish to each other. He said the assertion of Mrs. E. B. Brooks, manager of the Detroit apartment house, that "E. Le Roy" was a "nice man" bore out his conviction. He said that Fernandez was "polished, affable and agreeable," presented a most engaging appearance and boasted of his conquests with women.

"I heard both him and Yanez speak frequently of some city in South America," he said, "but I don't remember the name, or even the country. I have the strong opinion that both had been in this country for several years."

The expressman said he didn't believe the Allan A. Tatum of Birmingham, Ala., mentioned in the news dispatches, was the shipper of the trunk. He said he believed the real murderer had used the name "A. A. Tatum" to protect himself. The dispatches stated that detectives were checking up on stories told by the Birmingham Tatum, who is a linotype operator.

The fact that the man's blue coat found in the trunk was purchased of the Browning-Fearnside Company, in Platka, Fla., was definitely established yesterday, according to statements of the Detroit police.

A telegram was received at the morgue yesterday, dated Hyde Park, Mass., and signed "Annie Kincher," which said:

"Girl answering description of girl found in trunk from Detroit missing from Hyde Park since March last. Please advise where body can be seen. Answer at once to 327 Wood Avenue, Hyde Park, Mass."

Michael Rickard, superintendent of the morgue, replied that the body still is at the morgue, and may be seen by any one for the purpose of establishing identity.

Branic said he had never heard of Roy Millen, who was arrested in Chicago last night in connection with the murder.

"I know nothing of Roy Millen. I've never even heard of him," Branic said.

TRACE SUIT FOUND IN TRUNK.

Florida Clothing Firm Believes It Can Learn Purchaser's Name.

PALATKA, Fla., July 25.—Acting on information received here from police authorities in Detroit, employes at the Browning-Fearnside Clothing Company are carefully checking over suit sales during the last year in an effort to ascertain who purchased a cheviot suit of clothes found in the trunk with the body of a nude woman in a New York express office.

The local clothing firm believes that by a system of elimination it may be able to ascertain who purchased the suit if it was purchased within the last year. Each suit sold by this firm is recorded, the sleeve check being taken off and filed, usually with the name of the customer and his address, for future solicitation of business.

As the employes in the store are familiar with a very large percentage of the customers they believe that they will be able to reduce the number of possibilities down to a very small number of customers who can be investigated individually. If the suit was sent to a local hotel it can be easily traced.

Description Fits Georgia Girl.

MOULTRIE, Ga., July 25.—Mrs. J. C. Butler of Sale City, near here, today telegraphed New York police for a description of the body of the young woman found there in a trunk shipped from Detroit. Mrs. Butler said her telegram was actuated by a belief that the woman may have been her daughter. The description of the dead woman as contained in press dispatches, Mrs. Butler said, corresponds closely to that of her daughter, who, she asserted, left aldosta early in June and has not been heard from since. Mrs. Butler added that she had reason to believe her daughter went to Detroit.

PROGRESS KEYNOTE OF COX'S CAMPAIGN

Governor Preparing to Make It a Leading Issue in Fight for Presidency.

STANDS ON RECORD IN OHIO

Ex-Ambassador Gerard Declares Nominee's Progressive Principles Will Win the West.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, July 25.—The spirit of progress is to be the keynote of the fight which Governor Cox is to make for the Presidency. He is prepared to carry that message to the voters in every part of the country, and make it a big, if not the dominant, issue. He went to work today upon his address of acceptance of the nomination, and such was the spirit in which he took up the task.

Governor Cox is prepared to tell the voters of the Middle West and Far West that he stands for the principles which they hold dearest, and which he asserts Senator Harding does not in any sense represent.

He is prepared to point to his record in Ohio, where the initiative and referendum and other progressive doctrines have been adopted as representative of his views. Governor Cox asks the West to accept as the basis of what he will attempt to do, it sent to the White House, what he has done in Ohio, where he has been hailed as the friend of the labor interests and the plain citizen.

Former Ambassador Gerard, who is a specialist on European questions, had a long interview with Governor Cox today, and came away fully satisfied. He said the views of Governor Cox met his on every problem presented.

Gerard to "Go the Limit" for Cox.

"The West," said Mr. Gerard, "does not know Governor Cox. I did not know him myself until I talked with him today. You know I was a candidate myself. But after my talk with Governor Cox today I am ready to go the limit for him. I told him that I would go out on the stump and make speeches whenever and wherever he asked that I should make them, and that, so far as I was concerned, it was a finish fight for him.

"That's the impression Governor Cox made upon me. He told me that he didn't care about anything but the best interests and welfare of the United States and the people that lived in it, and that no other thought would guide him if he were elected. He said he was a man who had not had all the advantages that some others had, but that he wanted and intended to do everything that was in his power to make for the best interests of the nation.

"He said that nothing on earth could prevent him from adopting such a course in the event of his election; that he wanted nothing else but to serve, and that he understood that even as President he was just a plain American citizen and trying to work for the best interests of his people and help every citizen. That's the kind of talk I like, when it is backed up by the record of the man and by what he says he will do if he is elected—just try to do his level best and be a great President of the people."

"Cox will be a great President, if he is elected. Of that I am sure. He will make a President who will serve the people, who will try to do the best for them, and understand them, whether they come from the East or the West, the South or the North.

"I think I understand human nature. Cox impressed me as sincere. Therefore I am for him, and will fight with him to the end."

Mr. Gerard said he thought that progressive principles were the great issue of the campaign. He thought Harding would find little sympathy for the position which he took on the League of Nations; a position which would destroy it, because the people of the country were not of that mind and wanted to be a great power.

Stands for the League.

He felt also, Mr. Gerard said, after his talk with Governor Cox, "that the Governor realized just how the American people felt, that they wanted a League if the United States could be a dominant power, but did not want America to surrender one iota of its sovereignty."

"That's the way Governor Cox feels, and that's the way I feel," said Mr. Gerard. "We are in perfect accord. There can be no question that the people of the country are safe in following Governor Cox on the League issue, and that they are adopting the course consistent with the best interests of the nation—the doctrine of progress and industrial justice—by following the Cox banner.

"I want Governor Cox to go out into the West and campaign like the devil. If he follows that course, he is a winner. All he has to do to win is to show himself to the people of the West and talk the way he has talked to me. He will make a great President. He understands men and what they want and how they feel. All he has to do is to show his real value to the people and they will be converted heart and soul to his cause, just as I have been."

Governor Cox said he had no comment to make, except to say that he had not as yet met any Democrat with whom he was not in accord. He added, with a smile, that all Democrats he had met were progressive, as they followed his leadership and were in favor of his election, and he was sure that a great majority of the Republicans would feel the same way as soon as he told them why they should take such a view.

It was decided today that the Cox notification would be held on the Fair Grounds at Dayton and not at Trail's End, the Summer home of Cox, where the facilities are not sufficient to ac-

Notification Arrangements Completed.

DAYTON, Ohio, July 25 (Associated Press).—The notification of Governor Cox on Aug. 7 of his nomination for President were virtually completed today. The ceremonies on Aug. 7 are scheduled to begin about 1 P. M. with a parade of visiting delegations, to be reviewed by the candidate, who will deliver his address as soon as the preliminaries are concluded. A special amphitheatre is to be built at the Fair Grounds to supplement its grand stand, with facilities for special guests and the press.

Governor Cox has practically only five days for the preparation of his acceptance speech, and, except to see Senator Pomerene of Ohio tomorrow regarding continuing the Senate investigation of campaign expenditures, he purposes to deny himself to visitors until the speech is in type.

The Governor's work on his address will be broken next Friday for the "homecoming" celebration planned by Dayton citizens. It will be a non-partisan affair, with a parade by various organizations, supplemented by fireworks and other entertainments, with brief addresses by Governor Cox and Mayor Switzer.

Governor Cox indicated today that he might take no action regarding the request of P. P. Christensen, the Farmer-Labor Party's Presidential candidate, for aid in obtaining a pardon for Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist candidate. The Governor intimated that he regarded as improper any suggestion by him to President Wilson in the Debs case.

LAGUARDIA DEMANDS PROGRESSIVE IDEAS

Tells Saratoga Delegates People Insist Upon an Unequivocal Statement.

Fiorello H. LaGuardia, President of the Board of Aldermen and former Congressman, served notice upon the Republican delegates who will meet tomorrow at Saratoga to recommend candidates for the September primaries that if the State is to go Republican this Fall, a progressive platform must be adopted and candidates of the proper calibre chosen to run upon it. The people, he said, demand a clear, concise, unequivocal statement.

Mr. LaGuardia himself drew up several planks concerning New York City and submitted them to the consideration of the delegates. They follow:

"There should be a plank declaring for a thorough reorganization of the entire State Government. Our present system, with its 187 departments, bureaus and commissions, was created chiefly to make soft berths for incompetent followers of the handful of men who are in politics for the good of their pockets.

"The fee system should be abolished in every department where it is in force. Where fees are collected they should be turned in to the State Treasury. The taxpayers are mulcted of millions annually through this survival of the spoils system.

"The State Controller's office should be immediately reorganized and all litigation pertaining to the collection of taxes should be turned over to the Attorney General. The Attorney General should conduct all the legal work of the State through his salaried deputies. This also would effect a vast saving annually.

"A central purchasing power for the buying of all State supplies, this department to take care of State printing. It should be borne in mind that the State needs some printing, but that the chief purpose of the State is not to be so conducted as to serve as a feeder to any particular printing establishment whose stock is held by politicians.

"The State Architect, who draws a salary of $10,000 a year, should be required to give advice and suggestions when called upon by any county, city, town or village in the State without charging a fee.

"A pledge that the housing situation in the cities shall receive immediate and sincere consideration. Definite pledges to be given in detail how this situation will be met, such as bringing the control of housing under the direct supervision of the State as a public utility; specific and immediate relief against exorbitant rents.

"Proper legislation guaranteeing to the City of New York that no legislation will be passed incurring expenditure of city funds without the approval of at least twelve votes of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the City of New York.

"The traction situation must be solved. Action cannot be postponed any longer.

"Frank admission that the present federal prohibition enforcement laws have proved a failure. The corruption and the sale of vicious and poisonous liquor which it has created is incontrovertible proof of the failure of that law. The Volstead act has not only made this a nation of drinkers of poisonous whiskey, but has created a disrespect and disregard of law. The convention should therefore recommend to every candidate for Congress on the Republican ticket in this State a modification of the Volstead act so as to permit the people of the various cities and of each locality to declare for themselves through a State law the alcoholic content in wines and beers which they desire in accordance with the custom and habits of the people of their own locality."

WHITE TO MEET CUMMINGS.

Will Confer Here Wednesday When Former Begins Campaign Lead.

EDGARTOWN, Mass., July 25.—George White, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, arrived today from Ohio for a three days' visit with his family at their Summer home here in Martha's Vineyard.

He will assume active direction of the campaign on Wednesday when he will confer in New York with Homer S. Cummings, former Chairman. On Thursday he will meet the Democratic Congress Campaign Committee in Washington.

In a statement made tonight Mr. White said he would "enter the fight on Wednesday with the active and loyal support of all leaders and of the national committee." He read telegrams congratulating him upon his election to the chairmanship and pledging "wholehearted support" from Vance C. McCormick, National Chairman in 1916 and a leader of the Palmer forces at the San Francisco convention, and from Jouett Shouse, a McAdoo leader.

HARDING REACHING FOR FARMER VOTE

Evidence of a Concerted Effort to Corral It Before Tackling City Electorate.

CAPPER ATTACKS THE SOUTH

Candidate's Guest Holds It Responsible, with Wilson, for the High Price of Sugar.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, July 25.—The datebook of Senator Harding shows a number of conferences with prominent Republican farmers and, according to workers at the Harding headquarters, indicates that the Republican Presidential candidate is about to address himself to the farming vote. His first campaign utterance to an out of town delegation is set for next Saturday, when 1,500 farmers and business men from the vicinity of Mansfield will make a pilgrimage to the Senator's front porch. From the prominence he gave in his speech of acceptance to agricultural problems and the necessity for their solution, and his conferences today with Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas and Henry C. Williams of Des Moines, editor of Wallace's Farmer, the Harding people here predict that food production and distribution will play a part in the campaign second only to the referendum on the League of Nations.

The two weak points of Governor Cox, it is asserted by his political opponents here, are his unqualified acceptance of President Wilson's foreign policies and the fact that never during his four candidacies for the Governorship did he receive the general support of Ohio farmers. To back up the latter assertion, it is pointed out that several of Ohio agricultural counties, notably Mercer and Darke, which are overwhelmingly Democratic, have never given majorities to Cox. This, Senator Harding's advisers believe, will be the situation once the campaign begins in earnest in other rural communities throughout the country, and for that reason they are anxious to make the farming districts safe for the Republicans before invading the cities.

In order to reach the great farming districts of the Northwest and the Middle West, the indications here are that the Republicans will seek to emphasize alleged Democratic favoritism to Southern interests, together with attacks upon Democratic leaders of New York, New Jersey, Indiana and Illinois.

Capper on "Southern Control."

This was intimated today by Senator Capper, who spent the day with Senator and Mrs. Harding, in an interview with newspaper correspondents this afternoon.

"The farmers, and generally the people of the West, at least, are fast realizing why it is necessary that the Republican ticket be elected," he said. "They have learned how the nomination of Cox was brought about. They know that Cox was put under the heaviest obligations to the Democratic bosses of New York, New Jersey, Indiana and Illinois. They recognize that Cox's election would turn the Government over to the Solid South and the Democratic machines of the various Tammanyized States of the North. Governor Cox, in the eight years he has dominated Democratic politics in Ohio, has built a machine on the Tammany model. So we have in prospect, if he wins, the control of this country by the Southern Democracy, plus Charles Murphy of New York, Nugent of New Jersey, Taggart of Indiana and Brennan, who succeeded to Roger Sullivan's bosship of the Illinois Democracy.

"During the war and since we have seen what Southern control means. The Southern statemen were all for rigidly controlling and limiting the price of wheat, but solidly against interfering with the price of cotton. We know the results: A price was fixed for wheat that compelled the farmers to take far less than they would have got in an uncontrolled market. Cotton went to dizzying prices.

Charges Profiteering in Sugar.

"More recently we have seen the same thing in the case of sugar. I know no more complete demonstration of Democracy's administrative incompetency than in the story of sugar this year. Just about a year ago the Cuban sugar crop was offered to this Government at a price around 6 cents a pound. The Sugar Equalization Board, the Sugar Controller—everybody except President Wilson—strongly urged that it be bought. That would have insured ample supplies, and we would now be getting sugar at retail for 11 or 12 cents.

"The President would not permit the purchase of the Cuban crop. When we tried to pass legislation dealing with the subject last Winter, the Senators from Louisiana filibustered against it, because they wanted an open market for the small Louisiana crop of sugar. The State had only about 200,000 tons, or half its normal crop, and they forced the whole country to pay the present exorbitant prices in order that their drop in the bucket of national supply might be assured a high price. Attorney General Palmer joined them in the program that kept prices high—he seemed to be looking for Presidential support in that section. Look at the results:

"People are paying up to 30 cents for sugar and can't get it at that. Yet there is sugar enough in the country for all. It is held by the speculators in order to boost the price, and the American people will pay a round $1,000,000,000 more for sugar this year than they ought, simply because of this pitiful failure to handle the matter rightly. There never was a more clear or complete case.

"The responsibility rests primarily and chiefly with President Wilson—after him, with Palmer. The unconscionable speculation which became possible under their management of the business has permitted a few men to pile up hundreds of millions in profits which represent the most vicious profiteering that the whole war era developed in this or any other country.

That is the plain fact.

"That's the sort of thing that comes with Democratic effort to manage the country's business. The people are utterly disgusted with it all and determined to end it. They see what it has meant to have the South played as a favorite when its special products have to be dealt with. They know how the Northern and Western farmers have borne the burden of restrictions, while the cotton and sugar raisers of the South and the speculators have got away with profits beyond calculation.

"Let the country now be turned over to the combination of Southern selfishness and Northern political bossship that nominated Cox and we would have four years more of this sort of thing, only far worse. The Northern Tammanys would be intent on strengthening themselves with the view to perpetuating their control; their favorites would get the huge privileges and profits that would be inevitably with national control through the administration they made possible. Let me assure you that the people realize these conditions and are going to take no chance of turning the country over to four more years of this sort of domination."

Candidate at Methodist Church.

On account of the illness of the Rev. Thomas McAfee no services were held today at Trinity Baptist Church, of which Senator Harding is a trustee. Accordingly, Senator and Mrs. Harding, with Senator Capper, attended morning services at the Methodist Episcopal Church, where Bishop William F. Oldham, head of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Argentina, preached. Bishop Oldham was a substitute for Dr. McAfee at the notification ceremonies, pronouncing the invocation.

In the afternoon 250 members of the uniformed rank of the Knights of Pythias of Indiana, on their way to the annual convention of that order in Cleveland, stopped off at Marion to be reviewed by Senator Harding, who held an impromptu reception for the Knights and their families on his front porch. No speeches were made.

Among the congratulatory telegrams Senator Harding received today were the following:

New York, July 24.

I congratulate you heartily on the splendid reception your speech of acceptance has had through the entire North.

FRANK A. MUNSEY.

Oregon, Ill., July 24.

Heartiest congratulations upon your speech of acceptance. It is clear, forceful and patriotic.

FRANK O. LOWDEN.

"The American voters of Greek descent are 100 per cent. for Harding and Coolidge," declared Constantine C. Moustakis of Salem, Mass., who called on Senator Harding this morning with letters of introduction from Governor Coolidge and Senator Lodge.

Mr. Moustakis was accompanied by Captain W. C. MacBryne of Lowell, Mass., who is an honorary member of the League of Friends of Greece of this country.

Mr. Moustakis is one of the leading members of the organization, which represents the 600,000 Americans of Greek descent in this country. The object of their call was to tell Senator Harding how greatly they were pleased with the statement recently issued, asking Governor Cox's attitude on a number of questions of foreign policy, including the settlement of the Thracian problem. The Peace Conference had decided the Greeks assert, that Thrace should be given to Greece, but President Wilson interposed, and this settlement, they say, was made impossible because of his attitude.

SAYS LABOR DOWNED 15 FOES IN PRIMARY

DECLARES WAR IDEALS LIVE

"In Wanton Denial of This Nobility of Thought," He Says, "Hessians of Greed" Seek to Destroy Liberty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The August issue of The American Federationist, the official organ of the American Federation of Labor, will contain an editorial by Samuel Gompers, President of the Federation, in which he will call upon organized workers throughout the country to work for the defeat of candidates for Congress who are on the Federation's blacklist. Mr. Gompers says that the national non-partisan campaign which the American Federation of Labor is conducting is making great progress and has already obtained the defeat in primary elections of fifteen candidates hostile or unfriendly to labor.

The text of the editorial is in part as follows:

"The most virile movement in political life today is the national non-partisan campaign being conducted by the American Federation of Labor. Eloquent testimony to that effect is heard wherever the political situation is intelligently discussed. There is no mistaking the influence which is being exerted for the defeat of candidates who have shown themselves to be antagonistic to the best interests of the working people and to our citizenship generally.

"The records show that in the primary elections which have been held thus far the national non-partisan political organization of labor has played a decisive part in more than fifteen contests. In that many districts those who have been hostile or unfriendly have been defeated. A number of primary elections remain to be held and in these there is certain to be additional achievement for the welfare of our people.

"Politicians who fear retribution at the hands of an outraged electorate have made the charge that labor in some cases has abandoned its non-partisanship. There is no labor vote to be delivered and there is no labor partisanship to any political party. There is, however, a vote of working men and women and of those citizens generally who are forward-looking and who are determined to guard the principles of freedom and justice, who will vote more unitedly than ever before for the retirement of those who have betrayed the trust placed in them and for the election of those whose principles and records indicate that they may be trusted to uphold the rights of the people in public office.

"It will be noted that in this issue of the American Federationist the platform planks on labor's proposals are published as they appear in the Democratic and Republican platforms, together with the comment of labor thereon. The intelligence of the American people will lead them to determine which platform more nearly conforms to their desires and which expresses more nearly their ideals and aspirations toward freedom, justice and democracy.

"The forces of greed and plunder, the profiteers and the autocrats of our political and industrial life leave no doubt as to what they desire and where they will mass their support.

"The challenge of these forces to the citizenship of the nation is brazen and blunt. That the right thinking men and women of our Republic can afford to allow this challenge to reap a harvest of political power in the coming election is unthinkable. More than in any political contest since the days of the civil war the issue is clearly drawn between reaction and progress. The wish of the enemies of labor and of the people generally is not merely to stand pat for what is; it is to go back to what was.

"Against this concept of darkness the people must mass themselves solidly and invincibly for progress. There burns in the hearts of the American people a great and noble ideal. The spirit that made of our war a great crusade and that made of our wonderful army a host of crusaders sworn to fidelity to human rights and human freedom lives in everything that is truly American and demands expression in the acts of our public representatives and of our Government.

"In wanton denial of this nobility of thought and concept the Hessians of greed and plunder seek to ride down the rights of the people and destroy their liberties."

COOLIDGE FINISHES SPEECH

Governor Goes to Northampton to Receive Notification of Nomination.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., July 25.—Governor Coolidge arrived at his home tonight, to remain until after Tuesday, when he will be officially notified of his nomination by the Republican Party for the Vice Presidency. Mrs. Coolidge and her two boys returned last night from Plymouth, Vt.

The Governor made the trip from Boston by automobile, accompanied by his secretary, Henry F. Long. He did not complete his address accepting the nomination until today.

ROOSEVELT DOWN EAST.

Will Spend Short Time on Campobello Island Before His Notification.

EASTPORT, Me., July 25.—Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for Vice President, arrived tonight at his Summer home on Campobello Island, just across the line in the Province of New Brunswick.

Leaving the destroyer Hatfield, on which he came from Boston, he was landed in a launch at the foot of the lawn in front of his cottage.

Mr. Roosevelt plans to spend a few days with his family before the ceremony of notifying him of his nomination.

HARDING STAND ACCLAIMED.

Public Works Association Pleased with Acceptance Speech.

Indorsement of the movement to reorganize departments and bureaus at Washington by Senator Harding in his speech of acceptance was characterized yesterday as another step forward in the interest of national economy by Adolph Lewisohn, Chairman of the New York Committee of the National Public Works Department Association. A statement issued by Mr. Lewisohn and Frederick Channing, Vice Chairman of the committee, said that in the last week many members of Congress had assured the association of their sympathy with the Jones-Reavis bill, which aims to make over the Department of the Interior by the establishment of a National Department of Public Works. The statement asserts that functional reorganization of the executive machinery is necessary to the elimination of waste and inefficiency and to the proper operation of a budget system. It continues:

"If it were possible for the National Public Works Association to take part in an audit of the nine Federal departments now performing public works functions and make a business survey of the results, it would be relatively easy to substantiate by definite figures all the claims made by advocates of governmental reform as to waste and inefficiency.

"This statement should not be construed as a reflection on the integrity or the good intent of the devoted men who conduct the Government's public works business. Hundreds of them acknowledge all the abuses which this association was formed to correct. They would, if permitted, do much to correct the manifest evils, but as these are inherent in the laws which they are sworn to uphold they are as helpless as is the great body of Americans who advocate the passage of the Jones-Reavis bill. Only Congress can remedy the basic conditions which are the real cause of the nation's fiscal perplexity.

"Senator Harding has gratified and encouraged the patriotic men and women who, by working for a business organization at Washington to take the place of the loose structure of departments, bureaus and other overlapping agencies, are striving to attain a better social order. The association hopes for at least as much from the Democrats."

ANDERSON'S FINAL ADVICE.

Tells Republicans to "Keep on Water Wagon" if They Want to Win.

As a final piece of "friendly advice" before the Republican unofficial convention meets at Saratoga tomorrow, the Anti-Saloon League, through its Superintendent, William H. Anderson, sent an open letter to the delegates yesterday advising them to "keep on the water wagon" if they expect to elect a Republican Governor this Fall. With the advice went the announcement that Mrs. Ella A. Boole, State President of the W. C. T. U., had accepted the nomination of the Prohibition Party for the United States Senate, and that the Anti-Saloon League therefore will not make a primary fight against Senator James W. Wadsworth. The announcent read, in part:

"The Anti-Saloon League will now refuse to enter into any primary fight against Mr. Wadsworth or support in the primary any candidate no matter what profession he makes. The league refuses to 'fall' for the really very clever trick of the wet bosses to lead the opposition to Wadsworth into a fake, frame-up, alleged 'primary contest' with which neither the friends of suffrage nor prohibition had anything to do.

"Incidentally, however, as a running start for the election campaign, by showing Republican revolt against Wadsworth, the Anti-Saloon League will advocate that anti-Wadsworth Republicans everywhere write Mrs. Boole's name into the primary ballots, the benefits of which will be obvious, without involving any of the burdens incident to a primary contest."

INDORSE FUSION PLAN TO BEAT SOCIALISTS

Governors of Four States and Many Party Leaders Join Security League Movement.

4 OUT FOR CONGRESS HERE

Better Defeat Men at Polls Than Eject Them After Election, West Virginia Executive Says.

Public officials and leading citizens in all parts of the country have indorsed the appeal of the National Security League to voters to demand fusion candidates in Congressional districts where there is a danger of the election of Socialist nominees this Fall, according to a statement issued yesterday by this organization. The League directed its appeal particularly to voters of the Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Twentieth districts in New York where the Socialists already have made their nominations, the nominees being Meyer London, Charles W. Irwin, Algernon Lee and Morris Hillquit.

In a letter expressing approval of the fusion idea, Governor Cornwell of West Virginia, wrote that such a step was a saner policy than to elect men from office after they had been elected. Attorney-General Stansbury of Indiana said he believed in political parties, but thought the Socialist party was nothing but "a band of trouble makers in politics, and the less we had of them in this country the better."

Opposed to Class Rule.

William B. Joyce, President of the National Surety Company, wrote:

"This great country of ours must not be ruled by any single class of people—it must be ruled by all classes. We have seen elsewhere how much destruction can be done to a good people by the misrule of a certain minority class. We want none of that here."

City Manager Harrison of Muskogee, Okla., declared that Socialism was a deadly menace and should be combatted with every right method. Governor Russell of Mississippi, Governor Boyle of Nevada and Governor McKelvie of Nebraska, have given the League permission to use their names in support of the plan. Among the New York men who have indorsed the appeal are former U. S. District Attorney Henry A. Wise, Alexander J. Hemphill, chairman of the Board of the Guaranty Trust Company, W. M. K. Olcott and Jules S. Bache.

Charles D. Orth, President of the National Security League, explained the league's position thus:

"In 1918 the National Security League suggested fusion to the leaders of the two historic parties in New York City to prevent the election of Socialists to Congress. As a result every Socialist candidate was defeated. This action by the league was taken while we were at war, when the shortest cut to the desired end had to be used. Now, however, the league prefers to present the facts to the electorate in the belief that the patriotic and national-spirited men and women in these districts will take the necessary public action to convince the party leaders of their duty and of the demands of public opinion.

Appeals to Electrate.

"The fact that at the next election a President is to be chosen will tend to make the party leaders much more wary about uniting against a common enemy than they were in 1918, when the question of fusion was a direct and simple one, unaffected by the complications of collateral politics. This danger constitutes a further reason for the prompt and emphatic action of the good citizens in the districts which are involved.

"There is no longer any question about the status and objects of the Socialist Party. It is international and not national. It is destructive and not constructive. It does not stand, as should all political parties, for all the people, but is a class party. Its tenets and principles were conceived in hate and envy. They are nourished the same way.

"Such of our foreign-born as are included by the Socialists in their unpleasant designation, proletariat, live here in comfort and plenty compared with their previous condition. They also live in security and cleanliness compared with tyranny and unhygienic conditions. Here they can rise to any distinction for which God gave them the capacity. Yet the Socialist Party has the impudence and effrontery to come to this country and cry for the adoption of the fantastic, maudlin and impracticable principles with which its doctrinaires have befuddled its members' minds. The National Security League appeals to the good citizenship majority of the electorate in the threatened districts to stand for the maintenance of the Constitution and of American principles and ideals."

PLAN LAST RITES OF DIRECT PRIMARY

Insist on Entering Primaries.

Of the candidates already in the field for the gubernatorial nomination Speaker Thaddeus E. Sweet of the Assembly is the only one who so far has declared that he is prepared to abide by the action of the convention. Francis M. Hugo, Secretary of State, tonight reiterated that regardless of what the convention did, he would enter the primaries. A statement indicating similar intent was issued by Elon H. Hooker, another gubernatorial aspirant.

State Senator Thompson arrived tonight earlier than he had been expected. He is a delegate and said his chief interest was in what the convention would do with regard to platforms. "As far as I am concerned, the convention can go ahead and designate candidates," said the Senator. "It will serve any personal ends that I may seek to attain better than any other course the convention could pursue. I think it is a bad thing for the party, however, and for that reason would prefer to have them leave the selection of candidates to the voters at the primaries as the law contemplates they should."

He said he intended to make a finish fight in the primaries. "No matter how strongly Judge Miller may be indorsed by this convention he will have a rough and tumble fight on his hands," continued the Senator. "In the event of his defeat he will not be worth $75,000 a year to the people who employ him at present."

The Senator said he understood the tentative platform would embody a plank calling for the repeal of the direct primaries law.

"I shall oppose that plank before the Resolutions Committee, and if it remains in the platform shall appeal to the Republican voters at the primaries," he added.

A definite announcement was made tonight that ex-Judge Nathan L. Miller of the Court of Appeals, who appears to be the probable choice of the convention for Gubernatorial designation, will not come to Saratoga while the convention is in progress. Ex-Judge Miller is spending the Summer at Bretton Woods, N. H.

Secretary Hugo said he would have more delegates in the convention than any other candidate whose name had been before the people so far. According to one of Mr. Hugo's friends he expects the delegates from Jefferson, his home county, Suffolk, Schenectady, Madison and Queens with 90 votes to support him as a unit. He expects support also from delegations sent by Nassau, Herkimer, Montgomery and Otsego counties and a large scattering of votes from other parts of the State.

Predicts Republican Victory.

Elon H. Hooker came in today from a tour of the State, in which he has visited almost every county. He said that unless the convention committed some blunder Republican victory was assured.

"A tactical mistake in this or any other pivotal State" by the leaders, he said, might make impossible the election of the national ticket.

Wadsworth Still Undecided.

Senator Sage's candidacy for the Governorship will be supported by William B. Barnes.

"I hope the convention will recommend Senator Sage, because beyond all question he is the best qualified man both in experience and character," said Mr. Barnes.

It is understood, however, that the leaders generally after listening to Mr. Barnes gave him no encouragement. "The Barnes brand would kill him," is the general verdict.

Today has seen a great influx of prominent Republicans, among them being George W. Aldridge of Monroe, William L. Ward of Westchester, Samuel S. Koenig of New York, ex-Governor Horace White of Onondaga County and ex-Congressman William H. Hill of Broome. The bulk of the delegation is expected on early trains tomorrow. Fred Greiner of Erie, said to be practically the only leader of first prominence opposed to recommendation of candidates, is due tomorrow.

Mr. Ward came from Bretton Woods, where he had been in daily contact with ex-Judge Miller.

So far there is nothing to indicate that the convention will fall short of recommending a ticket or to discourage the belief that the organization will have power enough to put Judge Miller across. Arriving leaders and delegates testify to strong sentiment throughout the State for his nomination. Ex-Congressman Hill told of a meeting in Binghamton yesterday at which delegates from Broome, Chenango, Cortland, Chemung, Schuyler, Tioga and Tompkins counties has voted as a unit to cast their votes for Judge Miller if he should be a candidate. Those attending the meeting represented 71 votes.

Senator James W. Wadsworth arrived today and expects to remain throughout the convention, although he is not a delegate. He said he had not reached a decision as to whether he ought to ask the convention not to indorse his candidacy or that of any other aspirant for the United States Senatorship. Senator Wadsworth has been strongly urged to address the convention at the proper minute in the hope that his winning personality and admitted eloquence may result in allaying opposition among the Republican women who form practically the only stumbling block in his way. The Senator spent some hours today in conference with Chairman Glynn of the State Committee, Executive Chairman Sneil, William B. Barnes and other leaders.

"I will know what to do only after conferring with a number of my friends, who will help me to reach a decision," said the Senator this evening.

It is expected that Dr. David Jayne Hill, who has been selected as temporary Chairman to deliver the keynote speech, will be here tomorrow, as will Colonel William Hayward, who will wield the gavel as permanent Chairman.

New York Women Oppose Slate.

The attitude of women delegates to the unofficial Republican State Convention in opposition to the designation or "recommendation" of a list of candidates is causing some concern to the leaders, who apparently will have the necessary votes to put a slate through. Opposition to the naming of a slate is said to be particularly strong among women delegates from New York City, and is not confined to those opposed to the renomination of United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., because of his previous votes against Woman Suffrage.

The organization women, in New York City at least, are reported to look with dissatisfaction on the designation program largely because of their desire to participate directly in the nomination of candidates for State offices and for United States Senator by voting at the primary election unhampered by any list stamped as the choice of the organization. Nearly all the women delegates now expected to acquiesce in any action the Convention may take, but some way is being sought to make less irksome the chains it is proposed to place upon them.

Expect Women To Be "Regulars."

Miss Helen Varick Boswell, Chairman of the women's division of the New York County Committee, one of the first of the women delegates to arrive, stated today that she was opposed personally to the designation of candidates by the convention.

"Of course I am a regular organization Republican," said Miss Boswell, "and I will abide cheerfully by any action of the convention. I also prefer the convention system of nominations to the direct primary.

"But the direct primary is the method prescribed by law, and it seems to me only fair to let the candidates who have become candidates under this law fight it out in the primary. I believe that most of the women delegates from New York City feel the same way."

Miss Boswell was asked if any number of women delegates would stand out firmly against designations.

"Oh, no," she replied. "Most of the women delegates are members of the organization and will accept the decision of the majority. There are a few delegates, like Miss Mary Garrett Hay, but only a few, who may take a more extreme stand."

The women's fight against the renomination of Senator Wadsworth will begin with the arrival of Miss Hay, who is expected tomorrow. Miss Hay will undoubtedly present the resolutions adopted by the League of Women Voters at a meeting in New York City on Friday, urging the convention not to recommend the renomination of Senator Wadsworth.

Wadsworth's Wishes Not Known.

Whether Senator Wadsworth may seek to avoid such a fight against him here by requesting the convention not to indorse him for renomination remains to be determined. He has not given any definite word that he does not wish an endorsement. The view of many of his friends is that it would be illogical for the convention to recommend a list of candidates for Governor and other State offices and fail to take any action on United States Senator. The indorsement of Senator Wadsworth was said to be certain unless he expressly requested that it should not be made.

Most of his friends favor his indorsement. There is a good deal of bitterness among them against his suffragist opponents and small desire to go any distance to placate them, even though it might be good politics to do it. It was recalled today that two years ago a group of militant suffragists flung an anti-Wadsworth banner from the gallery of the convention hall and distributed anti-Wadsworth literature from a booth erected on the veranda of the United States Hotel. Steps have been taken by those in authority to prevent a repetition of such incidents.

None of the leaders now here knows just how far the suffrage opponents of the Senator intend to go. Some sort of a contest is expected and, although it is not likely to influence any considerable number of delegates, it may leave a bad feeling in a minority. Despite the general desire for harmony, there is no indication that the leaders and delegates now here will be willing to concede much to the foes of Wadsworth.

Minor Candidates Active.

While no decision on candidates for minor places on the ticket is expected until the fight on the Governorship is out of the way, the friends of a number of aspirants are already active.

State Senator Charles A. Walton of Ulster County is the leading candidate for Lieutenant Governor, and seems likely to receive the "recommendation" for the nomination. Albert Ottinger of New York County, former State Senator, is also a candidate for this place.

John J. Lyons, Deputy State Controller, is another New York County candidate for a place, either as Secretary of State or Controller.

James A. Wendell, Deputy State Controller, has strong backing for the Controllership, and State Senators Charles C. Lockwood and A. W. Burlingame, Jr., of Brooklyn are his rivals, the former being backed by United States Senator Calder and the latter by Jacob A. Livingston, the Kings County leader. The belief is that neither will be indorsed unless the other withdraws, or that a compromise candidate must be presented by the Brooklyn group.

Thomas W. Whittle of the Bronx is a candidate for Secretary of State, as is Michael Regan, another Bronx district leader. State Senator N. Monroe Marshall of Franklin County and Assemblyman John P. Donahue of Putnam County are the leading candidates for State Treasurer. Jay Parrier of Madison County announced his candidacy for this office late today.

Both Attorney General Newton and State Engineer Williams will be reindorsed. Attorney General Newton has served only one term and Mr. Williams's expert qualifications are considered to qualify him for another term.

William Halpin of New York City arrived tonight, bringing with him the boom of George Henry Payne, Tax Commissioner, for the "recommendation" for United States Senator. Mr. Halpin announced that Mr. Payne would not be a candidate for designation by the convention but would make his fight in the primaries. Payne headquarters have been opened in the United States Hotel.

"I am against designation of candidates by the convention, both as a matter of expedience and as a matter of principle," said Mr. Halpin. "Mr. Payne will enter the primaries as a candidate, and we expect him to win."

BRIDGEPORT WAITS DAY WITH NO CARS

Service Stopped Indefinitely by Connecticut Lines Fighting Jitneys There.

CRY "STRIKE AGAINST CITY"

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, July 25.—Two hundred additional jitney buses arrived in Bridgeport from New York tonight to be used in coping with the transportation problem Monday morning, when Bridgeport expected to find itself a "trolleyless" city. The suspension of all trolley service on the Bridgeport lines, including the suburban lines to New Haven, Norwalk, Derby and other surrounding cities, was effective at midnight.

President Lucius S. Stores of the Connecticut company said that not a wheel would turn on the Bridgeport trolley system "until jitney bus competion has been removed."

A tie-up for an indefinite period was believed certain to result, as the Superior Court has ruled that the city ordinance prohibiting jitney buses from the streets is void.

It was announced that police would be held in reserve at the various precincts throughout the city to put down any disorder which may arise during the rush hours on Monday, both morning and evening, when thousands of workers will have to walk to the factories if they are unable to obtain seats on the jitney buses.

The Police Commissioners met last night and appointed a number of officials of the Jitney Bus Men's Association to act as special policemen. Vested with police authority these men will regulate the jitneys on the different runs, and will arrest any drivers who do not abide by the traffic rules relative to completing their full run.

Harry Frank and George Bevans, President and Vice President of the Park City Bus Association, and John Schwartz, President of the Bridgeport Bus Association, said tonight that they looked for no trouble in dealing with the situation.

"In Bridgeport right now 225 jitney buses have been carrying three-fifths of the traveling public," said President Schwartz.

"With the addition of the 200 additional buses we will be able to carry all the people who formerly used the trolley cars.

"I consider the present situation a 'strike' against the people of the city of Bridgeport," said Schwartz, "and not against the jitneys, and we are going to give our best efforts to protect the people of Bridgeport so they will not have to walk to their work or pay exorbitant rates of fare.

"No one need worry about transportation Monday, for every line on which the trolleys have heretofore operated will be travelled by regularly scheduled jitneys. Fourteen new men have been engaged to act as inspectors and starters to see that all the jitney men stick to their respective lines, and no outside assistance from individuals is necessary. We have our own men here from our own organization to assist us in our trouble.

"The plaza will be packed with jitneys at 2 o'clock Monday morning, and we will see to it meanwhile that all the men are in bed early this Sunday night, in order that they will be fresh and ready for duty at 5 o'clock Monday morning."

Those concerned with the trolleys hitherto had other views of the tie-up. One such was expressed tonight by President John Hurley of the local trolley men's union.

"I am glad, in one way, the cars have ceased operations," he said, "as I feel positive it will prove to Bridgeport people that the jitneys are incapable of handling the situation in its entirety.

"I would be glad even to sacrifice a month's salary to test the situation out, so sure am I that the jitneys will fail to handle adequately the transportation situation."

Citizens of Bridgepot, being all directly affected by the suspension of trolley service, were keenly interested in tomorrow's showing by the jitney men, whose request to the public to "co-operate" in temporary handling of crowds seemed to meet with a general response of approval.

AIM TO STOP OXYGEN WASTE

Harvard Scientists Plan to Utilize It for Industries.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 25. — The first research group in the world to study the manufacture of oxygen, from the point of view of the engineer is beginning work at the Harvard Engineering School under the direction of Professor Harvey N. Davis. The study is made possible by a gift to Harvard of $5,000 from the Research Corporation, founded through the efforts of Dr. Frederick G. Cottrell of California, now Director of the United States Bureau of Mines.

Believing that there may be immense possibilities for the industrial use of oxygen in blast furnaces and elsewhere if waste can be eliminated, Professor Davis and his associates expect to put the designing of oxygen plants on an engineering basis, so that one can estimate their efficiency as definitely as that of a steam engine.

GOV. LOWDEN URGES MINERS TO RETURN

Blames Situation on Car Shortage and Says Efforts Are Being Made to Bring Relief.

MEN AND OWNERS TO MEET

Frank Farington Predicts Some of the Few Mines Open Saturday Will Be Closed Today.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Governor Frank O. Lowden met representatives of the Illinois coal operators in a three-hour conference today. The meeting was also attended by James H. Wilkerson, Chairman of the Public Utilities Commission. The conference, it was said, was merely for the purpose of giving the Governor the full facts in connection with the present crisis.

After the meeting the Governor issued a formal statement urging the striking coal workers to return to their jobs and pledging the aid of every state agency in relieving their condition.

"The coal situation is critical," the Governor's statement said. "The primary cause is to be found in the car shortage. It appears that in some fields the mines have been able to work but two days a week. Though the wages fixed by the award made by the President's commission last March seem large, the weekly income is anything but large.

"These men now feel that this inequality should be corrected, especially in view of the fact that they are employed so small a part of the time. Whatever the merits, however, of this claim, it is perfectly clear that they have gone the wrong way about it to correct this inequality.

"A contract was made covering a period of two years. If the men who were parties to that contract now attempt to modify it by striking the very principle of collective bargaining is assailed.

"I note in today's paper that the miners' officials in Illinois have ordered the striking men back to work. I sincerely hope that the men will fully and cheerfully obey this order, in that way they can best serve their organization and the public.

"The State authorities, in co-operation with the Federal authorities, are doing everything in their power to restore the car supply to normal, and it is hoped and believed that means of relief for that purpose will be found.

"If this can be done one of the most serious factors in the disturbed situation will be removed."

Frank Farrington, President of the Illinois Mine Workers, said today that some of the few shafts which hoisted coal yesterday will be shut down tomorrow. He would not discuss when coal digging will be resumed. He and other union officials are waiting upon the operators, and they in turn want to talk to Governor Lowden before reentering the joint conference with the miners. W. J. Walsh, one of the three Government conciliators, has not arrived, but is expected tomorrow morning. J. B. Lennon will return also tomorrow morning, and W. H. Rodgers who is on the ground, wants to consult with his associates before announcing plans. Certain union officials and operators have been asked whether they will be in Springfield to-morrow. They will, so a public hearing in the court house can be begun, if that is the decision of the conciliators.

Farrington is prepared to show the conciliators that the cost of living in five mining towns of Illinois has gone up an average of 143 per cent from 1913 to last January. Farrington asserts the average yearly earnings of miners in Illinois districts have been: 1913-14, $704.68; 1914-15, $649.82; 1915-16, $671.76; 1916-17, $775.09; 1917-18, $944.65 and 1918-19, $1,290.38.

Because of the switchmen's strike and the lack of cars it is contended that the Illinois mines have not been operating at normal since Jan. 1, and that the earnings of miners have been cut accordingly.

COAL PRIORITY ORDER MAY MEAN EMBARGO

If Tidewater Shipments Are Limited to New England, as Forecast, it Would Prevent Exports.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The Government will take definite steps tomorrow in an effort to straighten out a muddled coal situation. The Interstate Commerce Commission will issue an order tomorrow for priority of movement in the transportation of coal to New England. The order is expected to include a prohibition against any movement of coal to tidewater unless consigned to New England. This, in the view of coal experts, will amount to an embargo on the exportation of coal.

Under an order recently issued by the Commission, more than a score of railroads serving bituminous mines in Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee will begin to move coal to lake ports for trans-shipment to the Northwest. The Summer movement of coal to the Northwest is more than 50 per cent. behind schedule and the railroads will attempt to dump 4,000 carloads of coal a day at lake ports.

President Wilson still had under consideration today the matter of sending to United Mine Workers' officials a message bearing on the Illinois strike, such a course having been suggested to him by a committee of operators from that field.

Officials of Government agencies concerned in the straightening out of the coal tangle today read the statement issued by John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers, in Indianapolis last night, but declined to comment. Mr. Lewis in his statement declared that any settlement of the Illinois strike which would modify the basic interstate agreement under which the miners of the central competitive field now are working would result in action by national officers of the United Mine Workers to bring about a cessation of work by the 210,000 men employed in that field.

The National Coal Association, an organization of operators said to represent two-thirds of the country's bituminous production, in a statement today took exception to several of the assertions made by Mr. Lewis. The association denied that the Illinois operators had expressed a desire to have the existing wage contract amended, as stated by the President of the mine workers. The only overture looking toward reopening of the wage agreement which was entered into March 31 and which was effective for two years, the association's statement said, was made by the miners. This overture, it was added, was rejected by the operators.

YOSEMITE STAGES HELD UP.

Lone Highwayman Robs Passengers in Four Coaches.

CAMP CURRY, YOSEMITE, Cal., July 25.—Word was received here yesterday that a lone highwayman had held up and robbed four stages near Miami Lodge.

Sheriff Al. Turner of Mariposa County, who was in Yosemite Park when word of the holdup reached here, organized a posse and set out in pursuit.

Information here was to the effect that the robber had tried to make his victims believe he was accompanied by one or more companions, who were hidden in the brush near him.

Until today the last stage holdup in this vicinity was perpetrated in 1916 by a lone highwayman.

Sing Sing's $75 Fund for Prisoner Proves Inadequate.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, July 25.—Dr. Amos Osborne Squire, head physician of Sing Sing, returned to the prison today from a hunt for bargains in artificial legs.

Dr. Squire was authorized by Major Lewis E. Lawes, the Warden, to fit Isadore Berman, a prisoner, out with a new leg. Berman entered Sing Sing on crutches, but the prison officials are going to have the State buy him an artificial leg, so he can work more efficiently. Dr. Squire was told he could spend $75, but when he tried to purchase he found there was profiteering in false legs and that he would have to pay $125 to $150 for one. The prison officials are trying to determine where the money is coming from to pay the increased price.

Freight Cars Leave Rails and Block Tracks Near Matawan, N. J.

MATAWAN, N. J., July 25.—Traffic on the New York and Long Branch Railroad was tied up this afternoon when three cars of a freight train, bound to New York with sand, jumped the tracks three-quarters of a mile south of the station here. No one was injured. The accident was caused by a broken truck it is believed. A few minutes before the accident the Atlantic City Express of the Jersey Central passed the spot.

Thousands of persons coming from the shore resorts were delayed. The tracks will not be cleared before morning.

7 DROWN, 6 SAVED, OFF CITY BEACHES

HEART ATTACK IS FATAL

Bather Succumbs in Rocking Chair —Jeweler Dies When Seized with Cramps.

The sea claimed seven persons and rescuers saved five others of the hundreds of thousands who turned yesterday to the water for their holiday recreation in and about New York. Another pleasure seeker died of a heart attack.

Carroll Martins, a thirteen-year-old schoolboy, 424 East 138th Street, the Bronx; his brother, Percy Martins, and two cousins, George Logan and Henry Logan, 581 Fiftieth Street, Brooklyn, were in a rowboat off West Twenty-fifth Street, Gravesend Bay, when a motor launch owned by Edward Spott, 893 Lefferts Boulevard, Richmond Hill, came out of Coney Island Creek. The launch crashed into the rowboat and the occupants were hurled into the water. The Martins boys could not swim. Henry Logan dived for the younger, Percy, and got him ashore. Carroll seemingly got entangled in the launch's propeller. When he was freed nearly an hour later surgeons said he had died from submersion.

Abraham Lechzer, a guest at a hotel at 3,034 Ocean Parkway, was bathing off Ocean Parkway, Coney Island, when he was seized with cramps. He was pulled out of the water by Joseph Schert, a guard attached to the United States Volunteer Life Saving Station at Parkway Beach, but efforts to revive him failed. Lechzer was a Maiden Lane jeweler and lived at 331 Pennsylvania Avenue, Brooklyn.

The body of an unidentified youth, about 19 or 20 years old, clad in a gray bathing suit, was found by James Harris, 823 Putnam Avenue, Brooklyn, who was diving off the foot of West Twenty-fifth Street, Coney Island. Members of the Police Department's Marine Division operating in Sheepshead Bay recovered the body of William Morris, 18 years old, 1,193 Broadway, Brooklyn, who lost his life swimming off Breezy Point, Rockaway.

Miss Nellie Woods, West Thirty-fifth Street and Canal Avenue, Coney Island, and Frank Murphy, 312 Fifteenth Street, Brooklyn, were on a raft off West Thirty-fifth Street, when the craft overturned. Murphy could not swim, but tried to rescue the girl. He was overcome and two other bathers managed to get them to the beach. They were treated for submersion. David Price, a guest at Silver's Hotel, Coney Island, was taken from the ocean off West Twenty-third Street by Anthony Lacardi, a lifeguard.

Miss Lillian Marks, 21 years old, a bookkeeper, 171 West Ninety-fifth Street, Manhattan, was rescued by lifeguards off Ocean Parkway. She was treated by Dr. Lehman of the Coney Island Hospital, for shock and submersion.

At Rockaway Beach three were drowned. Charles Coombs, 30 years old, 145 East Thirty-fifth Street, Manhattan, lost his life while swimming at Ocean Parkway and Beach 107th Streets. His body was not recovered. Thos. Peterson, 18 years old, 2,412 Pitkin Avenue, Brooklyn, and Leroy Sims, 25 years old, 946 Blake Avenue, Brooklyn, negroes, were drowned off 106th Street. The men had gone bathing with a party of friends early in the day. Their bodies were recovered.

Henry Bachner, 29 years old, of 670 East Fourth Street, Manhattan, was bathing off Brighton Beach. He came out of the water and sat in a rocking chair. He complained of pains around his heart, and was dead when Dr. Weinstock of the Coney Island Hospital arrived.

G. S. Dunhart of 600 West 179th Street was rescued late in the afternoon from the Hudson River at 167th Street by members of the Knickerbocker Canoe Club, after a canoe in which he was paddling upstream had been run down by a launch. He was seen in the water beside an upturned canoe and a dozen of the club canoeists brought him ashore. He was quickly revived.

ACCORD, N. Y., July 25.—Mrs. Harry Probler and her son Herman, 14, of New York City were drowned while bathing in Rondout Creek near here today. The bodies have not been recovered.

hung carelessly about, while his other was under lock and key.

Among his effects were two medical and surgical kits of the latest type, consisting of scores of instruments, all of which had been carefully wrapped. A revolver and $4.23 were found in one of the pockets of his clothing.

With the discovery of a clipping from a newspaper published in Pittsburgh on Oct. 10, 1918, in which there was an appeal for physicians to fight the influenza epidemic, Mrs. Hunting recalled that about that time he suddenly packed up and went away for ten weeks. He told her that he was going to his old home at 516 Federal Street, Pittsburgh, for a while. When he returned he did not say what the nature of his mission was, and as he had shown an inclination to be secretive she made no inquiries. Mrs. Hunting felt assured, from remarks dropped by Campbell, that during his absence he was fighting the epidemic.

From other bits of information furnished by Mrs. Hunting, coupled with a further examination of his effects, it appears that Campbell had practiced for some years in Pittsburgh, where he lived with his wife and children. He came East about the time his wife and daughters went to Europe and lived at the best hotels. Whether he suffered reverses the police do not know. He went to Mrs. Hunting's rooming house about three years ago, taking a hall bedroom. He told her at the time that he had a job as dishwasher in Shanley's.

"I felt at the time that he was too educated to be working at such a job, and from the fact that he took such care of himself when in my home I knew that he had been at one time prosperous," Mrs. Hunting said. "He was always neat and kept his beard closely cropped. He rarely spoke of himself or his family, but he admitted to me that he was a physician. I do not know whether his family is still living."

At Shanley's it was said that Campbell was employed at $18 a week and was a good dishwasher, "in fact the best we've ever had." The manager expressed surprise to learn that Campbell was a physician, but said he had always believed the man never belonged in the kitchen. He said Campbell never associated with the other employes, but kept to himself. He was always courteous but never encouraged familiarity, the manager said.

When Campbell first came to board with her Mrs. Hunting lived in West Forty-ninth Street. He told her at the time that his wife had taken their two daughters to Europe to complete their education. He added that he had purchased a farm after they had departed intending to retire there until their return. Finding the life distasteful he decided to come to New York. Campbell remarked that he soon tired of roaming about the city with nothing to do and had got a job at the restaurant.

When Mrs. Hunting moved to her present address Campbell went with her. On another occasion, she recalled, he had mentioned living at the Hotel McAlpin between the time his wife and children went to Europe and his first appearance at the rooming house.

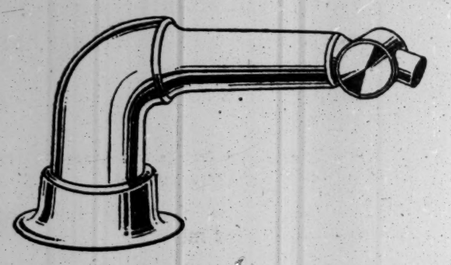
The Sonora Tone Arm is ALL BRASS drawn to shape by hydraulic pressure. ALL BRASS costs more but gives a superb tone. Be sure you get a TONE ARM which is ALL BRASS and not a zinc-lead-tin casting.



An ALL BRASS Tone Arm

ALL BRASS in a tone arm produces a superior tone. Cornets are made of brass for this reason. Castings, made of inferior metals, mostly zinc, lead and tin, are brittle and porous and are used by nearly every other manufacturer for tone arms because they are cheap even though they give a poorer tone.

ROTARY CLUB Activities

Regular Fellows

WHEN you were a youngster there must have come a day when an old friend of the family appeared on the scene with a very sour-looking, whiny offspring of her own in tow. You were told you must be nice and polite and friendly with the unattractive specimen simply because its mother was a friend of the family, etc. Immediately you decided you wouldn't be friendly; in fact, if you got a chance you knew you'd pull its nose or slap its face. Then when you went out to play you found the sad-looking atom could throw a stone as far as you could; could vault a fence as easily; could skin up a tree as speedily. And you know he was a regular fellow and worthy of being your friend.

Since the formal cessation of war, we, as a nation, have been told that we must be friends with all other nations. We have given them the once-over, discovered they were not attractive to our American taste, and decided we didn't care about being friends. In fact, if they drove us too far, we might even pull their noses or slap their faces.

The trouble is we haven't gone out to play with them. We haven't given them a chance to show they're regular fellows. A step in the right direction was accomplished when the boatload of American athletic stars sailed last week to take part in the Olympic games. Another step that helps is the Anglo-American interest in a certain silver cup won on the high seas. There should be more of these steps.

The activity of the Rotary Club in this direction is more than a step—it is a giant stride. The founding of International Rotary, with clubs in practically every part of the civilized world, has resulted in the discovery that Rotarians are regular fellows—if they come from China, from Africa, from Scotland, from Cuba or from the United States.

At the recent International Rotary Convention an opportunity to play with the patriots of other lands, other tongues, other customs, American Rotarians found they could laugh as cheerily, weep as sincerely, sleep as soundly and eat as heartily as they could. They were regular fellows!

The Rotary Club of New York asks all Americans who are desirous of a greater understanding between nations and a more peaceful and happier world to grasp every opportunity to let every country prove that it is peopled with "regular fellows."

TUAN, ANFU CHIEF, RESIGNS HIS POST

Sought to Commit Suicide After the Collapse of Operation Near Peking.

THREE ANFU MINISTERS QUIT

Peace Delegates Gathering at Tientsin—Hopes for Restoration of Peace Entertained.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, July 25.—Tuan Chi-jui has tendered his resignation as Generalissimo of the army, and a group of his militarist associates yesterday started for Tientsin, authorized to accept terms providing for the punishment of General Hsu Shu-chenk (who refused to acknowledge his dismissal as Resident Commissioner of Inner Mongolia), the disbanding of the frontier force, the dissolution of Parliament and the suppression of the Anfu Club.

Tuan Chi-jui attempted to commit suicide, but was prevented from doing so. Generals Hsu Shu-cheng and Ting Shih-yuan are fugitives. The Ministers of Finance, Communications and Justice have resigned.

The troops of Chang Tso-lin, are surrounding Peking with the intention of enforcing the proposed terms of surrender. The city gates remain closed against the dispersed soldiery, opening for a short time in the morning to admit market produce. The city is practically under siege. Steps are being taken to limit profiteering and take care of the poor.

PEKING, July 25 (Associated Press).—President Hsu Shih-chang has accepted the resignation of Tsang Yu-chun, Minister of Communications; Li Shih-hao, Minister of Finance, and Chu-shen, Minister of Justice.

Tien Wen-lieh, Minister of the Interior, has been named acting Minister of Communications, and the other resigning members of the Cabinet will be succeeded by the Vice Ministers. All those who resigned belong to the Anfu faction.

Traffic with Tientsin is still restricted to military trains.

Hope for a compromise between the opposing factions is pinned on the peace mission which has arrived at Tientsin, headed by former Premier Chin Yun-peng. It is expected that General Tsao-kun, Military Governor of Chi-li Province, will also arrive soon in Tientsin from Paoting-fu.

Since Chin has the confidence of the Chi-li generals and also of General Chang Tso-lin, Military Inspector of Manchuria and Military Governor of the Province of Feng-tien, it is believed the peace mission promises success.

Reports of looting and disorder in Tung-cho have been received here. A small detachment of American marines has been sent there to bring out American residents if necessary.

TIENTSIN, July 25 (Associated Press).—General Chang Tso-lin arrived here today, to remain two or three days while Feng-tien troops complete the investment of the capital.

Ma-liang, the Anfu General from Shantung who recently captured Teh-chow, is said to have given his troops two days of looting, while General Sang-yuan, commanding the Chi-li troops opposing him, is reported also to have behaved disgracefully. After a cross-country march from Paoting-fu, the Chi-li forces attacked and drove back Ma-liang toward Teh-chow.

Unconfirmed reports from Feng-tai say that fighting on the Peking-Hankow line has ceased and that Tuan Chi-jui, the army commander, has resigned. The reports say that Tuan petitioned the President to relieve him of command of the frontier defense forces, converted by him into a "preservation-of-the-nation army," on the ground that the army had failed to carry on a successful campaign, and asked that the army be dissolved. The President declined to accept, according to the reports.

The British Admiral Duff left here yesterday afternoon for Taku, where he will remain for two days. An international military train carrying 100 Japanese to reinforce the legation guard also left here yesterday afternoon for Peking.

An airplane from Peking bombed Manchurian troops encamped at Pei-ta'ang yesterday morning, with unexpected results. The troops, never having seen an airplane before, were greatly interested, and there was no panic.

HOLDING UP BOXER FUND.

Indemnity to Russia Will Be Deposited Monthly in Bank of China.

PEKING, July 25 (Associated Press).—The long-contemplated withholding of the Boxer indemnity to Russia will become effective in the near future, it is officially announced here. The customs inspector has been instructed to deposit the money monthly in the Bank of China for future disposal.

The indemnity payments have in the past been used for the maintenance of the Russian legations in Peking and Tokio.

OPPOSE A BIGGER HOUSE

But Ten States Would Lose in Reapportionment by Reduction.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Unless the membership of the House of Representatives is increased from 435 to at least 500 to meet the increased population shown by the 1920 census, ten States will lose one or more Representatives, according to Representative Siegel, of New York, Chairman of the Census Committee which will frame the new Apportionment Bill for 1921. The ten States are Indiana, Iowa and Missouri, which will lose two members of Congress each, and Illinois, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Nebraska, Vermont and Virginia, which will lose one Congressman each.

On the basis of the estimated population of 106,000,000 for the whole country in 1920, an increase of approximately 14,000,000 in ten years, Mr. Siegel says 65 or 66 new seats in the House must be created if the ten States are to retain their present numerical representation.

While precedent warrants the increase, there is strong opposition on the part of some of the present Representatives, while others favor reduction to as few as 300 members.

Every decade since 1790, with the single exception of 1840, the House membership has been enlarged to keep pace with the growing population. Now the House floor is crowded when all are present; individual desks have been discarded and an increase in membership probably would have to be solved by narrower seats.

Ten years ago the House membership was increased from 391 to 435 on the basis of a population of 91,972,266. The only exception occured in 1840 when ten Congressmen were knocked out by the apportionment, the membership being fixed at 282 after having been 242 for ten years.

HINT OF MIKADO'S DEATH.

Health Bulletins Regarded by Some as Preparation for Announcement.

Copyright, 1920, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

TOKIO, July 24.—Beginning today bulletins will be issued regarding the Emperor's health.

He has been seriously ill for some time and for the last few months is reported to have been insane. He has been removed from Tokio to an isolated retreat. The Emperor is closely connected with the religious life of the Japanese people, and great care is taken to censor rumors regarding his health.

Confidential reports reaching The Tribune last Spring from Peking indicated that the Emperor was expected to die before the end of this year. He had lost the use of his legs at that time. The decision to issue daily bulletins shows that a crisis is at hand. In fact, the Emperor may already be dead, and the bulletins may have been decided upon gradually to break the news to his people.

TOKIO, July 24 (Associated Press).—The Imperial household issued a bulletin today on the condition of Emperor Yoshihito, saying he is suffering with neuralgia of the hip joint and also diabetes. The Emperor seems to be recovering slowly but is fatigued easily and thereupon loses interest in happenings. He is unable to speak clearly.

"The Emperor considers State affairs," the bulletin says, "but does not attend ceremonies or grant audiences to Japanese and foreigners. Rest still is necessary."

VENICE ARSENAL BURNS.

Shells Explode, Causing Damage of Several Million Lire.

VENICE, July 25.—Fire which broke out in the Arsenal here early this morning did damage estimated at several million lire. The cause has not yet been determined and an investigation has been started.

The flames, fanned by the winds, forced the people in the nearby suburbs hurriedly to abandon their homes, taking with them their valuables and everything else movable. Several stores of explosives were detonated during the fire, and numerous buildings collapsed. Sailors assisted the firemen in preventing a spread of the flames to the Museum, from which all the important art works were removed.

WOOD WILL KEEP WAGES UP

American Woolen Company Head Denies Plot in Closing Mills.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, July 25.—William M. Wood, President of the American Woolen Company, denies that the shutting down of the company's mills at Lawrence is part of a nation-wide scheme to force labor to accept lower wages. He calls such stories "false and malicious" and declares that the increased wages paid during the war will be continued as soon as the mills open.

"There will positively be no reduction," he said. "I was the leader in the raising of wages and I'll be the last man on earth to reduce them. The most positive assurance that I can give my help is that their wages will go on as before.

"I regard present conditions as temporary depression. The solution of our trouble lies with the retail store. It is all a question of supply and demand. I can't afford to keep 15,000 employes working when there is no demand for their production. There have been no large orders for several months."

"I'll try that, Brother 'Philly'"—

JOHN WANAMAKER

Broadway at Ninth, New York — Telephone Stuyvesant 4700 — Store Hours 9 to 5

The week-end showed what Furniture you need

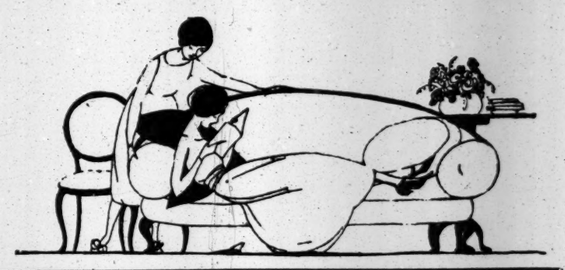
In the Wanamaker August Sale



Monday is usually suburban day in the summer-time; not only all-the-year residents of nearby communities, but New Yorkers in their summer homes, have the habit of doing their week's shopping on Monday. And today is another Courtesy Day in the August Furniture Sale.

Probably you have talked over your furniture needs during the week-end; decided that a new bedroom suite is needed; perhaps a new dining-room suite; a chair or two; a chaise longue or daybed for mother or daughter; a leather chair for father; perhaps you decided to refurnish your boy's room while he is away at camp.

Whatever you need it can be filled in this August Sale—and at a saving of 10 to 40 per cent.

Our entire stock is included

but it is only fair to say that our regular stock has been almost entirely renewed during the past three weeks after the enormous selling of May and June.

In addition, large special purchases have come in, among which are:

$25,000 of fine dining-room furniture

$60,000 of the better grade of living-room suites

$40,000 of moderate-price bedroom furniture

$22,000 of bookcases and small fancy furniture

$20,000 of English Morocco easy chairs and davenports

$50,000 of the highest-grade upholstered chairs and suites for living-rooms

$30,000 of fine hall clocks, secretaries, desks, console tables and mirrors

$10,000 of moderate-price oak dining-room furniture

$20,000 of high-grade dining-room suites

A million dollars of Wanamaker furniture actually on our floors and in our warerooms.

Another million dollars of furniture in transit and on order.

That shows our readiness!

Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Galleries, New Building.

There Are Troubles and Trembles on the earth and under it the world around these days. The upsets and unsettings of governments, of finances, politics and values and the uncertainties of the future were not expected when the hostilities of war ceased.

The long war has brought on a mental typhoid fever and the disturbances of nature on the Pacific Coast are warnings from on High to stop, look and listen.

The duty of the day is courage, patience and faith to be proven by a faithful day's work by the humblest as well as the highest, at our post wherever that may be.

Prints and Paintings of Ships

Now on exhibit in the Little Art Gallery

Particularly interesting at present is "The Finish," by William F. Haball, a painting of the finish of the international cup race, September 16, 1886; the U. S. sloop Puritan defeated the English cutter Genesta.

Quaint, precise prints of some ships of the American Merchant Marine in the good old days of its romance and power are interesting; frigates, schooners, sloops, cutters, which sailed under the American flag about 1840 and 1846.

British ships of the same period are as interesting, particularly so the yacht "Calypse" of 1826.

The fight between Lo Serapio, commanded by Captain Pearson, and Le Bonhomme Richard, commanded by Paul Jones, on July 22, 1779, is reproduced in the most enchanting of old prints, on which the action is described in both French and English.

The oil paintings are very romantic examples of an old art. Beautiful, decorative galleons in action are prominent.

Now is the Time to Can Fruits and Vegetables

The fight against the H. C. L. is one that should appeal to every housekeeper; and, if far sighted, she will prepare for winter months by preserving fruits and vegetables when they are fresh and less expensive.

An objection overcome

High price of sugar is often offered as an objection to canning, but by the cold-pack method, which is the best and tried method advanced by the Department of Agriculture, sugar is not necessary.

"All fruits, however, may be successfully canned by the cold pack method without the use of sugar, by simply adding boiling water to the product and cooking about 10 minutes longer." Or "when sugar is high in price and the character of the fruit is such that less sugar is required, a formula using three quarts of water and two quarts of sugar is satisfactory."

Bulletin of Connecticut Agricultural College Extension Service

Keep in mind—

—that even syrup is not necessary for fruits. And vegetables use no sugar.

Succulent fruits and vegetables are a necessity in our diet. Furthermore, meat is very expensive. For better health and greater economy—the intelligent manager of a home will can fruits and vegetables when they are plentiful and thus keep her family in good health and her doctor and meat bills small during the expensive winter months.

Recognized

the demand for canning equipment which the American housekeepers bring to bear—that equipment which is necessary for the cold pack method of canning has been supplied. All devices of saving time and energy are stressed.

WELCOMED AT SEA BY WIRELESS PHONE

Newfoundland Premier Extends Greeting to Victorian, 600 Miles Out.

LORD BURNHAM REPLIES

Persons Standing Near Receivers at St. John's Hear Popular Song Played on Ship.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 25.—Highly successful conversations by wireless telephone took place today between the station on Signal Hill and the steamer Victorian, 600 miles distant and bound for Sydney with the Imperial Press Conference aboard. Keen interest was shown by the citizens of St. John's, who saw Marconi's original wireless telegraph experiments here nineteen years ago, and the progress of the Victorian with daily bulletins of the telephonic concerts and other communications was eagerly followed.

At 11 this fornoon, local time (1:30 afternoon, Greenwich time), the Hon. Richard Squires, Premier of Newfoundland, got into communication with Viscount Burnham, President of the Press Conference, and formally welcomed the party to this side of the Atlantic. Lord Burnham made an appropriate response and they had a brief exchange of amenities, describing the weather and other conditions, and Premier Squires expressing the hope that the Press Conference at Ottawa would have beneficial results and that the tour of the Dominion would satisfy all concerned. The Premier was succeeded by Sir Patrick McGrath, the senior of Newfoundland's three delegates to the Press Conference, who joined in extending a welcome to Lord Burnham and his colleagues and stated that the Newfoundland trio would be leaving two hours later by train to join the party at Sydney Tuesday. He afterward spoke to Sir Roderick Jones, Managing Director of Reuter's, and Colonel Parkinson, D. S. O., of the Ottawa Journal. A talking machine selection, "Beautiful Ohio," played on board the ship, was plainly heard not only by those holding the receivers but by those standing near.

The Premier and Sir Patrick agreed that the wireless telephone service fully realized their expectations, their messages to those aboard the steamer being clearly heard and the response of their auditors being similar in character. The whole test lasted about half an hour, following which communications were suspended to enable the steamer to do her regular wireless telegraph business. Another series of conversations was scheduled for the afternoon, when Attorney General Warren and Sir Michael P. Cashin, leader of the Opposition, expected to speak with those on the ship.

698,335 DOCTORED FREE.

United Hospitals Fund Reports on Treatment of Sick Poor.

Henry J. Fisher, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the United Hospitals Fund, announced yesterday that 698,335 persons during last year had obtained free treatment at the institutions of the fund group, which includes the forty-six hospitals not municipally maintained. The free patients of the hospitals were 100,000 more than the population of Rhode Island.

"Of the hospitals alone the total number of patients as announced is 148,529," said the fund's statement. "The dispensaries of the hospitals treated the remaining 549,806 patients, who visited them for a total of 1,712,968 times. A grand total of 2,438,811 hospital days were provided last year, and of this number practically one-half—1,203,728—were free days paid for neither by the patient nor the city.

"If the free treatment and hospital care had been furnished to one person alone over an extended period of time, that person would have had to outlive Methuselah to receive the attention. The free days, laid end to end, would extend from a period nearly ten centuries earlier than the time of Socrates and the battle of Thermopylae to the present year. The free days would cover a period of 3,298 years.

"The United Hospital Fund Committee is now planing to raise $1,500,000 in the Fall for hospital work for the sick poor."

Buying or Selling—which counts most?

YOU'VE got to know which, if your business is to be a lasting success. Goodyear had to know it, or quit. F. A. Seiberling, president, Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., tells in the August issue of SYSTEM some experiences that may surprise you. What they discovered about buying and selling when their capital was small is largely responsible for their big profits today.

You'll do a lot of thinking about your own business when you read what Mr. Seiberling says about business policies. He outlines three ways to do business; six ways to buy. He tells why you can be too good at selling to be a good business man. Read his article in SYSTEM for August.

A quarter million business leaders read SYSTEM regularly because it contains intimate statements of the way business men deal with intimate business problems.

A. B. Farquhar tells in August SYSTEM how the great business men of 1858 answered his youthful question, "How can I make a million dollars?" ¶ As credit manager of Armour & Co., Harry H. Merrick found ways to say "Yes," where the average credit man is afraid to say anything but "No." ¶ The president of the Mercantile Trust Co. of New York gives five rules the banker uses to test you when you ask him for more money. ¶ Men of many businesses write for each issue of SYSTEM.

Get August SYSTEM at your news-stand today. It's selling fast. 25 cents a copy; or by the year, $3.

"Killing sales superstitions"

John M. Bruce says that "sales superstitions" are all that make many things "impossible." He tells how the blunders of a typewriter salesman who couldn't get an order, revealed a way to increase sales; how the shibboleth of his competitors kept a tire president from changing losses on many big orders into profits; what made "roll-your-own" tobaccos sell when people said they wouldn't. In SYSTEM for August.

"Who pays the wages?"

That's a puzzle that muddles our understanding of labor. George M. Verity came up from water-boy to president of the American Rolling Mills. In 21 years his mills have never had a strike. Match his ideas in August SYSTEM with your own.

"How we can sell more to India"

"India is the greatest market I have yet found," says Elmer R. Murphey, president, James H. Rhodes & Co. Mr. Murphey's trade-hunting experiences in the bazaars and shops of the Orient were a revelation to him. Even if your business can't export, you'll enjoy this picture of business customs in the land of cross-legged merchants.

"The big profit in small accounts"

Two young men, just out of college, landed in a knitting business and have built it up to large proportions. The big idea, they say in SYSTEM for August, is giving the small merchant the kind of service he needs. They have gained success without the kind of customers most people think essential.

2 KILLED, 11 HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

CAR UNFIT FOR DRIVING

Six Persons Injured in Two Mishaps at Almost Same Spot on Richmond Turnpike.

One young woman and a boy were killed and eleven persons were injured in automobile accidents in New York yesterday.

Ida Rollick, 22 years old, of 413 East Twelfth Street, was run down and killed at Second Avenue and Fifth Street at 8 o'clock last night by an automobile driven by Charles Frangipani of 416 East Fourteenth Street, who was taking a party to a wedding.

Ida Rollick, with her twin sister, Sadie, and Rose Katz of 244 Penn Street, Brooklyn, was crossing Fifth Street on the east side of Second Avenue. Thousands of persons were in the vicinity, and scores were crossing the streets, dodging through a dense automobile traffic. The three girls dodged one machine and two of them dodged the one with the wedding party. They screamed to their companion, who tried to get out of the way, but she was knocked down and killed when the machine failed to respond properly to Frangipani's brakes.

Frangipani told the police that just before the accident he had swerved to avoid a collision with a car bound in the opposite direction. He was arrested, after an examination by an automobile expert of the Police Department showed that the automobile was in unfit condition for driving. The owner of the automobile is John Randazzo of 413 East Twelfth Street.

Bernard Tiffenberg, 2 years old, of 373 Schenck Street, Brooklyn, was killed in the street in front of his home yesterday afternoon by a machine which did not stop after hitting him. Persons who saw the accident told the police that the car bore a New Jersey license number, but were unable to give the figures.

Six persons were injured at about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon in two automobile accidents which occurred within a few minutes of each other, and at almost the same spot on the Richmond Turnpike near the Wallow Brook Road, Staten Island. In avoiding another machine, the car owned and driven by Harold J. Gilles, 25 years old, of Great Kills, was upset. Gilles sustained a fractured right arm. His wife, Lena, suffered a fracture of the nose and injuries to both arms and legs, and his mother, Mrs. Minnie Gilles, of Philadelphia, sustained a broken arm. Morris Cohen, 30 years old, of Philadelphia, sustained a fracture of the right leg.

In the other accident, John Scholsar, of 437 Tremont Avenue, the Bronx, sustained a fractured collar bone and other injuries, and Frank McKennar, 45 years of age, of 65 West 114th Street, Manhattan, suffered a fractured right arm.

Henry Dalton, 10 years old, of 547 West 135th Street, was injured in the right foot when he ran into the street after a baseball and was struck by a car owned by Mrs. Alice White, of 1,546 Broadway, and driven by Angelo Domnio, of 2,076 Decatur Avenue, the Bronx.

Michael Boland, 30 years old, of 201 West 148th Street, received contusions about the body when struck by an automobile at Seventh Avenue and 151st Street. He was taken to Harlem Hospital.

Andrew M. Otis, 44 years old, of 211 Columbus Avenue, received abrasions when struck by an automobile at Broadway and Sixty-sixth Street. He was treated at Roosevelt Hospital and then sent home.

John Shuck, 9 years old, of 432 West 125th Street, was knocked down by an automobile near his home yesterday and received lacerations of the left foot. He was attended and sent home.

Harry Levy, 16 years old, of 200 Madison Street, was struck by an auto truck in front of 117 Monroe Street. He was sent to his home.

BOY KILLED BY TROLLEY CAR

Firemen Lift Vehicle While Policeman Extricates Body.

While playing with other boys of his age in front of 204 Sands Street, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon, Thomas Molino, 10 years old, of 209 Prospect Street was run over by a Graham Avenue trolley car. The front trucks of the car passed over the boy's body and it was necessary to call a fire truck before he could be extricated by Patrolman Sinn of the Popular Street station, who volunteered to crawl underneath, while the car was being lifted from the tracks.

The boy was alive when carried into an ambulance from the Holy Family Hospital but died while Dr. Perudine was giving him emergency treatment enroute to the hospital. Henry Weiss of 87 Manhattan Avenue, Brooklyn, the motorman of the car, was arrested on a technical charge of homicide, although witnesses said he was blameless.

MOB LYNCHES WIFE SLAYER.

Takes Ex-Judge's Son from Jail in Fayetteville, W.Va., and Hangs Him

FAYETTEVILLE, W. Va., July 25.—William Bennet, Jr., of Fayetteville, son of William R. Bennet, at one time judge of the Criminal Court of Fayette County, was taken from jail here today by a mob of 100 and lynched, after having begun a life sentence for the murder of his wife, to which charge he had pleaded guilty in court.

Mrs. Bennet, whom he admitted killing, was the daughter of U. Alfred Taylor of Fayetteville, well known throughout the State as a writer and editor.

The jailor was summoned to the sheriff's office by telephone, and when he arrived he was confronted by the mob, who demanded his keys. He was kept under close guard while the jail was stormed and Bennet was taken out. The convict's captors, occupying twenty automobiles, rode to the old county poor farm, where they hanged Bennet from a beam stretched between the forks of white oak trees.

Bennet pleaded guilty to the murder of his wife in court July 22.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

William A. Brady's production of "Opportunity," by Owen Davis, will open at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre on Thursday night.

The premiere of "Poor Little Ritz Girl," announced for tomorrow night at the Central, has been postponed.

Comstock & Gest will offer two plays in New York during the week of Aug. 16. These will be "The Cave Girl," by George Middleton and Guy Bolton, to be produced at the Longacre with Grace Valentine and John Cope in the cast, and "The Checkerboard," by the Hattons, to be presented at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre, with Jose Ruben as its principal player.

Milton Nobles, a well-known player who retired from the stage fourteen years ago, will act Frank Bacon's role in "Lightnin'" at the Gaiety this week. Mr. Nobles will probably head a "Lightnin'" company on tour next season.

Virginia Fox Brooks will play her original role in the London production of "The Great Lover."

"Chu Chin Chow" will again be sent on tour by Comstock & Gest this season.

Annie Hughes will join the cast of "Foot-Loose," at the Little Theatre, next week.

A delegation of Friars will meet Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford when the Olympic docks on Wednesday. The club will give a dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Fairbanks at the Hotel Astor next Sunday.

REPORT GAIN IN NEWSPRINT.

759,000 Tons Output of 90 Mills in Half Year Is 88,000 Increase.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Total newsprint production of ninety leading mills of the country for the first six months of 1920 was 759,024 tons, according to a report of the Federal Trade Commission, made public today. During a similar period last year seventy-four mills produced 671,141 tons. The report said that of this year's production 679,290 was standard newsprint.

Stocks of standard print on hand at the mills June 30 amounted to 20,976 tons, as compared with 20,023 tons last year. Mill stocks of standard newsprint increased during June, although eleven machines in eight mills were idle a total of over 1,400 hours during the month, due to lack of labor, breakdowns, lack of coal and pulp shortage.

The average price of contract deliveries from domestic mills to publishers in carload lots for standard newsprint during June was $4.752 per 100 pounds, based on deliveries of approximately 51,000 tons on contracts involving a total of about 500,000 tons of undelivered domestic production.

The average market price for June in carload lots was approximately $10.072 per 100 pounds, the report said. The contract price of Canadian standard newsprint was placed at $4.55 per 100 pounds.

Allied Minsters Received at Vienna.

VIENNA, July 25.—The French, British and Italian Ministers to Austria today presented their credentials to President Seitz.

THE SCREEN

The Capitol Theatre, showing more and more now the workmanship of S. L. Rothapfel, maker of programs, is offering varied and, for most people, interesting entertainment this week. It is worth remarking, especially, that the well-made program does not suffer from poor pictures, as some of its predecessors have.

After an elaborate opening number, composed of scenes from "Rigoletto," with orchestral accompaniment, the first picture is "Some More Samoa," a Chester-Outing travelogue, demonstrating, incidentally, that scenes of semi-savage life can be entertaining without the embellishment of home-made thrills. Katherine Hilliker wrote the bright leaders for the picture.

A "Valse Caprice," danced by Mlle. Gambarelli follows, and then the interesting Capitol News, with excellent views of the yacht races.

The featured photoplay comes next. It is "Cupid, The Cowpuncher," an adaptation of Eleanor Gates's "Alec Lloyd, Cowpuncher," directed by Clarence G. Badger, with the always delightful Will Rogers in the leading role. Rogers is becoming, for many he has become, one of the established screen characters. His personality is a substantial thing, apparently, that can be photographed—at any rate, it emanates from his figure on the screen—and, contrary to rather the positive expectations of some, he has distinct pantomimic ability. His smile, his homeliness, his awkward manner, his odd gestures, are, of course, part of his make-up, but if they were an end in themselves they would soon become tiresome. Their charm is in the fact that they serve to convey thoughts and feelings; they are expressive. In other words, Rogers acts. He usually impersonates the same character—it may be himself—but he makes it live and have a meaning. It is genuine.

In "Cupid, the Cowpuncher," Alec Lloyd is a ranch foreman who is always managing some one else's marriage. Finally he falls in love himself, and finds matrimonial management more difficult than it had proved hitherto. But, of course, he is successful in the end—and every one is happy. That's all one needs to know about the story. Its excellence is in Rogers himself, Helene Chadwick, his heroine; Andrew Robson, one of his difficulties; Dr. Simpson, another obstacle, and others in the cast who supply action and atmosphere. Director Badger also makes a sizable contribution to the production.

The concluding number on the program, shown only at 3:55 and 9 P. M., is "In the Land of the Sky-Blue Waters," an effective combination of tableau, music and motion pictures.

Photoplays with a foreign stamp, and more particularly those presenting life in the Orient, stir the interest unusually, even if their workmanship is not above the average of the home product, and for this reason, if there were no other, "The Breath of the Gods," which opened at the Astor Theatre yesterday afternoon, would be of more than passing interest. It has what seems an authentic Japanese character—at least to one who has never been west of the Mississippi—chiefly through the work of Corley Z. Ito, who supervised the production, and Tsuro Aoki, the wife of the better-known Sussue Hayakawa, who has appeared with her husband in a number of pictures and is now coming out at the head of her own cast.

But "The Breath of the Gods" does not depend upon its Oriental flavor to win friends. It is, in all departments, a work above the average. The director, Rolin Sturgeon, whose name, with those of most of the players, is omitted from the program, must be credited with skillful work, and the story, an adaption of a novel by Sidney McCall, gives opportunities for the acting of an excellent cast, including, especially, Tsuro Aoki, as the heroine; Stanhope Wheatcroft, as one who loves her not wisely but too well; Paul Weigel, as the Austrian Ambassador in Japan, and Andrew Carewe, as a Japanese Prince. Miss Aoki, if that is the way she should be designated, is not an altogether finished actress. Some of her gestures and expressions seem too studied and deliberate, too conscious of the camera, but, nevertheless, she has the quality of genuineness and succeeds in making the character of a Japanese girl influenced by unassimilated Western ideas consistently appealing.

Although the story is essentially a melodrama, and Japanese perhaps only to those who do not know Japan, it seems real in many scenes. This is due not only to the acting and stage settings but to the narrative's simple directness and honest acceptance of a tragic ending. The death of a defeated Japanese girl may not seem tragic to some, but if the character is conceived of as the victim of conflicting customs, traditions and desires, represented chiefly in a man of the East and one of the West, there is tragedy in her life and death—and Yuki Onda is such a victim.

"Crooked Streets," with Ethel Clayton, is the photoplay at the Rivoli this week. "The Perfect Woman," with Constance Talmadge, is at the Strand. "The Prince Chap," with Thomas Meighan, which was at the Rivoli week before last, is now at the Rialto, and "Humoresque" is holding on at the Criterion.

"Up in Mary's Attic," supplemented by "A Beach Promenade" of girls in bathing suits, opens at B. S. Moss's Broadway Theatre this evening.

SENATOR JOHNSON TRIUMPHS.

HIRAM JOHNSON proudly steps forward to exhibit Senator HARDING as the captive of his bow and spear. The California Senator knows when he has forced a complete surrender. He also can read the English language, and knows what words mean. When, therefore, he asserts that Mr. HARDING's speech is a "firm and emphatic stand" against the League of Nations, further doubting about what the Republican candidate said or intended is either absurd or perverse.

Yet some troubled Republican newspapers go on pretending that Senator HARDING must have used language with a double meaning. The Philadelphia Public Ledger, for example, labors heavily to show that things are not what they seem in the HARDING speech. Yet it is pursued by a horrid doubt that the candidate did, after all, quail before the demands and threats of JOHNSON and BORAH. In that case, The Ledger admits sorrowfully, the speech of acceptance "will be a disappointment to millions of Republicans who feel that the League of Nations, properly safeguarded, offers a practical chance to diminish at least the dangers of war." But why dispute over subtle glosses upon HARDING's speech? His words are susceptible of but one honest interpretation. The sole question is, Can the Party of Intelligence read?

LENIN'S REAL WAR.

The true fighting front of Bolshevism is not on the Polish frontier. It is in Moscow, where the Third International is now, amid starving Russia, holding its sessions with the accompaniment of elaborate feasts. LENIN may or may not agree, temporarily, to a peace with Poland. But he makes no concealment of his purpose to wage a ruthless war upon property and self-government in every country on earth. The universal revolution is the doctrine which he preaches with boldness and admirable consistency to the motley delegates at Moscow. All the great Socialist organizations of Europe and America held aloof from this Third International. But that does not cause the flicker of an eyelid in LENIN. An audience made up chiefly of Turks and Chinese is as good as any other to listen to his appeals to the proletariat everywhere to rise, slay and eat. Russia means nothing to LENIN. He would without a tremor sacrifice Russia to the universal revolution. Human life means nothing to him. What to any country are 1,000,000 lives, he has asked, compared with the blessings of the dictatorship of the proletariat? To BERTRAND RUSSELL, in a recent interview, LENIN said: "Nothing will do any good except the arming of the proletariat. Those who preach anything else are social traitors or deluded fools."

Mr. BERTRAND RUSSELL has begun giving in The London Nation the impressions which he brought away from Russia after a visit of more than a month. They are pretty sad and disillusionized. Mr. RUSSELL has confirmed the wise remark of GEORGE ELIOT: "If you would have a hero, you must never make a pilgrimage to his shrine." LENIN was very much of an intellectualized hero to Mr. RUSSELL until he made a pilgrimage to Moscow, talked with LENIN, and took some journeys into the interior of Russia. Having studied the dictatorship of the proletariat at close range, he declares that he is "definitely and strongly opposed to it." He saw it in Moscow turning Communists into men who, amid universal misery, lived like luxurious aristocrats and bore themselves like cruel tyrants. The system is appalling enough as applied in Russia alone, Mr. RUSSELL reluctantly reports; if made universal it would, in his opinion, submerge civilization for a thousand years.

Another Socialist from the outside, the Norwegian, JAKOB FRISS, recently tapped the ideas of LENIN at the fountain head. The Bolshevist Premier was as terrifyingly frank with him as he is with the Third International. There is no hope for the world except in a forcible seizure of all wealth and all government by the proletariat. A bloody revolution in all countries is the only way to fight "capitalism" successfully. Peasants who do not go along with the Bolsheviki are to be slaughtered just as remorselessly as bankers. "Do you intend, then," FRISS asked LENIN, "to use the Red Army against the 'internal enemy'?" "Yes, of course," was the prompt reply, "what the peasants call a 'divine natural right' we call high treason."

Such are the views, such the purposes, of the men now in control of Central Russia. The real war remains, in their mind, to be fought. They would regard a Polish peace, as they regarded the Treaty of Brest-Litovsk, merely as a "breathing spell" in preparation for the worldwide struggle to kill all men who have property and to destroy every existing Government. The thing, to be sure, is impossible. Not even in Russia can the attempt go on much longer. Mankind and civilization are not going to jump into the abyss at LENIN's bidding. But it is just as well to have a clear idea of what he is aiming at.

THE CAPTURED CODE.

Mr. E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM must be sunk in chagrin. The Sinn Feiners, we are told, have captured the code used by the members of the British royal family in private messages. What could not Mr. OPPENHEIM do with that idea, if he had happened to think of it first? But now it is everybody's property, open to the use of any romancer; and the Sinn Feiners are making pitifully little out of it. The best they seem to have been able to accomplish so far is the sending of a code message to King GEORGE asking him to take the British Army out of Ireland, a request which that highly constitutional monarch of course disregarded.

One feels that the secret service of Sinn Fein is in the hands of a somewhat unimaginative person, one in whom the ancient tradition of Irish humor has been extinguished by the waters of bitterness and suspicion. If Mr. BERNARD SHAW, for instance, had that code, he could make it really exciting for the members of the royal family. The most vindictive rebel couldn't make it really embarrassing. If somebody had captured the private code of HENRY VIII., for example, the kingdom might have been shaken to its foundations. And if MARY STUART had had the luck to come upon the code of her royal cousin, a great light might have been thrown upon some dark spots of English history. But times have changed. The world is becoming offensively respectable and royalty is leading the way. If the blameless GEORGE got a code message saying "Meet me in the Leicester Lounge at 7," he would probably turn it over to his wife. The faith of modern Britons in parliamentary institutions may be somewhat shaken, but at any rate their sovereign is proof against the knavish tricks of the seditious.

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC TRADE.

No other nation in any year ever had a foreign trade of thirteen billions. For the fiscal year ended with June the United States exported $8,111,176,000 and imported $5,238,746,000 worth of goods. It is impossible to overlook such a commercial factor as a credit balance of $2,872,429,000, although this country has exceeded that figure several times. The hugeness of our accounts with the world naturally attracts attention. Yet it is less important than the quality of the trade, which leaves almost everything to be desired. Foreign trade is normal in proportion as it is balanced and steady, leaving a minimum of unsettled accounts and financial disturbance. There are no records of foreign trade so unbalanced and unstable as ours. It plunges about by the billion in a year, and even by hundreds of millions in a single month. Our credit balance for 1918 was a billion under 1919, when it reached its maximum of $4,136,562,000. Last month our credit balance was $78,000,000, the smallest since the war began. It compares with the maximum, $635,463,660, in 1919. Last year there was a record maximum of exports for June, $928,379,203; this year there is a record maximum of imports for June, $553,000,000.

Business of the nature indicated is not and cannot be done in the exchange market. Larger totals could be cared for easily if they approximated, but when they differ on such a scale it is necessary that the balance should be redressed in some way. The most authoritative summary of our trade for 1919 which has been made, by Messrs. Vanderlip and Williams, is not able to balance it by $1,307,000,000. No one has attempted to make a similar summary of our uncovered balance for the war period. No one knows how we can stop selling with safety to ourselves at home. On the one hand there are enticing book profits. On the other there is a check to extension of credits. Our experience with indigestible securities disinclines us to another with indigestible goods. A financial crisis is bad enough, but recovery may be quick and complete. An economic crisis is a matter of years in recovery.

Perhaps a more serious question of business policy was never before the country. Is it better to continue our foreign trade at high pressure or to reduce it arbitrarily, with the consequences which cannot be overlooked? How can we expect a fall in prices when the foreign bid is so enormous and enticing? How can we finance a trade so profitable and yet so uncertain of payment? One answer at least is that the quickest and best way to cheapen domestic prices is to promote foreign production. The more foreign buyers supply their home wants the smaller will be their demand on this market. In proportion as foreigners increase their production of goods the greater will be their ability to make spot settlements for their American purchases by payment in goods. It will be more than one crop year yet before foreign consumers will be able to feed themselves. The payment of billions of debts in goods is a matter certainly of years. Our foreign debtors must work their way to a surplus. They can spare us only what they do not need to live, and there are those among us who are rather disposed to prevent than to promote the receipt of our debts in goods. Last week the United Peanut Associations of America resolved that a protective tariff on peanuts is necessary to prevent our markets being supplied from China. Many share this fear of cheap competitive goods in theory, although individually they regard such bargains as profitable. Last year we exported $316,052,406 more gold than we imported, and it is the third successive year that we have had an excess of exports of gold, after an equal period of imports of gold exceeding a billion over exports. The richest nations have their troubles, perhaps in some proportion to their riches.

POSTPONEMENT A CONFESSION.

The decision to call off the yacht race on Saturday was by agreement of both parties. Doubtless the reasons were convincing. If, as alleged, the sailing of Resolute and Shamrock in a twenty-five knot wind would have endangered not merely spars and hulls, but possibly the lives of the seamen on board, then it was both prudent and humane to give up the race. But in the very act what a confession is involved! Here we have confirmed in the most striking manner the belief which many yachtsmen have long held—namely, that the Cup contests have resulted in developing, both in challenger and defender, mere racing machines, "tender" and fragile in the extreme. They dared not go out in a blow which would have been only a delight to skippers of well-built thirty-footers. Marblehead and Newport must laugh consumedly at what happened on Saturday off Sandy Hook. The old argument for so altering the conditions of the America's Cup races as to call for sturdy ocean-going contenders is powerfully reinforced by Saturday's postponement. A change would be better both for sport and for yacht building.

SENATOR WADSWORTH.

Mr. JAMES W., WADSWORTH, Jr., is an amiable and well-bred man, who hasn't set the Potomac on fire from the Senate Chamber. As a rule, he has been a docile machine Republican. He has shown, however, courage and independence by his opposition to the Eighteenth and the Nineteenth Amendment. He chose the losing side. He accepts the verdict given on the former and sure to be given on the latter. In regard to prohibition it is probable that a majority of the people of the State agreed with him. In regard to Federal woman suffrage he represented at least a very numerous minority.

While the nomination, if it can be made, of some Republican of larger intellectual force is desirable, some of the opposition to Mr. WADSWORTH is likely to stir sympathy for him among the fair-minded. Many of us have long been impatient with the imperious pragmatism of the New York Anti-Saloon League. To its head, who modestly suggested to Mr. WADSWORTH that he withdraw "for the good of the Republican Party," the Senator, declining the kind invitation, wrote that one of the momentous issues to be decided next Fall "is whether or not irresponsible and reckless agitators can succeed in their efforts to terrorize men in public life into abject submission to their will, and thus destroy popular government."

That is an unloving but a fair reply. One may doubt if the Anti-Saloon League and its ever-busy Superintendent can be magnified into issues of immense importance," and yet what enmity Mr. WADSWORTH has drawn upon himself from that source won't hurt him with a good many of his fellow-citizens.

The war made on him by some of the woman suffragists seems ill-judged, however earnest the convictions and excellent the intentions of the leaders. Woman suffrage by constitutional amendment is an accepted fact in women's and men's minds, even if ratification be delayed for a little. The advisability of Federal woman suffrage was doubted even by some friends of State woman suffrage. The great debate is ended. In its course many millions of Americans held the opinions which Mr. WADSWORTH is to be punished for holding and voting. Shouldn't bygones be bygones? Shouldn't all of us "get together" to make woman suffrage fulfill in operation the hopes of its eagerest advocates? Shouldn't woman suffragists show broad-mindedness, a spirit above political grudges, revenges, punishments?

The League of Women Voters has sent a questionnaire to Mr. WADSWORTH. Didn't he delay the ratification of the Nineteenth Amendment? If he did, it was his right. Isn't he now "plotting" with other Republican leaders to postpone ratification until after the election? This question looks humorous. The Republicans and the Democrats are squabbling as to which pines the harder for instant ratification. Ratification is not a political or party question. It is a question of days or week or months. It is certain. The matters with which Mr. WADSWORTH's successor will have to deal are other and living. Be he Democrat or Republican, he should be named and elected for his fitness to deal with the case. His course in the past should be taken into account, but not his course about dead and gone questions.

By the way, is there a League of Men Voters?

THE AGED GOLFER'S LAMENT.

Often described, with a curious disregard of the swarming infant prodigies of the links, as "an old man's game," golf is undoubtedly most played and therefore best supported by men beyond the first flush of youth. This does not mean that they are incapable of flushing with anger. One source of wrath to many of them has long been the increasing difficulties of golf courses. Their complaint is that the new links, or the old ones remodeled, are all designed for the crack young performers who play from scratch, or with a handicap of 5 or lower. Meanwhile the men whose handicap increases with their age, till it gets to be 18 or 20, are left floundering in bunkers or raging in long grass or furious as they face impossible carries. They protest that the links are laid out not for the great majority, but for the 1 per cent. of players to whom traps and long shots present no terrors, but rather a stimulus and delight.

One of these suffering veterans of the links has unbosomed his griefs in a letter to The London Times. He makes a plea for the middle-aged golfer. His first assertion is that the new courses are "too long for forty." A man who talks about forty and middle age in the same breath rather puts himself out of court. We have changed the "Age of Wisdom" since THACKERAY bade the pretty page with the dimpled chin to "wait till you come to forty year." But let us hear the argument for the prosecution. It is that ninety-nine golfers out of every hundred enjoy the game, but are not very good at it; that golf is more and more made solely for the experts; while the average or poor players, who really maintain the courses, are by the incessant "stiffening" of the links "damned eternally to be playing in the rough" or else in the sand, "watching the young and hardy pass us by." "Hearken unto the cry of the middle-aged." "Were I to draw up petitions, I know of two Prime Ministers at least who would head the weary phalanx with their names." While there is talk of standardizing golf balls, should there not be some attempt to establish a criterion of play more favorable to the bent and white-haired toilers of the tee?

A golf architect—that most modern of professional men—made a severe reply in the next issue of The Times. He set the protester down hard. Not consider the high handicap players? They are the very ones for whom the difficult courses are constructed. The ingeniously placed hazards and the perilous shots are designed to penalize the scratch player. They need not bother the duffer at all, if he will only remember his handicap and his limitations, and play short instead of attempting the impossible. The wrath, anger, malice and all uncharitableness of the old men on the links arise from their insane desire to get the same distance and the same accuracy as the top-notchers. If only the 18-handicap man would not be fool enough to try to imitate the feats of the plus player, we should not hear all these silly complaints about the courses having been made too hard.

Such is the technical reply to a technical protest. It certainly will not satisfy the lamenting middle-aged golfer. Better success might be had with him, perhaps, if he were approached on the moral and philosophical side of his favorite game. Let him imitate, not VARDON nor DUNCAN, but ARTHUR BALFOUR, who must have learned a great deal of his defense of philosophic doubt on the links, where also he discovered, very likely, how unstable are the foundations of belief. Let golf be once elevated to its true position as a mental and moral discipline for creatures capable of receiving it, and all questions about scores that are too high and bunkers that are too deep become merely as the small dust in the balance.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Mr. Seward's Complete Vindication.

It has been many a day, now, since anybody has believed that Alaska was well named by those who called it "Seward's Folly," or that in giving Russia $7,000,000 and a little more for it the famous Secretary paid a price absurdly high. On the contrary, for years past it has been realized by everybody that either by foresight or luck the purchase was one of the best bargains for territory that ever was made—not so good, of course, as the one President JEFFERSON made when he bought "Louisiana" for not much more, and perhaps no better than the acquirement of Manhattan Island in return for an iron kettle, but certainly close enough to the record still to give those who have the profitable end of the trade that warm feeling of satisfaction most mortals feel when they get a lot for a little.

Full reason as we have, however, for self-congratulation on the acquisition of Alaska for a sum that nowadays would be no more than small change in international dickerings, something of the incredulity felt in Secretary SEWARD's day revives on reading the eulogy on Alaska, the glories of its climate, the abundance and diversity of its natural resources just made by Secretary DANIELS.

For all that he said, of course, there is a basis of known fact. The gold of which he speaks is there, in quantities, presumably, only hinted by the primitive sort of mining as yet done. The copper deposits are probably worth more than the gold, and the coal more than both of them put together. Oil may surpass the three in value. Yet—well, Alaska is in latitudes disquietingly high, and its Winters are terribly long and terribly cold.

His Tour Personally Conducted.

What chiefly wakens dubiety concerning Secretary DANIELS's report on Alaska is the fact that he went there when the country was at its very best, with continuous sunshine doing its not unsuccessful best to make up for Summer's brevity, and to cause forgetfulness of the months when there is no sunshine at all. On such a tour as his, too, one sees all of a great region's attractions in a state of such concentration as the fixed resident never experiences, and the other side of the shield is turned away out of sight. None the less, the Secretary's advice, "Go North!" is good advice for men in whom the spirit of adventure is strong, and the willingness as well as the ability to meet danger and endure hardship is fully developed.

The dangers and the hardships of Alaska are far less than they were when the first rush was made for Nome or the second to the Klondike, but they are still sufficiently numerous and severe to make it judicious for all except worthy successors of the old frontiersmen to remain in gentler climes. Secretary DANIELS saw one Alaska, but there is another—the Alaska of the long Arctic night and the cruel cold. To find that night and cold more than tolerable—really to like it—one must be a descendant of the Vikings, like STEFANSSON.

What Are They Afraid Of?

According to the Attorney General of Kansas, the women of that State need not tell their exact ages in registering as voters. It will meet all requirements of the law, he declares, if they say—and swear—that they are "over 21." It is not stated that any of the Kansas women would have disfranchised themselves if they could not have avoided betrayal of the carefully guarded secret of their years, but it is asserted that in Topeka and elsewhere in Kansas great numbers of them are joining 21-Plus Clubs and so giving to one another support and countenance in resisting the demands of grumpy registration clerks who have been giving another reading to the election laws.

The matter is not one of vital, or even large, importance, and there are men as well as women, and not a few of them, who are reluctant to tell their ages, and never do so if they can help it. In the case of men the motive for concealing this detail of personal history is usually economic—it has relation to the getting and keeping of salaried positions. When that consideration can be ignored most men speak of their ages freely. Many women are equally little reticent nowadays, but by no means a majority of them, anywhere, have yet conquered the effects of following through innumerable generations the custom of leaving the matter of age as uncertain as appearance will permit. For this there was doubtless adequate reason, as there was and is for every well-established "folkway."

With all due respect for the Attorney General of Kansas, there is temptation to ask him why he thinks all registration laws make what hitherto has been taken for a demand for the would-be voter's exact age. It is not so much to find out if they are old enough to vote as to help in identification, and "over 21" will not do that for any voter long.

They Must Work Together.

In the prevention of profiteering in foods, as in the enforcement of prohibition, there seems to have developed here and elsewhere a spirit of animosity between the Federal officials and those serving States and cities. The result is that they refuse to co-operate, or do so reluctantly, and therefore inefficiently.

This is to be regretted, of course, in both cases; but while there are people, several of them in every community, who will not grieve over the difficulties thus caused with respect to the further rigors of prohibition, there will be a close approach to unanimity in urging all officials having to do with keeping down or preventing the raising of food prices to work together. Only the profiteers will rejoice in dissension among their official foes, and their rejoicing will not be audible outside of their own circle.

So while our Commissioner of Public Markets, E. J. O'Malley, may be technically right in saying that it is not his business to provide the Department of Justice with evidence for use in prosecutions under a Federal law, he will not be serving the public as well as he might if he continues to withhold from the Federal Attorney, L. W. Ross, any such evidence as he may possess.

To have wholesale prices going down and retail prices stationary or advancing is a most irritating state of affairs, and there will be much just resentment if official jealousies help to perpetuate that condition.

Noise a Menace to Health.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have forty-two patients whose illness is seriously aggravated by the unnecessary noises of our city streets.

Why should boys be allowed to fight and wrangle over their ball games from 9 A. M. until dark every day of the week?

Why are motorcycles allowed to run with wide open cutouts, and I have yet to see one that is not run that way.

Why are ear-piercing, nerve-racking auto horns, whistles and sirens allowed on autos and bicycles?

The health of our people is at stake, and these and other unnecessary noises are a serious menace to the nerves of both young and old. MEDICUS.

HARDING'S SPEECH.

"Understandings" an Easy Way to Solve All Problems.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Understanding" is the alchemy with which Mr. Harding would solve all our problems. It is as simple as A B C. All one has to do is to have an "understanding."

Let us hear him in his speech accepting the Republican nomination to the Presidency.

Speaking on the League of Nations he rejects the covenant under which the League is now operating, and says:

"I would hopefully approach the nations of Europe and of the earth, proposing the understanding which makes us a willing participant in the consecration of nations to a new relationship."

That is, he would substitute for the formal League an "understanding"!

Speaking of the difficult situation as between capital and labor, Mr. Harding says—in this same speech:

"I want the employers in industry to understand the aspirations, the convictions, the yearnings of the millions of American wage-earners, and I want the wage-earners to understand the problems, the anxieties, the obligations of management and capital, and all of them must understand their relationship to the people and their obligation to the Republic."

Obviously it is all a mistake that this conflict between capital and labor presents grave difficulties. All that is necessary is an "understanding"!

Elect Mr. Harding and, to be sure, they will straightway "understand" one another and—him!

And again, we had thought that Mexico really presented a problem to America—with her assassin governments, her overtures to Germany and Japan, her bandits, her interminable disorder. But, again, we are all mistaken. Hear how simple a matter it is as stated by Mr. Harding in this same speech:

"It will be simple to have a plain and neighborly understanding about respecting our borders, about protecting the lives and possessions of American citizens lawfully within Mexican dominions."

There has been nothing like this in history. A great party, in a solemn hour, asks a great Republic to elect as President a man who comes forward and proposes no program of defined policies, no specific remedies for our ills, no measures of human advancement, but meets every demand of the most perplexing time in human history with the statement, "All we need is a mutual understanding."

If any one but a Presidential candidate had come forward with such piffle, he would have been laughed off the platform. As it is, the world must stand in amazement at the simplicity and the utter futility of him whom a great party proposes to take the helm of the Ship of State in the midst of the storm.

The Republicans would have done better had they named as their candidate some new thought savant, proposing to save us by means of "vibrations," or some sleight-of-hand performer with Aladdin's lamp. J. W. BAILEY.

Raleigh, N. C., July 22, 1920.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Knox resolution was intended to end war between the United States and Germany actually, technically and officially. Mr. Harding announces that he will support a resolution of this kind although we all know President Wilson turned it down.

Now the question I want to ask is entirely outside the legality of such a resolution; it is this: If war is declared ended between these nations what power will the United States thereafter have to enforce any demand she may have against Germany? I hear that $750,000,000 of American property was confiscated during the war, and that the lives of those lost on the Lusitania should be compensated for. Now if we declare ourselves at peace with Germany without a signed treaty with a full agreement on these subjects—and we certainly have none—how will Germany deal with us if we make such demands? Will we not at once be compelled to withdraw our troops and as far as possible accept her kindly invitation with no power of redress? R. S. TURK.

Staunton, Va., July 24, 1920.

SMOKERS' STRIKE.

Won't Buy Tobacco or Pipes at Present Prices.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why not, I ask you, a smokers' strike?

Here is one class that can strike without injuring the rights of the public—who but the strikers and the class struck against would suffer even if the strike lasted for a century?

Here also is one strike that could win in a walk in a week. One week of all smokers refusing to light pipe, cigar or cigarette unless terms were met would bring the tobacco barons to that graceful bodily position which was the sentence pronounced on the serpent in Biblical days.

And surely if ever a body of citizens were profiteered against it is the general rank and file of smokers today. We have all seen our favorite brands of cigarettes, cigars and pipe tobacco climbing, climbing up the golden stairs, but with most of us the ascent has been so much a day-by-day affair of here a little, there a little, that we have not fully realized the great altitude reached.

The writer, at any rate, had not—and did not until his trusty old briar of two years' friendship crumpled up one afternoon this week and gave up the ghost. I went at once to replace it. Great Scott! Pipes of a style I have been smoking, which cost me about $4 a year or two ago, are now $10 and $12! In the chain stores, to which I finally turned as a sort of haven of refuge, thinking that with their "cut prices" I could at least find a pipe I had money enough to pay for, I met the good old-fashioned applewood bowl with the celluloid stem—the 50-centers of a few years ago—marked $5, $6 and $7! And the clerks very cocky about it.

Now we smokers can expect no help from Federal or State price commissions. We are sort of out of court. Many people, I suspect, will be glad to see us being soaked. If we are not to continue as soakees we have got to help ourselves and depend on no one else.

Personally, when I found my old friend, the 50-cent pipe of my boyhood, swelled up and swaggering under a price label of $5, that settled it. I struck—all by myself. Right then and there I quit. I refused to buy a new pipe, I have continued to refuse, I refuse every cigar and cigarette offered me, and I am going to stick as long as prices stay up where they are. Now will any one join me? With, say, one out of every ten smokers on strike we could bust the tobacco barons in just about a week.

It's not nearly so hard a matter to stay off the weed as we usually think. In fact, for myself I'm getting on so well that I strongly suspect I'll never smoke again, be prices high or low. But whether or no, if some more good fellows will come on and join me in this little strike we can break the prices for those of us who do go back. Make this your motto: No more smoking until prices are cut in two!

MARINE RESERVES PRAISED.

Colonel Wood Tells of Division's Work at Dinner After Review.

Police reserves of the Marine Division stationed on fifty motor vessels of various types passed in review yesterday morning in Gravesend Bay, with Colonel William E. Wood, Chief of Staff of the reserves, and Inspector John F. Dwyer as reviewing officers on the police boat John F. Hylan. Mayor Hylan, expected to review the men, declined the invitation to appear, his son-in-law, John F. Sinnott, explaining that the Mayor expected to be out of town.

Special Deputy Police Commissioner Rodman Wanamaker, the upbuilder of the reserves, was unable to be present because of the critical illness of his mother in Atlantic City. After the review a dinner was held at the Ulmer Park Casino, and brief addresses were made by Captain Harold Anness, who presided, and Inspector Dwyer and Colonel Wood.

"You men are doing a wonderful work for the City of New York," said Colonel Wood, "and the average citizen is not aware of the fact that you not only supply your own boats, give of your time, but also pay for all the gasoline and other supplies neeeded, without receiving a penny of compensation from the city. Through the illness of Commissioner Wanamaker's mother he is unable to be with us today, but you may rest assured he is with you in spirit and knows of everything you are doing in your great field of endeavor."

Inspector Dwyer praised the harbor division and said it was second to none among departments of its kind. He said it was a branch of the city's protective system which every citizen should know more about. Medals were presented to eight members of the service by Commissioner Wanamaker, through Colonel Wood. They were Lieutenant Commander William H. Robbins, Lieutenant George Campbell, Lieutenant George J. Boesch, Lieutenant Edward Moore, Lieutenant Neil Tolberg and Seamen Theodore Nason, Edward Hart and George Schwartz.

BOLIVIA BACK TO NORMAL.

Chilean Cabinet and Press Continue to Discuss the New Situation.

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 25.—According to advices from La Paz, Bolivia, the telegraphic censorship has been lifted and the country is virtually normal. La Nacion today publishes a Paris interview with Ismael Montes, former Bolivian President, and former Minister to France, asserting: "The change in Government at La Paz is a motive of internal political struggles and has absolutely no connection with affairs of an international character in which Bolivia is interested."

As far as can be learned in semi-official quarters here, there have been no outstanding developments in the international situation in the last two days. There was a Council of Chilean Ministers on Saturday, at which it was said the latest diplomatic exchanges in connection with the Bolivian situation were discussed.

The United States Ambassador, Judge Joseph H. Shea, held a conference with the Minister of Foreign Relations, and the Associated Press understands the Minister at Washington has been informed that the Government is in touch with S. Abott Maginnis, United States Minister at La Paz, and is studying the question of recognition of the new regime in Bolivia, but that no declaration in this regard can yet be made.

El Mercurio says it learns that the Cabinet will meet again on Monday, after which it is probable an official statement will be forthcoming. The press continues to discuss the situation. La Nacion, after remarking on the long broken diplomatic relations between Peru and Chile and the sudden turn of events in Bolivia, says: "The commonest prudence requires that Chile guard her northern frontiers. But we repeat that Chile's northern problem has been, is and will be diplomatic more than military."

BACK TO NORMAL TARIFF.

France Now Prohibits Importations of Only Twenty Articles.

PARIS, July 25. — The new order on prohibited importations, introduced by a decree published in today's Journal Officiel, virtually brings France back to its normal tariff. Twenty articles are still prohibited, but the new decree, unlike its predecessor of April 23 last, allows special permits.

The prohibited articles include fine pearls, cut flowers, precious stones, cut stones, except those for industrial use, embroidery, small clocks, watches and material for watches, regulation arms, rifles, cartridges, ancient arms for collections, gun carriages, empty war cartridges, projectiles and various unfermented juices from which wines or liquors might be distilled.

The customs dutics are in the nature of a super tax, but bring up the percentage of protection to pre-war rates on goods which have greatly increased in value.

HERRERA TAKES OFFICE.

Becomes Constitutional President of Guatemala.

SAN SALVADOR, July 25.—Carlos Herrera today took the oath of office of President of the Republic of Guatemala.

Senor Herrera is a former President of Guatemala, and since the ousting of President Estrada Cabrera, early in the present year, has been provisional President.

Both the Unionists and the Democrats supported Herrera for President. The new President in his manifesto accepting the nomination declared himself in favor of a reduction of the Presidential term to four years and prohibiting re-election consecutively," in order that never again may one man remain in power indefinitely.

Documents to Prove Egyptian Nationalist Conspiracy Shown in Court

CAIRO, Egypt, July 25.—The trial of Abdul Rahman Bey, local secretary of the Egyptian Nationalist delegation, who, with twenty-eight others, is charged with conspiracy, is becoming the vehicle for airing the aims of the Nationalists.

The prosecution dramatically disclosed several documents at yesterday's hearing, which it was said the Government had seized, showing the existence of an organization and machinery for the purpose of ousting the English from Egypt. The prosecutor declared the ramifications of the organization were worldwide.

HINES GOES TO THE ELBE.

American Arbitrator Has Completed Study of Danube.

VIENNA, July 24.—Walker D. Hines, who recently was appointed to arbitrate the various questions between European powers concerning navigation on the Central European waterways, returned here today from a trip on the lower Danube.

SEE GREATER CRISIS OCT. 1

Committee Favors Indirect State or Federal Aid and Construction Priority.

Nathan Hirsch, ex-Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, in a letter made public yesterday suggested the creation by city or State of a fund of $20,000,000 to be applied to building loans. The Mayor's Conference Committee on Housing, completing two months of work, reported the need for an indirect Federal and State subsidy for the encouragement of private capital and urged the establishment of a priority system for dwelling construction.

Mr. Hirsch's suggestion was made in a letter to Senator Charles C. Lockwood, Chairman of the Joint Legislative Housing Committee. The Conference Committee reported directly to the Mayor.

"I do not think the city should go into any building operations," Mr. Hirsch wrote, "but I do think that the city or State should be authorized to apply a fund of not less than $20,000,000 to be used under carefully guarded restrictions and under the supervision of a non-partisan committee as building loans, which would eventually be converted into permanent, amortized, long-term first mortgages.

"This committee should have the right to issue certificates similar to those now issued by the title companies. These certificates should be absolutely tax exempt, thereby creating a very ready market for their sale. The committee by making a very slight charge could be made self-supporting. When the acute housing condition is over, this committee should be dissolved. If as an emergency measure the tax were taken off real estate mortgages on dwellings for a period of ten years it would also help the situation."

Says Savings Banks Should Aid.

In Mr. Hirsch's opinion the savings banks could be of material aid, "for instead of investing their funds in bonds, each savings bank should be compelled by law to open a department where building loans could be obtained." He pointed out that a bill was passed at the last session of the Legislature making it easier for savings banks to do business of this kind, but he doubted whether any had taken advantage of the law.

"It is almost impossible today to get money on bond and mortgage either from savings banks or any other loaning institutions," he said, "and if this condition is not remedied it will work not only to the detriment of the owners of real estate but also to the detriment of the tenants, because it will put a stop to building altogether.

"The way to arrive at how much rent a landlord can charge, or should charge, is not by allowing him to exact 25 per cent. more one year and then another advance the next year, but by proceeding along the lines adopted by the United States Government. This is to find out what it would cost to reproduce the building, add to this the running expenses, taxes, &c., and then add a sum for ordinary wear and tear and finally a reasonable return on the amount of money invested should be permitted. This would be fair to both landlord and tenant. The present laws, while they are doing some good, in a great many instances are a hardship to both landlord and tenant, and I therefore respectfully suggest that at a special session the laws in question should not be repealed but so amended as to make the rights of the landlord and tenant absolutely clear, the rights of the tenant being particularly guarded to the fullest extent."

Three Factors Retard Building.

Three factors prevent the construction of dwelling houses. They are the shortage of labor, the shortage of building materials and the shortage of capital.

"Any of these three factors would be sufficient to seriously cripple the building of houses," says the report of the Mayor's Conference Committee, "but when all three are combined the situation is indeed serious and must be met by drastic and unusual methods. It must also be added that the situation is made more acute by the erection of several large business buildings which are under way and which greatly shorten the supply of labor and materials so badly needed for the erection of houses.

"A survey of conditions by the committee has justified the belief that the present famine of housing space will be manifestly more acute by Oct. 1 than at present appears, when thousands of families will be returning to the city from quarters now temporarily occupied by them in the country and at the seashore resorts," the report continued.

"Your committee finds that there is but one solution of the situation, namely, build houses. Actual construction is imperative. A crisis has been reached. Action, not talk, is required. The whole energy of the community must be bent toward new construction for a time. 'Own your own home' should be the slogan. Building and ownership of houses must be encouraged. Drastic laws against landlords will not build houses. The law of supply and demand must ultimately control.

"Your committee does not think a direct subsidy is feasible, nor does it believe that any plan for municipal or State building construction is either practicable or desirable. Any plan that will enable the State or city to build houses must of necessity be delayed too long to be of any practical value, even if it were not objectionable from an economic and governmental point of view. No such plan could be put into operation without first having the State Constitution amended, which would mean that the State or City Government could not begin actual building for practically three years.

"Your Committee believes, therefore, that the proper solution will be obtained by the government offering some substantial inducement. It accordingly recommends the enactment of legislation to exempt immediately all income derived from real estate mortgages from income taxes of the State and Federal Government and to exempt new houses from local taxes for a limited period of time. Unless such a law is enacted the danger is quite manifest that in a very short time

BELFAST DEAD 17; RIOTS IN 3 TOWNS

'DARKEST TIME IN 60 YEARS'

Sir Horace Plunkett Says Situation Is Blacker in Ireland Than He Has Ever Known.

ALARM GROWS IN ENGLAND

Lloyd George's Remarks Taken to Indicate That a Severe Struggle Is Coming.

BELFAST, July 25 (Associated Press). —The military, which is being steadily reinforced, not only by men but by armored cars, the latter for the present being kept in barracks, was the busiest body in Belfast today, for, although a steady downpour of rain gave hope that the enthusiasm of the rioters would dampen, the authorities were taking no chances.

Barricades in all of the disturbed sections were strengthened with further sandbags, more wire was erected and more men were added to the pickets, including more seasoned soldiers.

The precautions were not ill-timed, for early this afternoon another saloon in the Falls Road district was wrecked and the premises of certain hardware merchants met a similar fate.

The death list as a result of the recent fighting between the Unionists and Sinn Fein factions reached seventeen today when two women who were injured on Friday in the attack on St. Matthew's Convent and a man who was shot on Thursday died.

Police charges are ineffective, and soldiers have been brought out to restore order. Newtownards Road and neighboring streets, which have been so badly wrecked, presented a dismal appearance today. Bedraggled Union Jacks hung limply on their staffs, and those saloons and pawnshops which have thus far escaped the looters are closely boarded.

Rival factions stood in groups, ready at any signal for a renewal of the strife, having apparently ignored the appeals made from the pulpits of all sects today to avoid a provocative attitude.

Catholic Families Move.

There was quite an exodus of Catholic families from the Protestant section of Ballymacarrett. Drays were busy all day long moving furniture from residences which might be the object of attack to the other side of the city, where Catholics predominate.

Soldiers guarded the drays and in some cases army lorries were used to facilitate the change in abodes and thus lessen the danger of renewed disturbances. But there are still many hundreds of Catholics in Protestant districts and Protestants in Catholic districts, who have no hope of making a change. The authorities, however, are taking precautions against any attempt by either faction to march across the city and attack a rival district, with the possibility of leading to more serious events than have yet occurred.

At Lisburn, six miles southwest of Belfast, trouble was started by a crowd of youths singing an Orange song commemorating an encounter in County Down in 1849, in which unfavorable reference was made to the Pope. This brought a crowd which, when the cry went up of "Come, boys, let us have it," proceeded to Hibernian Hall. This was attacked with stones. Thence the crowd went to the residence of William Gilmore, said to be the first Sinn Feiner elected to the Lisburn Board of Guardians. The windows of the house were smashed and only the quick response of the fire brigade prevented it from being destroyed by fire.

Numerous other residences and stores were visited in turn and similarly dealt with. The small force of police was powerless, and the rioting ceased only when the rioters exhausted themselves.

At Ballynahinch, the scene of a battle in the 1798 rebellion, there was also an outbreak on Saturday night. Windows were smashed and attempts were made to burn the houses. These outbreaks are considered serious, as they show that the trouble radiating out of Belfast may become general.

Londonderry Restive.

There was a deal of excitement in Londonderry Saturday night and early Sunday in the expectation that the disturbances in Belfast might cause a revival of the trouble there. The military, who were reinforced, were called upon to separate the rival factions, which came into conflict at Bishop's Gate, the scene of so much fighting in the recent outbreak. Some soldiers were attacked and revolver shots were fired, one man being wounded, but the training of machine guns on the disturbed streets brought the situation back to normal.

"It is very quiet" was the report of the officers at various points in the city where trouble might be expected at 9 o'clock tonight. Rain was still falling heavily, driving the people indoors early. Vigilance was unrelaxed, however, the police and soldiers being at their posts in the downpour ready for emergencies.

How easily passions are aroused in the present circumstances is shown in the case of Bangor. A few nights ago a fire occurred in the Grand Hotel, necessitating evacuation by the guests. Last night a small force of troops arrived to take up quarters in the damaged hotel. The soldiers were received with enthusiastic cheers by the townsfolk. Thereupon a crowd gathered and began hustling a man believed to be a Sinn Feiner. The soldiers rescued and protected him. This seemed to anger the crowd, which began its march of destruction.

Murder Policeman at Church.

CORK, Ireland, July 25 (Associated Press).—Police Sergeant Mulhern, Chief of the Intelligence Department of West Cork, was shot dead today at the door of a church at Bandon, twenty miles southwest of Cork.

He had left the police barracks shortly before in civilian attire, and arrived at the porch of the church just as mass commenced, nearly all of the worshippers already being inside. He paused at the entrance, dipped his fingers in the font, and was killed while actually making the sign of the cross.

Mulhern's assailants were two masked men, hiding on the porch, who suddenly fired several revolver shots at arm's length and then escaped. Death was instantaneous. All members of the congregation were so horror-stricken that the service was suspended for an hour.

ENGLAND GRAVELY ALARMED.

Leaders Consider Irish Situation More Dangerous Than in 60 Years.

LONDON, Monday, July 26.—Sir Horace Plunkett, writing to The Times on the subject of labor's Irish conference with Premier Lloyd George, says that the British people must be reminded of two reasons why the Sinn Fein peacemaker asked for by the Premier is "not on the bridge between two extremes."

The first reason, says the writer, is that until recently any one putting himself in the position of peacemaker between the Government and the Sinn Fein would have been summarily jailed without charge or trial, and, secondly, "because the Irish people have lost all faith in the promises of the British Government."

Sir Horace continues: "Before the Irish tragedy is wantonly deepened by the rejection of the Minister's offer, it would be well if the British people ponder these two things carefully."

Referring to the labor leader, J. H. Thomas, Sir Horace points out that, speaking for the British people, Mr. Thomas would at least be heard with respect.

Sir Horace told a Newcastle audience on Saturday that the situation in Ireland is more gravely alarming than it has been within his knowledge of sixty years.

A similar view is reflected by the newspapers of both England and Ireland of all shades of politics. It found expression in all the speeches of Thursday's discussions in the House of Commons, even Sir Edward Carson declaring that he had never known anything like the state of anarchy prevailing and that "in three-quarters of Ireland the British Government has been entirely beaten."

Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, warned the country to brace itself against a bitter period in Irish history.

The rioting in Belfast has subsided, but there are plenty of signs that the lull is only temporary.

Both from Premier Lloyd George's statement to the labor delegation on Thursday and from Sir Hamar's speech it is considered apparent that the Government regards a parting of the ways as having been reached. One road leads toward negotiation with the Sinn Fein on the basis of a Dominion form of government, while the other apparently leads toward the bitter period which Sir Hamar foresees, with more soldiers and stricter laws for repression, foremost among them one for the trial of criminals by summary courts and the giving up of attempts to induce jurymen to answer to a summons.

There are two extreme factions in Ireland now, the Orangemen of the north, who insist upon maintaining the Irish system as it is, and the Sinn Feiners, who demand independence. Between these policies lies the middle course of dominion government, with Ulster excluded, which Premier Lloyd George has declared he is willing to consider.

Sir Horace Plunkett said today: "My hopes of a settlement lie far more in the organized workers of Great Britain than in any other agency.

"It is understood that James Henry Thomas, Labor member of the House of Commons, and other Laborites will follow the Premier's plain hint to bring the Sinn Fein leaders into a conference. That, however, would mean throwing overboard the principal plank of the Sinn Feiners' platform, which is an independent republic.

The Dublin correspondent of the London Times, who is the editor of the principal southern Unionist newspaper, the Irish Times, today urges the dominion form of government. He writes:

"The vast majority of Irishmen would welcome any reasonable and honorable escape from their present situation. They are standing on the edge of a volcano."

The correspondent expresses the belief that an offer of dominion home rule for twenty-six counties would find favor with all moderate Irishmen, and says the mass of southern Unionists are anxious for such an offer without delay.

The chief factor operating to bring Irish affairs to a head is the latest phase of warfare—that of retaliation. The events of the last few days have shown that when assassinations occur it means an outbreak of revenge by the other party, in which peaceable people suffer. There is no prediction how far these outbreaks may go.

Another battalion of soldiers arrived in Belfast today, making five on the ground. Three regiments of cavalry at Aldershot have been ordered to be ready to proceed to Ireland. The Lord Mayor of Belfast has issued an appeal to the citizens of that city for aid in restoring order, declaring that the authorities are determined to use drastic measures to deal with disorder.

Small interest has been excited in Ireland by the tentative proposals attributed to Mr. Lloyd George regarding dominion home rule with the partition of six Ulster counties. The Associated Press correspondent has seen several politicians of various views, and all agree that there is no immediate prospect of a settlement in that direction. Sir Horace Plunkett and his followers declared their belief that a firm offer of dominion rule for all of Ireland, leaving the Ulster position for adjustment within Ireland, might have a chance, but said no offer would be definite and authoritative. Most members of this section said they believed the quickest way out of the difficulty would be the establishment of a statutory elective convention of all Ireland, with the power to settle their own constitution.

There has been much activity during the last fortnight, and Sir Hamar has collected considerable opinion from the moderates, but the Sinn Fein is not committed in any way. The Volunteers are regarded as constituting a powerful influence against a compromise. Labor intervention through Mr. Thomas is said to be provoking Sinn Fein irritation. The Sinn Fein press says it considers Mr. Thomas merely as Mr. Lloyd George's "bonnet," acting in the interests of English domination and pushing forward dominion rule as a "red herring."

Today's Nationalist press resumes its denunciation of Sir Hamar's speech in the House of Commons on Thursday. The Freeman's Journal says: "Greenwood is the biggest flivver Canada ever sent to England."

The Irish Independent says: "Greenwood fails in the part of Cromwell because he has no initiative and has taken orders from Carson."

DUBLIN, July 25.—Arthur Griffith, the Sinn Fein leader and "Vice President of the Irish Republic," describes as an invention reports that authoritative attempts have been made from London to negotiate with Sinn Feiners for a settlement.

RIOT FOLLOWS SHEARING OF IRISH GIRL'S HAIR

Soldiers and Police Retaliate by Burning Sinn Fein Houses in Tipperary.

DUBLIN, July 25.—At Newport, Tipperary, last night a gang of men sheared the hair from a girl because she was keeping company with a policeman. Exasperated at the outrage, soldiers and police turned out and burned the houses of all the principal Sinn Feiners, causing them to fly for their lives.

Two Coast Guard stations in the Berhaven district were raided today. In one of the raids, at Ballygarvene, Chief Officer Snowin and Petty Officer Brown were killed.

WOULD APPLY CUBAN SYSTEM TO IRELAND

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—In a speech delivered tonight at a reception at Gonzaga Hall, in honor of Archbishop Daniel Mannix of Australia, Eamonn de Valera, "President of the Irish Republic," said he would have no hesitation in recommending to the Irish people that they agree to a stipulation with the British Government "such as that of the first article of the Platt amendment."

The Platt amendment, fathered by the late Senator Orville H. Platt of Connecticut, was incorporated in the Constitution of the Cuban Republic as a condition precedent to the withdrawal of United States troops from Cuba and the recognition of Cuban independence by the United States. The article which Mr. De Velera is willing to recommend to the Irish people as a basis of a peace agreement with the British Government reads as follows:

"That the Government of Cuba shall never enter into any treaty or other compact with any foreign power which will impair or tend to impair the independence of Cuba, nor in any manner authorize or permit any foreign power or powers to obtain by colonization of, for military or naval purposes or otherwise, lodgment in or control over any portion of said island."

In making this suggestion Mr. de Valera said: "The Irish people have time after time, as a matter of fact, shown themselves ready to let 'bygones be bygones.' We have been ready always and are ready now to sign a permanent eace between the two nations. Let Lloyd George appoint his plenipotentiaries—the Government of the Republic of Ireland is ready to appoint its representatives.

"I have already indicated my belief that the Irish people would be willing to relieve British anxiety about the future, in so far as that anxiety is legitimate or genuine, by agreeing to a stipulation such as that of the first article in the Platt amendment. I would have no hesitation myself in recommending such a course to the Irish people, and if a peace were signed on such terms I would gladly devote myself to the fostering of the same good relations between Ireland and Britain as exist between Ireland and the rest of the world.

"The whole truth is that the British Government does not want peace in Ireland, or will Ireland, except on terms which no real Irishman will accept—on the basis of Ireland's subjugation as a mere province of Britain.

"The Irish people have proclaimed their independence, have established a republic and mean to maintain it.

"Peace will only come when the last British soldier is removed from Ireland or when Britain is ready to treat with Ireland as a separate and independent national State."

AUSTRALIAN PREMIER REPUDIATES MANNIX

Says He Will Send High Commissioner Here to Speak Authoritatively.

MELBOURNE, July 25.—Premier William Morris Hughes, in a speech at Bendigo today, vigorously denounced the utterances in America of Archbishop Mannix of Melbourne.

"I want to tell the American people," said the Premier, "that Australia repudiates him. The Australian people look to America for a continuance of part of the British Empire and want to trade with America, whose destiny coincides with ours in the Pacific.

"I intend to appoint a High Commissioner in America, who will be able to speak authoritatively when a man like Mannix is responsible for utterances repugnant to Australians."

LABOR PARTY ATTEMPTS MEDIATION FOR IRELAND

Copyright, 1920, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, July 25.—The British Labor Party has been summoned to a meeting tomorrow in London for the purpose of discussing the new situation in Ireland caused by Prime Minister Lloyd George's statement to the Labor delegation that he is willing to discuss the Irish settlement with the Sinn Feiners on the basis that there will be no question of Irish independence or of coercion of Ulster.

The Irish trade unions are invited to attend, but it is not known whether they will accept, and if they do it is certain they will be unable to commit the political Sinn Fein leaders to any course.

Arthur Griffith, "Vice President of the Irish Republic" and political leader of the Sinn Feiners, refused to comment on the Premier's offer, and it is probable that the Premier must define his offer much more definitely before any reply is possible from the Sinn Fein.

Indirect negotiations have been going on for some time and the Premier feels this is the time to act. Mr. Lloyd George recognizes the failure of the British Government to maintain order in Ireland and the inadequacy of the present Home Rule bill to satisfy Irish sentiment. He is willing to go much further in the direction of full self-government to secure Irish peace and friendship, and to grant complete autonomy to Southern Ireland, retaining only military and naval control.

It is stated that the Belfast riots were deliberately fomented in order to prove to the Premier that Ulster will not consent to any such settlement.

The present situation is the most critical in the recent history of the Anglo-Irish negotiations, and there probably will be some dramatic gesture from the Premier which may change the whole situation and force the Sinn Fein to choose between an offer of friendship, with autonomy, or civil war in Ireland, accompanied by stern repression by England of all rebellious movements. At present both sides are manoeuvring for position and for support from the outside world.

KITTY MARION IS MISSING.

Employers, The Birth Control Review, Dubious of Suicide Threat.

Kitty Marion, one-time English actress and later one of the most active English militant suffragists, has been missing since July 14, when she wrote a note indicating that she planned suicide. Her letter was addressed to her employers, The Birth Control Review, 104 Fifth Avenue, and in it she complained of alleged police persecution, asserting that the police had badgered her in her efforts to sell the birth control propaganda along Broadway.

The disappearance of Miss Marion was disclosed by her employers, who said they did not believe that she had carried out the threat of self-destruction implied in her letter. The former suffragist lived at 245 West Fourteenth Street. Inquiry there yesterday produced only the landlady's statement that detectives had been there to get information about the missing woman. Miss Marion is 48 years old.

FUNERAL CROWD SEES FALL.

Spectator Across Street Plunges Off Roof in View of Hundreds.

While watching from an adjoining roof a crowd which had gathered in front of 69 Thatford Avenue, Brooklyn, where funeral services for lieutenant amuel Solovei, who died in France, were being held, Max Kaplan of 75 Thatford Avenue, fell to the ground yesterday afternon and was seriously injured. The assident was witnessed by several hundred people from the neighborhood.

Kaplan was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, where it was said he had fractured his spine and received internal injuries. It was not believed he would live. The body of lieutenant Solovei arrived Saturday on board the Princess Matoika.

Veteran Accidentally Shot.

HACKENSACK, N. J., July 25.—Ellsworth Swigert, who served, overseas, died in the Hackensack Hospital today from the effect of a bullet wound in the abdomen. He was showing a friend a revolver and it accidentally went off.

APPLEGATE BOARDS SHAMROCK TODAY

HIS SKILL HIGHLY PRAISED

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 25.—Captain Andrew Jackson Applegate will sail on board Shamrock tomorrow.

Shortly after noon today a large touring car sped up to the Applegate residence on East Ocean Avenue. In the car was Captain Albert Diaper, a representative of Captain Burton, the skipper of the Shamrock IV. He immediately inquired about the Captain, and was informed that he was down on board his sloop, the Charlotte, getting her in readiness for the sail with the yachts. Yesterday's rumors that Captain Applegate might not sail on the Shamrock tomorrow were disproved when it was learned that Captain Diaper made the special trip in the car to be sure that Applegate would be on hand this morning, ready to assist as usual in the final race. So that it is agreed upon and confirmed from no better judge than the advising skipper himself that he will unquestionably be on board the Shamrock when she leaves the stake boat for the fifth and deciding race of the international yachting series.

The reason for Captain Applegate not going aboard the Shamrock yesterday morning, when the boat left for the starting point off Ambrose Channel, was mutually agreed upon by the Jersey skipper and Captain Burton, was due, it has been stated, to the heavy southerly breeze that pointed south-southeast off shore, and would necessitate the entire crew allotment to handle the sails properly.

The Captain had submitted his charts, as he had agreed to do regularly, and Captain Burton accepted them. The Shamrock's skipper thought it most proper, since he received the necessary information from the Jersey skipper, that as many men as the boat would be allowed for crew men should be granted, although the exchange meant additional two crew men, one in place of the skipper's wife and the other instead of Captain Applegate. It was understood that the agreement was fully justified and everything was mutually settled. However, reports and rumors soon had the affair well exaggerated, especially so when it was learned from Sandy Hook that the Captain left to go aboard the Shamrock and then changed his mind, refusing to sail on her unless different arrangements were agreed upon.

But Captain Diaper stated upon leaving the Applegate residence that he fully intended having Applegate aboard and would by all means keep the challenger at her moorings until the Jersey skipper arrived. Captain Diaper of the Shamrock also added that he was fully convinced of the value of the assistance Captain Applegate rendered during the previous races.

The entire affair, said Captain Diaper, was caused by failure to understand just what both the Jersey skipper and Captain Burton had agreed upon.

Captain Applegate and Captain Burton had been on the most friendly terms, he said. He unhesitatingly replied that he never for the moment thought of appealing for another man at the wheel, and even though there have been experimental tacks made that may not have been to the complete satisfaction of every one aboard, nevertheless the Jersey skipper was absolutely confident and satisfied with the way in which the challenger was handled.

Captain Diaper was asked what he thought of Captain Turner being at the wheel. He refused to comment on the relative merits of Captains Burton and Turner, but he did assert that Captain Turner, who was at the wheel more or less when the Shamrock won over the Resolute, certainly showed exceptionally brilliant seamanship that would qualify him for skipper on any international yacht.

Captain Diaper, who has been by the wheel with Captains Burton, Turner and Applegate during the previous races, exonerated the statement made by Applegate yesterday afternoon, when the Jersey pilot asserted that the Shamrock had the breeze she wanted on Saturday, but realized that the heavy ground swell that came rolling in from the southeast would play havoc with the challenger.

"Permit me to say," said Captain Diaper, "that Captain Andrew Jackson Applegate's strategy of the waters in and about Sandy Hook as well as off shore is, in my opinion, superior to any I have ever met. Since being in this country, noting that nautical strategy off the beach would play an all important part in the race, I must truly confess that the Yankee skipper is in a class by himself and certainly played an all important part in the winning of the second leg by the Shamrock IV. As a nautical strategist I may add Captain Applegate is qualified to board the Shamrock or any other international contender for international honors at any time. His so-called limited knowledge, as he puts it, is weightier and far superior to any I have heard since landing in the country. Although opinion on board the Shamrock as to the Captain's maritime craftiness has been somewhat secluded from publicity it is nevertheless well regarded and taken for its full valuation."

Captain Applegate predicts a light, fresh breeze, at any rate, for tomorrow's race.

"What the Shamrock needs," he continued, "is a breeze similar to the one on Saturday, but not accompanied with the heavy ground swell that always follows the stiff southeast breezes. The rumors afloat that neither skipper desired going the beat down the beach because they were afraid of the heavy seas probably rolling the boats to lee and starboard so far as to lose some of the crew men over the sides is false and an absurdity. The real danger lay in the certain break to the boats.

"The Shamrock especially, with her massive sails, would never have stood the strain of port and starboard tacks down the beach. I am very doubtful as to whether the Resolute would have kept on. The heavy strains and pressures that have accompanied both yachts since the beginning of the races are evident to both crews, and they well knew that Saturday's stiff breeze would have played havoc with the boats. When I told them on board the Shamrock before the challenger left off here that there would be no finish by both boats and probably no race at all, a few nearly broke forth in laughter.

"Unless the breeze is fresh when the yachts leave the stake boat tomorrow morning there is little chance for the Shamrock to defeat the Resolute for the fifth and deciding race of the International Cup Regatta. The handicap, as I have so oftimes repeated, will defeat the challenger unless the breeze holds, and it would be more in the Shamrock's favor if the breeze stiffens as they proceed along the course."

JACK JOHNSON GETS BACK.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 25. — Fearing a noisy and possibly riotous demonstration upon his arrival here, Jack Johnson was removed from an incoming Santa Fé train today and placed in the county jail at Joliet for safekeeping. He will later be brought to Chicago by automobile and at a time when none of his friends will be on hand to meet him.

Men and women of his race, several thousand strong, were at the Polk Street station ready to greet the ex-champion when the train reached Chicago, but no Jack appeared.

The reason was told here later. Charles J. Farley, Station Superintendent down in Joliet, at 10:10 this morning had flagged the California Limited, and when it came to a stop, Johnson was removed from his sleeper by United States Deputy Marshals Klein and Smith.

At the County Jail there, he gave his name and his occupation as former heavyweight champion of the world.

"I'm damn glad to get back, even as far as this," announced Johnson, as he sat in the reception room and chewed a cigar. "The reason I decided to give myself up and come back was to show the world I'm still champion.

"As soon as I get out of this mix-up with the Federal Government, I am going to start training and clean up this Dempsey fellow." Johnson swung a ponderous clenched fist over his head and yawned.

"Nothing to it," he deprecated, and went on to tell his plans, after he should have met pending charges under the Mann act, for which he voluntarily returned from Mexico.

SEVEN MEN HOLD UP TAILOR.

Victim, 61 Years Old, Robbed of $20 and Jewelry—Two Arrested.

Seven men surrounded George Gray, 61 years old, a tailor, who lives at Mills Hotel, Thirty-sixth Street and Seventh Avenue, on that corner last night, held him up and robbed him of $20 and some jewelry. Gray's cries for help were heard by Police Reserves Harry Barnes and Herman Kuhn of the West Forty-seventh Street station, who chased the seven men after one of them had knocked Gray down.

The police reserves overtook two men at the corner of Eighth Avenue and arrested them. The men said they were William Galvin, 19 years old, a steward in the Hotel Commodore, and Charles Parker, 20 years old, a laborer, living in the Salvation Army Barracks in Brooklyn. The police said Gray identified them as being among those who held him up and robbed him. Both are charged with assault and robbery. The other five men escaped.

SHAMROCK'S BOW DENTED SATURDAY

heel of Sandy Hook that day she encountered several battering seas which slightly dented the convex sides of her bull-nosed bow. The dent each time filled out, however, of its own accord.

It also was asserted that as the challenger, under sail at the time, neared the Ambrose Lightship, eight miles off Sandy Hook, she ran into a series of dangerously heavy seas, and that the sides of her bow again were dented. Men of her crew, who had been sent below by Captain Burton, on only one occasion were forced to press the bow into place again.

The denting of the sides of the bow, it was explained, was not considered dangerous at the time, but it was felt that even heavier seas would be encountered during the race to and from the mark off Asbury Park, fifteen miles down the New Jersey coast. For that reason Captain Burton willingly agreed to a postponement when it was offered by the Race Committee. Captain Burton did not arrive at a decision, it was reported, until he and his Corinthian and professional advisers had conferred on the Wave. It was said all of them agreed with Captain Burton that the seas and the wind were too heavy for the Shamrock.

The sides of the bow of the Resolute are flat and she does not feel the pressure of the water at that point as much as the Shamrock does. Thus Captain Adams had less to fear in that respect, it was said.

It was the opinion of yachting experts that the skipper of the defender did not care to risk another accident to his craft such as he experienced in the first race, eleven days ago, when the Resolute's throat halyard parted, causing the American sloop to drop out of the first race.

It was explained on board the Killarney that Mrs. Burton did not sail on the challenger Saturday because of the danger involved. It also was explained that Mr. Nicholson, designer of the Shamrock; Captain Andrew Jackson Applegate, veteran Seabright fisherman; the challenger's carpenter and one of her crew were left behind, and five husky sailors from the 23-meter Shamrock put on board the challenger in their places, because of the necessity of having plenty of strong arms aboard to handle the sails.

Big Crowd Inspect Racers.

A record crowd of excursionists inspected the Resolute and the Shamrock IV. at their moorings in the Horseshoe yesetrday.

The waters within the Horseshoe were anything but smooth, but the excursionists seemed to pay little heed to them, so eager were they to view the racing sloops at close haul.

Captain Applegate chugged out to the Killarney in the afternoon in his fishing craft Charlotte. He brought with him a party of relatives and friends, including his daughter Charlotte and Captain Albert Diaper of the 23-meter Shamrock.

They took up every available inch of space on the old captain's sturdy seagoing craft.

Captain Applegate called on the skipper of the Shamrock IV., who was entertaining friends on the upper deck of the tender. They were in conversation for half an hour.

Mr. Nicholson, designer of the challenger, and Colonel Neill joined the Corinthian and the old fisherman during their conversation.

Anonymous Critics of Applegate.

Captain Applegate has received many letters since it became known that he acted as professional pilot on the Shamrock IV. in the contests Tuesday and Wednesday last. Most of them expressed disapproval of the aid he gave to the skipper of the challenger. More than one-third of them were anonymous. Several were written by women. All of the writers declared they were Americans.

The old fisherman turned most of the letters over to friends as souvenirs, with the declaration that there are a few Americans who don't seem to understand how to play the game fair.

The following is a copy of one of the letters received by Captain Applegate:

"You should be congratulated for your little efforts on the English boat. If England had a few more like you in 1776 one would have appreciated the fact. I think you must be real popular in your home town, because I don't think you are in any other place. There are many fine Americans who turned down the proposition and you, sir, for a few tainted dollars made yourself despised by all good Americans. You, sir, are another Arnold and should be sent to dear old England, because you have made yourself an ass in the land that gave you your living. I hope with all my heart that you will regret the step until you die. The boys in your town will point you out and you will be snubbed by all your shipmates and despised by all good Americans. My contempt for you.

"LEONARD M. WHITNEY,

Visitors Perform Rare Feat in Third Inning — Mays in Good Form Behind New York Sluggers.

The Boston Red Sox dropped in at the Polo Grounds yesterday for a two-day visit with the Hugmen, and found the Yankees all set for some real slugging after their quiet session with Jim Bagby on the day before. One noisy outburst of bat waving, with a home run by Babe Ruth as the headliner in a string of six solid smacks, made the game a walkover for the Yankees after the fifth inning. The score was 8 to 2.

Babe's hit carried his new major league record up to the thirty-fifth notch. Two Yanks were out in the busy fifth when the hit carnival got under real headway, and three runs were over the plate, with Del Pratt on second base, when Babe appeared at the plate. He had doubled in the third inning after grounding out in the opener, and Waite Hoyt tempted fate by putting a ball within Ruth's reach. A streak of white burned its way among the spectators in the lower right-field stand, and Ruth followed Pratt over the plate. Doubles by Ruel and Pratt and singles by Peck, Pipp and Meusel were also delivered in this one busy frame.

The game was featured, from a fielding standpoint, by one of those real rarities of baseball—a triple play. Some time back in the misty past a Yankee team may have figured in one of these unusual three-ply killings at home, but it wasn't in recent years. In the third inning of yesterday's game Peck drew a pass and Pipp reached first on a fumble by McNally. Peck advancing to second on the miscue. Pratt followed with a line drive that appeared to be ticketed for centre field, but McNally made a fancy catch, touched second base and then shot the ball over to McInnis before Pipp could get back to the bag. It was all done in less time than it takes to tell it, and it broke up what appeared a promising rally. Ruth was waiting near the plate when the big killing was reeled off, and it was not until two innings later that the Hugmen slugged their way to victory.

Only Four Hits Off Mays.

Carl Mays opposed Waite Hoyt on the mound and the underhand fling was working at its best. Four hits was the allowance which Mays dealt out to his former team mates and he was not in serious trouble at any time. Not until the first Boston batsman had been retired in the fifth inning did the visitors get to Mays for a hit, and then they bunched two for their first run. A pass and a triple in the sixth inning put an end to their scoring. Outside of the fifth and sixth innings the Red Sox got only one runner past first base, Hooper reaching second in the fourth when Bodie muffed his long drive after a run to right centre.

It was a big day for Ruth aside from his home run. In the second inning Babe made one of the most spectacular catches of the year at the Polo Grounds, robbing Wally Schang of a hit. Schang sent up a pop fly that was about to nestle on the lawn near the left field line, when Ruth, who had been playing a big game the Boston slugger, stuck out his gloved hand while running at top speed and picked the ball off the clover tops. A two-bagger to the right field bleachers, a sacrifice fly which chased in New York's last run and a dash to the plate on a close infield out, with Babe losing the decision, were other highlights in the playing of the New York slugger. Ward and Pratt did some fancy fielding for the Yanks.

Bob Meusel slapped the Yankees into a two-run lead in the opening inning after the Red Sox had been retired in order. Peck was called out on strikes and Pipp drew a pass. Pratt, who led the New York attack, got the first of his three hits, a single left, and Pipp halted at second. Both runners advanced when Ruth grounded to McInnis and then Meusel came through with a fine drive to left which sent Pipp and Pratt over the plate.

The triple play turned the Hugmen back in the third after Peck's hit and McNally's error had furnished the opportunity for further scoring. In the fourth Ruth opened with double and Meusel sacrificed him to third, but a double play resulted when Babe tried to score on Bodie's infield out. Walters dropped McInnis's throw, but Ruth had missed the plate and as Babe made his second reach Al got the ball and tagged him out.

The Red Sox made the game close with a run in the fifth inning. They had been turned back after a good start in the fourth, when Hooper raced to second as Bodie muffed his long fly to right centre, the next batsmen going out in order. With one out in the fifth Scott singled to right, the first hit off Mays. McNally forced Scott at second with a grounder to Ward and followed with a steal of second. Walters slapped a Texas Leaguer to right field and McNally raced home. Hoyt's easy roller in front of the plate ended the inning.

The Yankees ended Boston's dream of victory in the same inning. Ward was out on a grounder to Scott and Ruel slapped a double along the left field line. Mays popped to Scott for the second out and then the bombardment got under way. Peck's single to left sent Ruel over the plate and Peck raced to second on Menosky's futile throw to Walters. Pipp's single to right scored Peck, and when Hooper fumbled the ball Pipp hurried along to second. Pratt hit to left field for two bases and another run, and then paced Ruth home when Babe hit into the right field stand for his thirty-fifth home run of the season. That ended the scoring, but not the hitting, as Meusel followed with another line single, this time to the centre field. He was forced at second when Bodie grounded to McNally.

Schang's Triple Scores Run.

In the sixth the Red Sox put over the final run. After Hooper had rolled to Pipp Vitt drew a pass. Ward was under Menosky's easy pop fly, but nobody could get near Schang's hard smash to left centre and as yent for a triple, scoring Vitt. Schang died on third when McInnis grounded to Peck.

Only two Boston players got on the bases in the last three innings. Scott opened the seventh with a single to deep short, only to die a minute later when McNally hit to Peck and into a double play. Menosky walked to start the ninth, but was forced at second base by McInnis. Stuffy died at first.

New York's last run arrived in the seventh. Peck worked Hoyt for his second pass, Pipp filed to Hooper and Pratt's third hit sent Peck to third. Ruth filed to Hooper and Peck scored after the catch.

Karr relieved for Hoyt in Boston's eighth inning and Fortune did the pitching in New York's half of the eighth, retiring the side in order.

SENATORS RALLY IN EIGHTH.

Bunch Four Hits and Score Victory Over Mackmen, 4-3.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Washington rallied in the eighth inning today and defeated Philadelphia, 4 to 3. Naylor up to the eighth had held Washington in check, but four hits, including a double, in that inning proved his undoing:

ROBINS COME HOME AND ARE DEFEATED

Pirates Cast Gloom on the Celebration by Capturing Another Game, 5 to 4.

Those pestiferous Pittsburghers resumed their deadly work in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon right where they had left off the day before in Pirateville. They turned the Dodgers' homecoming party into a funereal affair so far as the result was concerned, winning by a score of 5 to 4. This was the fourth victory in five games played since the Dodgers hit Smoketown on the last lap of their Western tour. Up to the time they bumped into the Buccaneers, Robbie's men had been hitting a world-beating pace on their travels, knocking them over almost as fast as they came up. But the Pirates, whom everybody expected to behave in an even more docile fashion than the other Western teams, proved nothing but joy-killers.

Nevertheless, Gibson's crew had to do some rapid traveling to get away with yesterday's game, a highly exhilarating battle all the way. With the score tied, 1 to 1, after the first inning, the Robins ran up a lead of 3 to 1 in the fifth, which was reduced to 3 to 2 in the sixth and then shattered altogether when the Pirates put over three tallies in the eighth. Running into the ninth two runs shy, the Dodgers started a rally that scored a run and sent the fans into a temporary delirium. In all these doings, the breaks of the game favored the visitors.

It was a big party that welcomed the homecoming league leaders, and it gave the Robins a fine and well-deserved reception. The stands had their full quota of 22,000 fans and there was an overflow of a hundred or two more into the temporary bleachers in left field. The splendid record of the Dodgers on what, in spite of the interference of the Pirates, was one of the best Western trips they have had in years, was reflected in the attitude of the fans, who applauded every move of the home nine. Both teams were right on their toes all the time, playing brilliantly on the defensive and displaying an aggressiveness with the willow that kept the result in doubt to the end. Tommy Griffith, besides starring at the bat for Brooklyn, pulled off the most electrifying play of the day in the field, when he made a one-hand catch of Ponder's fly to short right in the ninth inning after a hard run. A hit like that would have fallen safe nine times out of ten. Tommy himself was the victim of an arrant piece of burglary in the fifth, when with a man on base he planted a hit in right centre that should have been scored for a couple of bags at least. Carey had no license to catch it, but he did, all the same. He stuck his mit into the clouds and the ball clung to it.

Mitchell Mars His Record.

That was just one of the breaks that went against the Dodgers, and it cost them a couple of runs. But Clarence Mitchell, who started the game for the Dodgers, encountered an even worse brand of luck. Mitchell had been pitching fine ball, and it looked up to the eighth inning, as though his record of five straight victories and four defeats for the season would be lengthened to six. But Clarence had mislaid his rabbit's foot. A couple of grounders that should have been easy outs, with the fielders all set to receive them, took tricky bounds, knocking in one run and the beans were spilled. Mitchell was relieved by Cadore in the middle of the eighth. Ponder twirled for the Pirates and lasted the route. He pitched a fair article of ball.

Both teams scored in the first inning. For the Pirates, after Bigbee had fanned, Carey lined a safety to left, and Southworth followed with a single past Konetchy that sent Carey to third. Whitted's singer past Kilduff's position scored Carey. Rowdy Elliott threw Southworth out on an attempt to steal, and the popular Brooklyn backstop then made a rattling good catch of Cutshaw's foul.

In the Dodgers' half Olson singled between third and short and went to second on Johnston's out to Whitted. Tommy Griffith's single past second scored Olson. Wheat hit into a double play.

Both teams went out in regular formation until the Robins' half of the fourth. With one out, Griffith singled and Wheat doubled in this inning, but they were kept tied to their posts when Myers struck out, Konetchy rolled to short. The Robins made better use of their bingles in the fifth, however. Kilduff, first up, doubled to left and Elliott sent him home on a double to right. Mitchell filed out and Olson grounded to short, but Johnston sent Elliott home with a blow to left along the third base line. Griffith then made his hit to right centre upon which Carey committed highway robbery.

Pirates Score Again in Sixth.

The Pirates had a lucky break in the sixth, when they scored another run. Ponder singled in Johnston's direction and Bigbee knocked one to Kilduff that looked like a sure out, but the ball hit some sort of obstruction and bounded high over Petey's head to right field. Ponder went to third and came in on Carey's run, which Johnston fielded. Johnston's throw was just a bit too high for Elliott to be able to pin the ball on Ponder. The side was then retired without further damage.

Whitted's triple was the blow that sent Mitchell to the showers in the eighth and won the game for Pittsburgh. With one out, Carey walked and stole second. Southworth then knocked one to Koney that took almost as freakish a bound as Bigbee's hit had. Koney was all set for it, but it bounced high over his shoulder and continued to right, while Carey scored. Whitted then tripled and scored Southworth. Cadore went into the box and Cutshaw, the first man to face him, singled to centre, scoring Whitted. Cutshaw was thrown out stealing, and Grimm, who was given a pass, went out the same way.

Young, Frisch and King helped themselves to singles from Luque's plenteous store in the eighth inning and the consequence was an unnecessary but nevertheless welcome tally for the Manhattan tourists.

Curves and Bingles

The attendance yesterday was a mere 28,000. A few thousand more were giving shattered nerves a rest after those busy sessions with the White Sox and Indians.

The Yanks finish up with the Red Sox this afternoon and will leave this evening for St. Louis, where they open their second Western swing Wednesday. A doubleheader with the Browns is scheduled for Thursday.

Galveston fans got all the details again yesterday. Every ball and strike was ticked to the fans way down near the Gulf of Mexico. They can't wait until the next morning to find out whether Babe crashed out his homer.

The fans enjoyed the unusual sight of seeing Ruth go through an entire game without drawing a base on balls. Hoyt was game enough to take chances with the slugger each time he toed the plate.

Ruth attached his signature to a movies picture contract Saturday night, and there is no danger of a tough Winter for Babe. For one picture Ruth will not draw down as much as Charley Chaplin gets, but he will receive a lot more than many of the recognized stars of the cinema would collect for one picture. Report has it that Babe's new contract is for $50,000.

The last time the Yankees figured in a triple play they were on the working end. The White Sox were the victims at Comiskey Park three years ago.

Ward gave another flashy exhibition of how third base should be played, furnishing more evidence that he has no superior and few close competitors among major league third basemen.

Rip Collins is slated to occupy the mound this afternoon in the Yankees' farewell to home fans until Aug. 16, when the Cleveland Indians come back to the Polo Grounds.

The home stand closing today has been productive of numerous victories as well as great crowds. The Hugmen have won thirteen of their twenty games since opening with the Tigers.

SKEETERS DIVIDE TWO WITH MINERS

Reading Wins First, 7 to 5, but Loses Second in Ten Innings, 8 to 7.

Bill Donovan and his Jersey City Skeeters made a jump home to their own ball park yesterday after an absence of nearly four weeks and tarried long enough to split a double header with John Hummell's Reading Miners, the visitors grabbing off the initial bout by a score of 7 to 5, while Jersey City, through a spectacular windup in the curtain act, managed to squeeze out an 8 to 7 victory in a battle which required an extra inning to decide the winner.

In the opening lineup Donovan's boys showed an early lead, with an advantage of 4 counts to 1 in the first six frames, but Eddie Gill, the home twirler, failed to hold out against the hard hitting Miners and they hammered his benders in the three concluding frames for nine safe wallops and an accumulation of six tallies, one more than was needed.

SON BEATS FATHER AT GREENWICH NET

But Frank Anderson Has His Troubles Winning from Fred C. by Score of 6—4, 8—6.

COLLOM FURNISHES UPSET

Defeats Rosenbaum in Straight Sets — Good Progress Recorded in Open Tennis Tournament.

With perfect tennis weather co-operating with unusually efficient management in favor of the big open tournament at the Greenwich Country Club yesterday, progress was made through three rounds of the singles, with two contestants, Herbert L. Bowman and Anton Von Bernuth, advancing to the round before the semi-finals, while the greater part of the doubles event was also cleaned up.

In the latter the outstanding teams were Frederick B. Alexander and Dr. William Rosenbaum, formed national indoor champions, and that other veteran combination, E. P. Fischer, the old New York State champion, and Dimon Roberts. The New Jersey title-holders, Fred C. Anderson and Ben Letson, also figured prominently, while Cedric Major and Frank T. Anderson formed a new combination that showed potential strength.

The Anderson family, in fact, had altogether a big day on the Greenwich courts, with the father of the two boys setting the pace by playing two hard singles and a doubles match. His victory over Manfred Goldman in three sets, 6—7, 9—7, 6—3, was a feature of the morning session, for the two old Long Island champion came from behind after being one set down and trailing at 2—5 in the second, and beat his far younger opponent by honest superiority of strokes and court tactics.

Father Against Son.

He put up a great battle later against his son Frank, the new Brooklyn champion, carrying the hard-hitting youngster through two close sets, 6—4, 8—6, and losing only when the court-covering became too strenuous. The elder Anderson wound up his activities for the day by once more facing his younger son in a doubles match, with J. A. Collom as his own partner, and Cedric Major teaming with Frank. The Major-Anderson team won two sets at 6—4 each, after the losers had twice pulled up to overcome big leads, and the veteran went out of the tournament in a blaze of glory.

It was John Collom, however, who furnished the chief upset of the day by defeating Dr. William Rosenbaum in straight sets, 7—5, 6—2. Collom has a good tennis record, although he does not often figure in metropolitan tournaments, but Rosenbaum's equanimity was so disturbed by the loss of the first set, after he had acquired an apparently safe lead, that he ran wild with errors in the second and quickly beat himself. Collom keeping very steady and making good use of his fast forehand drive.

Doubles Play Sensational

Most of the afternoon doubles matches were sensational affairs, with the veterans Fischer and Roberts upsetting the Osgood brothers in straight sets, and the young team of Fred Anderson and Ben Letson triumphing over Donald Keresey and H. L. Bowman in similar fashion.

Alexander and Rosenbaum came through two matches without great difficulty, but Harris and Goldman had their hands full with George Groesbeck and S. V. Brubans, the second set going to 10—8. Leighton and McGuire pulled out a victory over Sinclair and Spaeth after losing the first set 6—1 and trailing at 5—2 in the second.

The summaries:

Gets Second Leg on Quaker Ridge Cup by Beating Fox, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5.

Having lost the final round of the invitation tennis tournament at the Country Club of Westchester yesterday afternoon, Francis T. Hunter traveled right back to his home club at New Rochelle and proceeded to win the Quaker Ridge championship and a second leg on the challenge cup by defeating Joseph W. Fox in straight sets, 6—3, 6—4, 7—5. He had enough left to come from behind in the final set, after Fox had run up a lead of 5—2 by the steadiest of playing, but if the loser had ever succeeded in capturing a set it is questionable just how far even the sturdy Hunter could have gone without a rest.

Fox had the lead in the opening set also, at 2—1 and 3—2, with the local star evidently finding it difficult to accustom himself to the clay surface after having just finished a match on grass. But, once he struck his stride, Hunter reeled off four games in a row for the set, 6—3, and kept right on with his hard hitting until the second session was his also at 6—4.

Fox himself showed signs of weariness in the final set, as he had been through two matches at Greenwich earlier in the day, but his persistent returning of the ball had its effect in drawing Hunter into costly errors, and the latter saw the score mount against him until at 5—2 the set was apparently lost. His boundless energy, however, was good for one more pull-off, even though his endurance might have been overtaxed by an extra-set match. Hitting with more speed than ever, but steadily as well, Hunter gradually closed up the gap until the games were tied up at 5-all. He then broke through service for the decisive lead, and on his own delivery took the set and match at 7—5.

New 18-Hole Golf Course to be Laid Out on Long Island

Another golf course is to be sandwiched in an already crowded Long Island, as a result of a movement in Hempstead, one of the oldest towns on the island. The property known as the Parsons Farm is to be acquired for an eighteen-hole golf links, and so successful have been the preliminary steps that more than 150 applications for membership have been received. Many are from those on the waiting lists of such already filled clubs as the Garden City Golf Club, Garden City Country Club, Cherry Valley Club and Wheatley Hills Club. The Parsons homestead, with few alterations, will serve as a club house, and ground for the fairways will be broken next month. The officers of the New Hempstead Country Club follow: President, Jesse Richards; Vice President, W. H. Eaton; Secretary, W. F. McCullogh; Treasurer, F. B. Hawkins.

MISS TENNANT WINS FROM MISS BALLIN

California Girl Captures Greenwich Tennis Tourney in Straight Sets.

Miss Eleanor Tennant, the brilliant California tennis player, won her first Eastern tournament yesterday at the Greenwich Field Club, when she defeated Miss Florence Ballin in straight sets, 7—5, 6—1, in the final round of the women's singles. Owing to the illness of S. Howard Voshell, the men's events were not completed.

Although decided in straight sets the match between Miss Tennant and Miss Ballin was very close all the way. Even in the second session, in which the winner dropped only one game, four of her tallies came after long-drawn deuce affairs, while Miss Ballin took her single score at love. Miss Tennant won because she had a greater variety of shots with which to work, and a consequently greater resourcefulness of court tactics. Miss Ballin was exceedingly strong on her forehand drives, and plugged away in aggressive style, but could not switch her attack after her opponent had become accustomed to her strokes.

Winner Shows Versatility.

Miss Tennant, on the other hand, used chops as her chief reliance off the ground, changing to drives when she needed speed and depth, and supporting all her forcing shots with good volleying. She had a slight advantage in service also, particularly on the second ball, which carried almost as much "stuff" as the first. Altogether, Miss Tennant's game was distinctly impressive yesterday, even in comparison with the unusually strong opposition offered by Miss Ballin, and she proved that her growing familiarity with turf is bringing her close to what must be considered her normal game.

The Californian got away to a good start by unsetting Miss Ballin's service in the opening game, and then won her own for a lead of 2—0. The West Side girl, however, came right back with a splendid exhibition of hitting, gaining confidence with every shot. Having captured her own delivery on the second attempt, she evened things up by breaking through that of her rival, and then went into the lead 3—2 on service, after a hard-fought deuce game.

Miss Tennant now struck her best stride, and won easily with the help of good serving, after which a long struggle took place for the odd game. It finally fell to the Westerner after three calls of deuce and some spectacular rallies. Miss Ballin, however, was fighting gamely for the set, and she succeeded in breaking through once more to tie the score at 4 all, extra points being again needed. The next game was the longest of the match, and it was only after seven calls of deuce that Miss Ballin won her service and took the lead 5—4. Miss Tennant tied it up in turn and then put on full speed for the decisive break which gave her a 6-5 advantage. Miss Ballin tried hard to save the set, but another exhausting deuce session ended in Miss Tennant's favor for a 7—5 score.

Piles Up Lead Steadily.

Miss Ballin dropped the opening game of the second session, but squared matters by driving through sensationally for a love game. Miss Tennant then got another break after two calls of deuce and boosted her lead to 3—1 on her own service in similar fashion. Miss Ballin then lost a love game in a temporary streak of wildness, and her most desperate fighting failed to save the next, which made it 5—1 against her. She carried the score to deuce once more and held on to the very last shot, but Miss Tennant had just enough in reserve to pull through the deciding rallies and the match was over at 6—1.

Following is the score by points:

TENNIS FINAL REACHED.

Krugler and Pianisani Win in Semi-Finals at New York T. C.

There were more upsets in the New York Tennis Club yesterday in the Manhattan doubles championship, and as a result of series of surprises all through the tournament the final bracket will bring together two teams that until this week were practically unknown—Robert O. Stoddart and S. G. Kelley of the Amackassin Club and two home representatives, Dr. Wallace Krugler and Fred Pianisani. The event will probably be concluded next Sunday.

Stoddart and Kelley had reached the finals on Saturday by their elimination of the former titleholders. Alrick H. Man, Jr., nd Cedric Major. Yesterday the default of Francis T. Hunter and Albert J. Ostendorf left the lower half of the draw a very open proposition, and Krugler and Pianisani were not slow in grasping the situation. They waited watchfully in the semi-final bracket while three other teams struggled through a process of mutual extermination.

First the Staten Island combination, A. J. Cawse and Leslie Fisher, upset a few calculations by defeating Leon Croley and Henry Bassford in a three-set match, 6—2, 4—6, 7—5, while Alfred D. Hammett and Embree H. Henderson were taking care of William M. Fischer and W. H. Pritchard at 6—3, 6—4. Then the troublesome Staten Islanders brought more consternation to the uptown tennis followers by wading through Hammett and Henderson in straight sets, 8—6, 6—0. By this time Cawse and Fisher were weary of well-doing, and a slump in the semi-finals was to be expected. Krugler and Pianisani saw their opportunity and made a great fight from the outset, winning the opening set by the close count of 6—4.

Cawse and Fisher used the last of their strength in a desperate effort, which tied up the match at 6—2, and then faded away in the rubber to lose their chance for at least second honors by 6—3 score.

The visitors really covered themselves with glory when they eliminated Hammett and Henderson. This pair of deadly lobbers had been the terror of all erratic overhead hitters this season, and for eight games it seemed that their defensive tactics would once more be successful.

The summary follows:

Second Round—Hammett and Henderson defeated W. M. Fischer and Pritchard, 6—3, 6—4; Cawse and L. W. Fisher defeated Croley and H. H. Bassford, 6—3, 4—6, 7—5.

Third Round—Cawse and Fisher defeated Hammett and Henderson, 6—6, 6—0; Krugler and Pianisani won from Hunter and Ostendorf by default.

YACHTING

Barring the unexpected, the America's Cup race for 1920 will be settled by sunset today. Resolute and Shamrock IV. have two legs each on the Cup, and the course for today will be a windward and leeward one, or the reverse, though in all probability the former. Over this sort of a course Resolute is believed to have the better chance of winning and is a decided favorite.

Many who went out to see the race that failed to occur on Saturday believe that the blow and the fairly heavy sea would have favored Shamrock. However, a life is more precious than at cup, even though it be the America's Cup, for which millions of dollars have been spent, and when Sir Thomas Lipton, who has more at stake than any one else, heard that there was some liability of loss of life had the race been sailed, in his usual sportsmanlike way he concurred entirely with the opinion of Mr. Burton when the British skipper withdrew and agreed to a postponement until today. So far as wind or heavy sea was concerned, however, frail racing yachts much smaller than the defender or the challenger have on hundreds of occasions battled with worse conditions without injury to hull or rigging and without any loss of life. That is all of the past, however, as is the postponement, and the race today, if conditions favor, will tell the tale.

The New York Yacht Club has defended that historically precious old trophy for seventy years and now appears likely to do so for another seventy years. Nevertheless, if some speedy yacht from abroad takes it away, it is to be presumed that American yachtsmen, representing the New York or some other yacht club will keep on challenging and racing to bring it back here until they succeed. On the other hand, Sir Thomas Lipton, who has been spending millions over a period of twenty-one years to lift the trophy, and has built four sloops for the express purpose of winning the Cup, will not at this time give up hope, it is believed, but may be expected to place an order for another Shamrock and "come back" next year, if the New York Yacht Club will accept his challenge, for another try.

There are many yachting enthusiasts who would not have felt badly—or, as the result is not yet settled, will not feel badly—to see Shamrock win. That is due to no lack of patriotism, but is rather caused by a belief that the sport may be greatly benefited by having the Cup go abroad, for then the natural desire of American sportsmen to regain it might well result in a decided impetus being given to naval architecture in this country. Then again, if the Cup is to be won by any one, the great American sporting public would like to see it go to Sir Thomas Lipton, who has proved to be such a good sportsman, good loser and the embodiment of perseverance. This opinion is shared by a large quota of the members of the New York Yacht Club, who, like all sportsmen, appreciate true sportsmanship when they see it in another.

During the present series of races there has been much talk about the advantage the defending yacht has in not being obliged to be built sturdily enough to make the voyage overseas which the challenger must compass under sail. This has resulted in building most of our American defenders as light as possible to meet the conditions of the races. It is quite evident, however, that the lightness of construction has not even come up to that requirement, else there would be no danger of opening up seams or carrying away anything in a day like last Saturday.

Several leading American yachtsmen have gone so far as to suggest that it would be a good thing were our American defenders obliged to compensate for the challenger's trip across the ocean by being obliged to make a voyage under sail to Bermuda and return. That, they believe, might result in sturdier craft, that would have some value after they had ended their service as America's Cup yachts. There are many who would not hesitate to build racing craft, either to defend the Cup or to contend for it, were some conditions laid down which would insure a serviceable craft, and not a mere racing machine, fit for the junk heap at the conclusion of the last race.

Another frequently expressed opinion is that a race without time allowance would be an innovation worth while, particularly as the America's Cup races are the only international sporting events that are conducted on a handicap basis.

The final race takes place today—maybe—and may the better yacht win.

ROWING

The Naval Academy's victory in the eight-oared shell race on Saturday at the national regatta, was a most popular one with rowing men—and there were lots of them at Worcester, college and boat clubs, from the length and breadth of the land. Never before has an American crew so clearly earned the right to go abroad as a representative one.

Gallagher, the new number seven man, in an improvement, backing up Stroke King to perfection, and the middles were faster than ever on Lake Quinsigamond. But, conversely, the eleventh hour loss of stroke Rammi, who rowed such a heady as well as plucky race when Ten Eyck's men won the intercollegiate regatta at Ithaca, was a set back. The new stroke Loskamp, who was moved down from number six, is a splendid pace-maker, but no matter how good he may be, the other men, having rowed behind Rammi all season so successfully, could not help feeling a relaxing of that perfect confidence which they had reposed in the former general.

Expert observers, including the navy's bitterest rivals, feel that America's time has come to capture the greatest honor in rowing, and that Glendon's true blue combination from Annapolis is likely to do the trick.

Jack Kelly of the Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia, the winner in the singles, was in rarely good form, rowing more smoothly than ever. He sculls with his knees together and gets a remarkably hard leg drive and an exceptionally hard finish, which keeps the boat traveling between strokes. This is augmented by his clever slide work on the recover. The beautifully muscled Zoha of the First Bohemian Boat Club, made a slashing finish, "sticking 'em in" at a very high rate, and gained on the Philadelhian very fast as the finish flag was neared, but no one knows whether Kelly extended himself during the first part of the race. There are those who think that after getting a fair lead he was content to keep it without trying for more.

An effort was made to have Zoha taken along as a spare man in case anything should happen to Kelly, but the Olympic Committee would not sanction it.

Kelly will get into very hot company on the other side and, relatively, his chances do not appear to be as bright as do those of the Navy in the eights.

SHOOTING

It was the expected that happened when American trapshooters came away with first honors in both team and individual matches in the Olympic competitions at Antwerp last week. The victory of the Americans the preceding week in England had given an inkling of what was to come. There was nothing indecisive about the results at Antwerp. The Belgians, in second place in the team shoot, were forty-four targets behind, while, in the individual competition, the United States made a clean sweep, taking the first five places.

History repeated itself in this fine victory of Uncle Sam's marksmen. In London in 1908 and in Stockholm in 1912, it was the same story. America's track and field athletes, triumphant as they have been, have established their superiority with no greater emphasis than the nation's gunners. There was a large quota of the members of the New York Yacht Club, who, like all sportsmen, appreciate true sportsmanship when they see it in another.

Now that Walter Hagen is back and ready to defend his titles as well as to appear when asked in exhibitions with Vardon and Ray, the succession of big golf matches will draw many thousands weekly. Jim Barnes has appeared already in a match at Greenwich, and will be a contestant on several other days, certainly today at New London and Aug. 1 at Hollywood and, possibly, at Detroit, Kansas City and St. Louis.

BASEBALL

Having shattered his own major league record for home runs in one season, Babe Ruth is now out to set a mark never before reached in professional baseball in either the major or minor leagues. Back in 1895 Perry Werden, then a member of the Minneapolis Club of the American Association, made forty-five circuit drives in the course of a season. In other minor leagues more than thirty have been made, owing usually to some particular nearby fence.

Unless Ruth is forced out of the New York lineup by a severe accident it is probable that he will go several home runs beyond the mark which Werden reached twenty-five years ago. The Yankee slugger made his thirty-fifth home run at the Polo Grounds yesterday, and as the Huggmen have to play fifty-nine more games to complete their season Ruth should easily add twelve or fifteen more circuit drives before the curtain is rung down on the American League race. He hardly has to pass Werden's mark to attain the honor of being the greatest long distance hitter in the history of baseball, as that fact is generally admitted, but as long as there is a record in the offing Ruth is willing to shoot at it.

As Ruth goes along, hitting close to the .400 mark, the conviction grows that he has yet to reach the height of his power with the stick. Despite the fact that he is drawing more than twice as many passes as any other player in the major leagues, most of which walks being of the intentional variety, he is able to pound out long distance drives more frequently than in the days when he did not draw down these testimonials to his batting power. His opportunities to hit are naturally curtailed by the great number of free walks, and when pitchers are not passing him purposely they are pitching many bad balls than good ones for him to swing at.

Pitchers have tried every known method to discover some weakness in Ruth's hitting, but to date none has been found. The slow ball plan, so successful against sluggers ordinarily, does not work against Ruth, and he has shown an ability to hit a curve or fast ball out of the lot, whether it is high or low, inside or outside. American League pitchers attest to the fact that Ruth can hit anything he can reach and hit it out of the lot. Furthermore he is credited with possessing the keenest eye in the game, because he is able to follow the course of a ball accurately while making a longer swing than any other batsman in baseball.

TRACK AND FIELD

As was expected before the task was begun, the selection of America's greatest Olympic track and field team has not met with universal approval. Some there are who are plainly dissatisfied. Expressions akin to disgust, in some cases, are heard here and there. They come chiefly from coaches and ardent admirers of athletes, who are firmly convinced their favorites were shelved either because of stupidity or athletic politics—or on both accounts.

Fortunately, the dissatisfied are in the minority. The majority of the country's critics and others closely identified with the sport, agree that the team represents the greatest strength America has ever nominated for an Olympic tussle—not alone numerically, but physically as well. The task was a herculean one, taxing the physical and mental facilities of the officials involved. Since omniscience is unknown to mortals, it was inevitable that the qualifications of some brilliant performer should be lost sight of in the shuffle. This is unfortunate, but it does not provide grounds for abuse of the authorities charged with the tremendous task of providing for America's representation at the Olympiad.

There is peril in the attitude that the journey to Antwerp is to be one partly of pleasure. This feeling, shared to some extent by members of the team, will work irreparable harm unless it is immediately and definitely eradicated. Youths who will sport the American shield against the world's best athletes must have it indelibly impressed upon them that they are going abroad, not for personal experiences and pleasure, but for stiff, hard, bitter competition. Personalities must be entirely discarded. The members of the team now are just so many collective stars working harmoniously to vanquish the world on track and field.

The team will sail this afternoon on its historic journey. Fitting ceremonies will attend the departure. The athletes leave with the sincere good wishes and hopes for victory of the entire nation. Regardless of the outcome, the team rerpesents the country's most formidable strength.

GOLF

Unless they thrive on such abuse as has been heaped on the golf club which last week drew $2 from each spectator at the Vardon and Ray exhibition, other clubs which are to exhibit the great pair of Britons would do well to proceed carefully. Golfers who had no warning of the Fox Hills intention, and who went out to Staten Island to the links that is perhaps the most accessible to the city, did not spare their criticism when they found the ticket sellers at the gates. This was true of both club members, who were indignant over the action of their own club committee, and of visitors who since have written emphatic denunciations to newspapers.

Vardon and Ray have played five exhibitions in the Metropolitan district since arriving, and yet only the one at Fox Hills was a source of revenue to the club. Siwancy paid them for their services, and turned the treat provided over to some 3,000 free of charge; Woodway accommodated several hundred, Greenwich gave the exhibition to about 1,200, and Apawamis welcomed 1,000 within its grounds. The great majority of coming matches will be on the same hospitable basis, for the Englishmen will play in upwards of seventy-five before returning. There seems ample justification for such a proceedure, as the Scarsdale Golf and County Club will employ on Saturday. A charge of $1 will be made, but the receipts are to be turned over to the White Plains Hospital Fund. Likewise the match at Hollywood on Aug. 1 will be for the P. G. A. benevolent fund, a worthy cause.

BRITISH LINKSMEN ON OPPOSING SIDES

Vardon and Ray Pair with Amateurs at Apawamis and Each Wins and Loses.

Harry Vardon and Ted Ray discovered a new golfing trick yesterday. They decided that, instead of playing together, they would each pair with one of their amateur partners at the exhibition match at the Apawamis Club, in Rye, and also hit upon the grand little idea of switching their partners after the morning round. As a result while Vardon was losing in the morning big Ted Ray was winning by 2 up, and in the afternoon it was Ray who agreed to do the losing while Vardon had his chance. The afternoon score was the same, the match ending on the home hole with the score 2 up.

With the amateur contestants, however, there was no such thing as an even break. It was all one-sided. Findlay S. Douglas, veteran internationalist and national amateur champion twenty-two years ago, lost both coming and going. With Vardon in the morning he was on the short end of the count, and after lunch he and Ray had to trail along second best. Roger Lapham, who, despite his handicap rating of six on the Metropolitan list, was selected to be the fourth man for the day, won both in the morning and afternoon.

Not only did Vardon and Ray divide the honors for winning, but they split the individual scoring laurels of the day. In the morning Ray made a 71 to Vardon's 74, and in the afternoon Vardon more than counterbalanced this with a round in approximately 69, three under par, to Ray's 74.

During the morning round, however, Ray did most of his work on the incoming half. He and Lapham were 2 down to Vardon and Douglas at the turn, partly because of Vardon's spectacular work at the 323-yard sixth hole, where he holed a twelve-footer for a birdie three. Big Ted got his gooseneck putter into proper kilter on the eleventh, however, after gaining the green on this 340-yard hole with his second, he ran down an eighteen-foot tap for a birdie. This put Ray and Lapham only one down, and when Ray sank a nine-footer on the thirteenth for another birdie the match became all square. Ray, carrying the burden of his side, then won the fifteenth and eighteenth, the latter one under par, to carry off the match. Incidentally not only was Ray's 71 better than the best-ball of Vardon and Douglas, but Ray's 71 actually was the best-ball of his side.

Vardon	4	4	4	5	5	4	5	4	4	—39—74
Douglas	5	4	4	5	5	5	5	6	4	—42—82

Paired with Lapham in the afternoon, it was Vardon who did the phenomenal, this individual round in 69, which comes mighty near being the Apawamis record, certainly the best score of this season, alone was better than the Ray-Douglas ball. Moreover, except for the long ninth hole, where Vardon needed six and his partner a par 5, Vardon's total would have been his side's best ball.

Vardon and Lapham each negotiated the first hole in par figures for their first win, Ray hooking his second shot to the left of the green and Douglas falling short. A fifteen-foot putt on the third by Vardon put his team 2 up and his putt, about as long on the fourth, increased the lead to 3 up. Douglas got back one of these holes when he laid his second on the sixth hole to five feet from the pin and holed out for a birdie. Vardon and his partner maintained their lead of 2 up at the turn, but jumped it to three once again at the eleventh, when Vardon's trusty mashie brought his second shot to three feet from the cup, whence the birdie three on this 340-yard hole was a simple matter.

Ray was the sole player of the four to gain the twelfth green on his tee shot, a magnificent stroke played uphill to this difficult hole. He took two putts for the win. Douglas followed suit on the thirteenth, the lake hole, with a birdie cutting Vardon and Lapham to one up. It began to look bad for the latter team when Vardon's tremendous second shot on the fourteenth rolled down the slope and into the brook, and looked considerably worse when his partner pulled his third to rough instead of gaining the green. Ray played this hole exactly right, however, and squared the match. The fifteenth was halved.

Vardon's long tee shot on the sixteenth stopped on the green ten feet from the cup, the only tee shot to gain the green, and he holed out for an eagle 2. Ray played all aronud the seventeenth, finally picking up after taking three to get out of the rough, but Douglas saved a half when he took a five along with Vardon. This made Vardon and Lapham dormie 1 and then both took birdie threes on the home hole for the match.

The best-ball and individual cards of the afternoon match follow:

Armour Makes Fine Impression in First Golf Match Here

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 25.—T. D. Armour, the Scottish amateur golfer and holder of the French title, who came over to play in our amateur and open championship, created a very favorable impression today on the Shenecossett links by his superb golf. It was the first course that he has played in America and his long driving surprised the big gallery that is here to see the international match tomorrow, in which Barnes and Hagen will meet Vardon and Ray. Armour and Hagen were paired against Barnes and Alex Smith. The latter's golf enabled his side to win by one up with a remarkable best ball of 68. Barnes was steady while Alex came in for a number of birdies. Armour's fine mashie play stamps him as a golfer who will be hard to beat.

CHAMP WINS RACE FOR POWER BOATS

Bond Yacht First Across Line in Tamaqua Club's Annual Ocean Event.

Members of the Tamaqua Yacht Club held their annual ocean race for the Childs Trophy on the Atlantic yesterday. The contest is for power boats, racing in one class, under the rules of the American Power Boat Association. Unlike other races, the yachts start on their handicap time, the first craft to finish being the winner. In the brush yesterday William Bond's Champ was the first across the finish line. The official starting time was 10. A. M. Champ started at 10:19:09 and finished at 12:10:40. Champ's actual time was 1:51:31.

The best actual time for the course was made by J. A. Filsner's Rinslif. She started at 10:28:14 and finished at 12:19:15. It made her actual time 1:51:01. Regardless of her time, Rinslif was the sixth craft across the finish line, only two secon

VACCINATION URGED BY DR. COPELAND

All Not Vaccinated in Last Few Years Should Take It Now, He Says.

FIVE SMALLPOX CASES HERE

Epidemic of This Disease More Likely to Occur Than Any Other —Free Vaccine for Poor.

As a safeguard against a smallpox epidemic where there are now five cases Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland announced yesterday a campaign this week for the vaccination of all persons who have not been vaccinated within the last six or seven years. There will be no compulsory vaccination, but all persons who have not been properly vaccinated in the last few years will be urged to do so as a matter of protection not only to themselves but to the entire community.

"Every health station of the department will have its corps of extra vaccinators," Dr. Copeland said, "and we hope, during the week, tens of thousands of our citizens will avail themselves of the opportunity to be properly vaccinated. Naturally, we hesitate to demand vaccination of the public, believing that the mere statement of the importance of the procedure will meet with universal response." For persons who are unable to pay a physician the Board of Health will provide professional and free vaccine, Dr. Copeland said.

The Department of Health will perform vaccinations at the following places:

Borough of Manhattan—Baby Health Stations: Headquarters, 505 Pearl St.; 2,848 Eighth Av., 2,185 Fifth Av., 324 West 63d St., 546 West 47th St., 220 Tenth Av., 78 Ninth Av., 106 Henry St., 48 Henry St., 206 Madison St., 314 Monroe St., 27 Suffolk St., 94 Forsythe St., 197 Hester St., 244 Mulberry St., 174 Eldridge St., 73 Cannon St., 200 Stanton St., 343 East 14th St., 1,813 East 11th St., 306 Avenue A, 441 East 40th St., 548 East 74th St., 205 East 90th St., 225 East 107th St., 315 East 112th St., 543 Pleasant Av.

Commissioner Copeland said that at this time he was more concerned over smallpox than over any other disease that might attack the city.

In this city, Dr. Copeland said, we have about twenty cases of smallpox a year, and almost without exception they come from outside of the city. Very few secondary cases have come from contact with these outside persons," he said. "It is the belief of the officials of the Health Department that the reason we have been so immune is because of the yearly campaign in favor of vaccination. Today, however, there are five cases of smallpox in the city, and of course no one knows definitely how many persons have come in contact with these patients. One of these smallpox cases came out of the Olympic, thus justifying the criticism of American sanitarians as to the inefficiency of the quarantine regulations of certain European points. These matters are in process of adjustment and the rules are becoming more stringent each day."

Cuban Brings Wife to Hospital Here

Dr. Felix P. Hages of Havana, Cuba, arrived yesterday on the Spanish liner Montserrat with his wife, who is seriously ill and was sent from the pier to Mount Sinai Hospital. He was met by Felix Taboada, Cuban Consul General.

ANTHRAX ORDER ISSUED.

Health Board Compels Sterilization of Hair in Brushes.

Sterilization of hair used in toilet articles as a means of preventing anthrax was decided upon at a meeting of the Board of Health on June 16. The new regulation, which became effective on July 1, except in the case of goods in stock on June 16, is particularly interesting at the present time because of public interest in the cure of Frederick H. Post, polo player, who was discharged last Friday from Bellevue Hospital after ten days' treatment with the new Government serum. The doctors believe that he contracted the disease from a shaving brush.

Article 12 of the Sanitary Code, as amended by adding Section 280, now provides that "no person shall use in the manufacture of brushes or cloth, any animal hair which has not been sterilized by a process prescribed or approved by the Board of Health, nor shall any person bring into, or offer for sale, sell, or deliver in the City of New York, any brush or cloth containing animal hair unless the same shall have been sterilized.

"It shall be the duty of the manufacturer of shaving brushes, tooth brushes, hair brushes, nail brushes, or other toilet brushes intended for human use to cause his name or trade-mark, the place of manufacture, and the word 'sterilized' to be permanently, clearly and legibly painted or branded upon every such brush before offering for sale, selling or delivering the same in the City of New York."

The section adds that the "sterilized" may not be placed on the articles unless the rules for sterilization as laid down by the board are obeyed. Two processes are authorized as the only ones found to be effective in killing the unusually hardy anthrax bacteria and spores. They are:

"1. Boiling the hair in water maintained at a temperature of 212 degrees Fahrenheit for at least three hours.

"2. The placing of the hair in an autoclave in which a ten-inch vacuum is produced. Live steam to be then turned on and kept at fifteen pounds' pressure for a period of three hours."

NO GOUGING AT CONEY.

Fewer in Bathing Because of Cool Weather and Jewish Holiday.

Although 300,000 went to Coney Island and neighboring beaches yesterday, bath house proprietors did not have an opportunity to gouge the public, because there were fewer people in bathing. This may have been due to the coolness of the day and the fact that yesterday was Tisha B'Ab, a Jewish holiday.

Some of the bathing pavilions had posted a scale of prices, but there was a general lack of uniformity. The average prices asked were 60-75 cents for a locker and $1-$1.50 for a room. One place in Manhattan Beach demanded $3 for a room. The bath house owners are to meet this week to decide on a general scale of rents.

Four pleasure seekers were arrested in the business section of Far Rockaway because they were wearing abbreviated bathing costumes while riding in an automobile. They are Florence Heller, 19 years old; Birdie Heller, 20; Daniel Heller, 22, and Irving Russow, 27, all living at 176 Beach Fifteenth Street, Edgemere. They will be arraigned in the Rockaway Police Court on a charge of disorderly conduct.

ELKUS ON "THE NEAR EAST."

Former Ambassador to Turkey Speaks at Columbia University.

Speaking on "The Near East" at the regular Sunday evening services on the green at Columbia University last evening, Abram I. Elkus, former Ambassador to Turkey, said the problem of the Near East must be solved before nations can reach a solution on the question of further wars.

"We must settle the difficulties of those small countries and give them their place in the sun," he continued. "It would mark great progress toward doing away with international struggles."

He praised the work of the American college workers in Turkey, Armenia and other countries and declared the missionaries who stuck to their posts were among the great heroes and heroines in the war.

Auto Turns Over, One Killed.

Word reached New York yesterday that Abraham Gerla, 26 years old, of 1,520 Forty-eighth Street, Brooklyn, was instantly killed on Saturday morning when an automobile in which he was riding turned over at Red Hook, about six miles from Rhinebeck, N. Y. The owner and driver of the machine, Michael Weinberg, a dress manufacturer, of this city was uninjured. Mr. Gerla's body was brought yesterday to his late home, from which the funeral will take place this afternoon.

"MARY AND DOUGLAS" WIN FRENCH PRAISE

Paris Editor Classes Them With Georges Carpentier as "True Ambassadors."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 24.—Georges Carpentier on the one hand and Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks on the other are presented by Ernest Charles, editor of Lanterne, as the best ambassadors France and America have exchanged for a long time. In a leading article in his paper today he declares they have brought the two peoples closer together than official ambassadors have done in recent months.

"They are true ambassadors; they are real propagandists," he says. "They cost less in our budget than the other kind and they do far more good.

"The other day our boxer, Carpentier, came home. He made his voyage over there very useful to himself and to his country. He explained France better to our friends across the ocean than any official minister or decorated propagandist professor. Thanks to Carpentier, our prestige in the United States is raised from the depth our diplomats put it in.

"And then look at those American ambassadors, Douglas and Mary. Just as Carpentier made the voyage over there with his young wife Fairbanks came with his wife to France. We feasted and photographed the king and queen of cinema, and when we received them we found them regular folks. She is pretty, and as for him, well, he is cordial. These two ambassadors pleased us much."

Britain Aids Unemployed Mariners.

The Imperial Merchant Service Guild of London, which has just been notified by its parliamentary that the sanction of the Treasury has been obtained for the allowance of not more than two months' pay to each captain, officer or engineer whose employment has ceased through sale of the vessels on which they served. The Guild has been pressing for such an allowance.

TRAINMEN WARNED OF RADICALS' STRIKE

Union Official Tells Workers on Pennsylvania Lines of Agitators' Plans.

ASKS THEM TO BE LOYAL

Says Success of Brotherhood Depends Upon Obedience to Its Agreements.

There is a radical element among the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen on the Pennsylvania Railroad, who are endeavoring to stir up the younger men in the service to join radical organizations and start another illegal strike, according to C. R. Musser, an official of the Brotherhood, and an employe of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Mr. Musser, whose home is in Philadelphia, yesterday sent a letter to all members of the Brotherhood on the Pennsylvania lines east of Philadelphia, warning them against agitators and admonishing them to remain loyal to the Brotherhood. The letter is signed by Mr. Musser as General Chairman.

"For a great number of years," the letter states, "the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen has negotiated with the company rates of pay and conditions of employment for the classes we represent. During the period of Government control we negogiated with the United States Railroad Administration for certain increases in pay and changed working conditions for the men we represent.

"At the time the railroads were returned by the Government to their owners there was then pending a request of the organization for certain increases in pay and changed working conditions.

"During the time this request was pending certain members of the Brotherhood and others employed on the Pennsylvania system participated in an illegal strike. Many of these men were returned to the service with their seniority unimpaired and without prejudice.

"There is now existing on our system a fixed propaganda on the part of certain men which is intended to destroy the continuity of service. These men are endeavoring to enlist the support of the members of our organization and others in belief that an illegal strike at this time would again be brought about.

"If the Brotherhood wishes to live on this railroad as a labor organization, bargaining for wages and conditions for our members, the men who affiliate themselves with our organization must be bound by its laws. The laws of the Brotherhood provide how a strike of its members will be called. The Brotherhood has not sanctioned a strike of its members.

"If we wish to uphold our standard as one of the foremost labor organizations in the world, we must respect our agreements which are made with the company in good faith."

K. OF C. CENTRES POPULAR.

Work in Astoria and Bay Ridge Is Meeting with Success.

The Social Centres established by the Long Island Chapter, Knights of Columbus, in Bay Ridge and Astoria have proved popular with the working boys of their respective sections, judging by the large number enrolled and also by the enthusiasm of the boys themselves, reports the Secretary. At the Bay Ridge Branch, Forty-second Street and Fourth Avenue, where James A. Lamb is Director, the clubrooms are crowded every evening. The Rev. P. J. Cherry, rector of St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church, adjoining the Bay Ridge Centre, speaks enthusiastically of the good work the Knights of Columbus are doing in this particular sphere.

Joseph F. Quinn, the executive Secretary, Knights of Columbus Social Service, is busily engaged at present in having the main auditorium entirely renovated for th eearly Fall basket ball games. Past State Deputy James E. Finegan, President of the Social Service, co-operating with the board of directors, is endeavoring to have centres opened in several other sections of the city.

Director John F. Murray of the Long Island City Branch, in Astoria, says that this centre will be one of the most popular meeting places in Queens during the coming Fall for the working boys of that section.

ACCUSED AS POISONER.

Husband of Asylum Inmate Mailed Deadly Candy, Police Say.

Special to The New York Times.

NASHVILLE, July 24.—George Littrell has been arrested on the charge of mailing poisoned candy to his wife who is an inmate of the State insane asylum. The poisoned candy was received last Wednesday and resulted in the death of one woman. Four others are still seriously ill from its effects. Littrell is charged with murder and attempted homicide.

Littrell refuses to make any statement other than that he is innocent. He was cross-questioned for more than an hour. But his answers in no way implicated him. The chief of detectives said he had information that the prisoner was on unfriendly terms with his wife and he had tried to obtain a divorce. Detectives working on the case intimate that there is another woman concerned in a plot to bring about the death of Mrs. Littrell.

25 SEIZED AS GAMBLERS.

Two Are Held as Principals and Others Are Paroled.

Magistrate Mancuso in Morrisania Court yesterday held Henry Bohlman of 587 East 150th Street and Harry Clark of 540 West 112th Street, in $500 bonds for examination tomorrow on a charge of keeping a gambling house. According to the police, a dice game was in progress in Bohlman's apartment early yesterday when it was raided by detectives of Inspector Edward J. Walsh's staff, led by Detectives Conklin and Wood.

Besides Bohlman and Clark, twenty-three others were arrested. They were paroled for examination tomorrow.

3,000 FT. DROP INTO PINES.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTICELLO, N. Y., July 25.—Lieutenant "Billy" Coates, formerly Chief Flying Instructor at Roosevelt Field, found his engine going bad today due to imperfect gas when about 3,000 feet above this village in a Canadian Curtiss machine.

Coates had a passenger, Levy Acilles of Monticello, in the observer's seat. He somersaulted, did a tail spin and landed safely in a clump of small pines near the village.

The wings of the plane were damaged, but neither man was injured.

ASK ANTI-LITTER SIGNS.

Merchants' Association Suggests Stenciled Warnings for Parks.

The Director of the Anti-Litter Bureau of the Merchants' Association has sent a letter to Mayor Hylan suggesting that stenciled signs be erected in the parks as a warning against dropping paper and rubbish on the lawns and walks. The letter says: "I sincerely believe if such notices were properly placed the public would co-operate with the Park Commissioners and less littering of the parks would be the result, which in turn would be a great saving of money for the city."

Long Time Bonds

The amount and variety of long time bonds available at present low prices is limited, owing to the fact that most of the new issues are of short or medium duration. Corporations are unwilling to pay present burdensome rates of interest on new issues, except for a relatively short period.

Those desiring long term investments must depend largely upon old seasoned issues, and many experienced investors are now buying this class of security.

We can supply a limited amount of long time bonds at prices yielding around 7%, and we recommend the purchase of such bonds at the present time. We shall be glad to send details and circulars to those interested.

FINANCIAL SITUATION

Possible Overemphasis of Business Decline Is Seen—Railroads Work for Economy.

At this season of the year it is sometimes too easy to overemphasize unfavorable aspects of business. Production records are not hung up in the industries amid Summer heat. Difficulties in the handling of materials which would be overcome without strain in the Autumn and Spring become exasperating in hot weather; distribution is likely to slow down. In some lines, especially of goods used in the Winter and Spring, mid-Summer finds relatively few orders to work up. It is a stock-taking period. Vacations tend to reduce working forces. These factors are to be given place in calculations of current business activities. It might be worth while, also, to consider the possibility of the hurried replacement later of orders now being canceled in textile and other markets, for, irrespective of the reluctance of the public to buy at high prices, the fact cannot be thrown aside that a vast amount of goods will be needed a few months hence. If manufacturing companies did not realize this, it goes without saying that a lot of new financing now being arranged would be abandoned forthwith. The rubber industry of late has been the subject of depressing talk, in the midst of which the United States Rubber Company borrows $20,000,000 to complete new plants which are being erected to handle more business than at present. The Republic Iron and Steel Company, during three months of constant transportation difficulties, reports profits covering the full year's common stock dividend. There is plenty of evidence that general business is by no means as brisk as it was in April, yet seasonal factors should have ample room to show themselves in sentiment. This Summer a tight money situation is acting to intensify trade handicaps and is evidently working to give unusual prominence to problems which normally would be solved without a growth of pessimism.

Chairman Gary of the Steel Corporation sails for a European vacation voicing belief that the business outlook is the best in six years. Examining into plant production figures, he finds that the steel worker is increasing in efficiency. Judge Gary does not stand as a prophet, but he has a habit of telling what he sees and believes. And it is evident, both from his recent interview and from opinions privately expressed, that he expects prosperous times to go hand in hand with prices lower than those current.

The Pennsylvania Railroad's decision to effect economies through the removal of 12,000 workers from the payroll of the Eastern lines is reflective of a movement on other roads. From what has been learned, there has been no drastic reduction of working forces elsewhere, at least not with publicity. But the companies have been, and still are, acting to reduce the burden which the needs of wartime brought to the carriers, and in many cases the employes themselves have sensed the drift in time to change voluntarily into other work. It would be interesting to know what part is played in railroad retrenchment by thoughts of pending rate increases. It is in the province of the Interstate Commerce Commission to determine whether the $600,000,000 railroad wage increase voted by the Labor Board last week shall be passed along to the public through a definite portion of rate advances. That is, the commission has full power to determine whether the estimated 12 per cent., or whatever it may be, necessary to provide for the higher wage account, shall be levied upon shippers in full or whether part of the new expense shall be offset by more effective railroad management. Railroad managers have studied the transportation law and they know that the Commerce Commission has wider powers than before the act was made into a statute to supervise operating methods and expenditures. They evidently feel that steps toward greater efficiency will be noted carefully by the commission in its final rate ruling.

The first test applied to the transportation law has evidently been successful; otherwise there would not have been acceptance of the wage increase by all but one of the railway labor unions. It is estimated that the average yearly wage of railroad workers under the higher schedule will be about $1,900. The average income of employes in the Steel Corporation, an admittedly well paid organization, will this year be slightly in excess of $2,000. This comparison admits of two deductions. First, the Steel Corporation has handled its several wage increases since 1916 with an eye to the rising cost of living, acting so that its men shall have a margin above average living costs, which indicates that the average pay of rail workers will be, irrespective of any increases later, close to the same basis as the pay of men in an industry which has been decidedly prosperous. The second is that the railroads will be put in position to compete actively with industry for men. A basis of railroad union contention for increased pay has been the statement, supported by records, that industrial wages have been substantially higher than railway workers received. The wage expansion lends attraction to men who have been employed in industrial undertakings.

The foreign trade record for the fiscal year ended June 30 shows clearly enough that imports grew to a tremendous total, but the figures failed to show that the process contained factors working for improvement of the foreign exchanges. The reason was that, while imports expanded rapidly, exports also grew to a new high record of $8,111,176,000. The export balance of $2,872,000,000 was 30 per cent. less than in 1919, but was nevertheless more than four times as great as in any year prior to 1915. The result in June may prove to be the first stage in a reversal of trade which before long will have direct reflection in the exchanges. Still, there were several months during the fiscal year just ended when a slump of outgoing merchandise and an expansion of imports hinted at a change which was contradicted in the ensuing months' figures. The June excess of exports, amounting to $78,000,000, was impressive as the smallest for any month since 1914. The foreign exchanges of late have failed to fulfill the expectations of June. From the recent high point of 3.94½ demand sterling declined last week to 3.76½, and Continental quotations, in the main, followed a similar movement. While the tense situation in Poland, threatening for a time allied intervention in behalf of the embattled nation, caused much selling of the exchanges, it is believed that trade operations, entailed in increased purchases of goods here, accounted for most of the decline.

Interior banks are evidently drawing down their New York balances to finance the crops. Saturday's statement of the Clearing House institutions indicated this through a decline of $58,000,000 in demand deposits at the same time that loans expanded by no more than $415,000. Evidently the banks met the demand through their balances at the Federal Reserve Bank instead of calling Wall Street loans on a substantial scale, but a 9 per cent. call money rate near the end of the loaning period on Friday denoted a stringency of funds. The outlook for stock market money is hardly improved by the movement of funds to agricultural centres.

U. S. Oil Consumption

The United States is using twice as much petroleum as all other countries of the world combined. Furthermore, it is using more than it produces, the deficiency being met by drawing on storage and by importation of oil from Mexico. Reports from Washington reveal that foreign countries are using about 200,000,000 barrels of oil per annum, as compared with 400,000,000 barrels consumed annually in the United States. Experts who have studied the situation have no solution to offer in the way of supplying future demands of the American people, other than strongly advocating that our oil operators become represented in all parts of the world not closed by foreign restrictions.

KIES TO FIX CREDIT FOR FOREIGN TRADE

Sails to Arrange European Bank Guarantees to Safeguard U. S. Exporters.

W. S. Kies, Chairman of the Board of the First Federal Foreign Banking Association, told newspapermen before sailing for Europe on Saturday that he would cover the western part of the Continent and make arrangements in such countries as Great Britain, Holland, Scandinavia, Belgium, France, Italy and Spain for a co-operative basis of credit extension. He said that through such arrangements American manufacturers who now hesitate to send their goods abroad on a purely credit basis may do so when certain good sound banks give unconditional and irrevocable guarantees of the payment of bills at their maturities.

In Europe such practice is known as "delcredere," and it is not exactly the same thing as acceptance credit. European banks are familiar with it. They are in the habit of according such guarantees to business concerns of established credit. On the basis of such guarantee, according to Mr. Kies, it would be safe for American exporting companies to extend credits, and it is planned that the First Federal Foreign Banking Association will enter into such arrangements, using the guarantee and the endorsement of the exporter, and will finance these credits even if they run to much longer periods than the ordinary ones.

In connection with the extension of credits to the new States which have not yet established themselves on a permanent basis, Mr. Kies said that it is obvious that neighboring States which are on a sound basis have some method of extending credit. He intends to discover what this method is and see if it can be applied to trade relations between his associates and the new States.

In this work Mr. Kies, who is accompanied by technical assistants, will visit Germany, where the actual credit conditions will be studied. He does not believe that much can be accomplished there beyond securing data which at some later time may prove valuable in forming a basis for credit extension to the industry of that country.

PSYCHOLOGY BIG AID TO POST-WAR EUROPE

Countries There Have Recovered Remarkably, Says Guaranty Trust Official.

EXPORTS ARE INCREASING

Rebuilding of Factories and Railways Helps to Reduce Adverse Trade Balance.

Europe's chief asset during the present period of reconstruction, following the most devitalizing war the world has ever known, is the psychological attitude of her people, according to Albert Breton, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company writing on "Europe's Economic and Industrial Recovery" in the July issue of the Trust Companies Magazine. Mr. Breton, who has recently returned from an extensive tour abroad, says that the people of Europe have tackled their colossal job with a determined spirit, and he quotes statistics which show that most of the countries have already effected a remarkable recovery.

"Pessimism," says Mr. Breton, "is a form of ultra-conservatism, which sometimes serves a useful purpose, perhaps, by counteracting overconfidence. But we recall that some statisticians who after the armistice had seemingly proved that Europe was doomed to utter economic ruin had also confidently predicted in the early days of the war that the struggle could not possibly continue very long because modern economic conditions would not permit."

Referring to foreign trade figures as the true barometer of European recovery, Mr. Breton touches upon Great Britain, whose trade during May shows that considerable progress is being made in reducing the adverse balances.

England and France Gain.

"With exports at a new high record," he says, "and imports showing a slight contraction from April's total, the adverse balance for the month was only, at par of exchange, $173,765,975 against $290,494,369 in May and $198,806,652 in April of this year. For the five months ended with May the adverse balance was $1,099,915,370, compared with $1,362,891,024 in 1919. Prices, of course, are higher and account for a large part of the increase in values. But, notwithstanding, the improvement is material and significant. Furthermore, these figures do not take into account the offset of the so-called invisible items, such as freight, insurance and banking charges and income from foreign investments.

"And every one is familiar with the fact that for some time past Great Britain has been shipping gold here in anticipation of paying the $500,000,000 Anglo-French loan, which matures next October. That alone is supremely significant evidence of the present psychology of the British and French peoples—of their determination to meet their financial obligations in full, and promptly. It bespeaks volumes for the amazing progress that England and France have made in the last year and a half, for otherwise they could not prepare to discharge so large an obligation.

"France's exports of manufactured products, without exception, show a considerable increase over the preceding year, the quantities being considerably more than in 1914. The silk products form the most important element of exportation. Compared with the first three months of 1919, France's total exports have tripled in value and quintupled in quantity during the corresponding period of the current year.

"France's deficit in the balance of trade during the first three months of 1920, according to Custom House statistics, is 4,383,000,000 francs, which shows a material betterment compared with the same period of 1919, when the deficit was 5,162,000,000 francs."

In some remarkable official figures Mr. Breton shows the extent of the recovery effected by France. He shows that of more than 630,000 houses wholly and partly destroyed some 200,000 have been made available for tenancy, and that 3,424 bridges and viaducts have been rebuilt of 4,785 destroyed. Of the railways destroyed, which totalled 3,460 miles, 2,528 miles have been reconstructed, while arable lands which were rendered useless were 7,200,000 acres, of which 6,525,000 acres have been cleared of shells and 3,825,000 have been releveled and 2,587,250 acres have been plowed over or dug. Of 11,000 factories and manufacturing plants which were destroyed, more than 7,200 are being worked or under construction.

Mr. Breton reviewed the surprising strides which have been made in Belgium, and touching upon the situation in Italy said:

Italy's Feats Surprising.

"Despite innumerable obstacles, Italy is accomplishing surprising feats in economic recovery. This is most pronounced in the Piave region, which was a battleground for practically a year, and in which 350 towns and 5,000 square miles of territory were entirely or partly destroyed. According to the Minister of State for the Liberated Provinces, a house has been built to replace every one destroyed in the rural districts, and many of the towns have been rebuilt, as well as the railroads and public utilities restored. In fact, the Minister declared recently that so far as the reconstruction of the devastated regions is concerned 'Italy is at the head of all nations damaged by the war.'

"Italy's foreign trade is steadily increasing, nothwithstanding the serious handicap of a lack of fuel and raw material. During the first four months of the calendar year there was an improvement of 2,215,000,000 lire, or, at par of exchange, $427,109,000, as compared with the corresponding period of the preceding year. Imports decreased by $217,704,000, as compared with the first four months of 1919, and exports increased by $209,405,000."

Dealing with French taxation, Mr. Breton says:

"According to official tables, the effect of the new French tax laws is to increase more rapidly the income tax on larger incomes. The person whose income is 50,000 francs pays in 1920 a smaller income tax than in 1919. The person whose income is 260,000 francs, on the other hand, pays 50 per cent. more income tax, while the Frenchman who has an income of 600,000 francs will pay 250 per cent. more next year than this.

"The French budget for 1920 originally put estimated expenditures at 47,000,000,000 francs, and estimated revenue at 42,000,000,000 francs. New taxes, however, are expected to produce enough revenue to balance the budget, and in addition, since the foregoing estimates were made, reductions have been effected in the estimated expenditures to a total of more than 8,000,000,000 francs. These reductions are almost entirely in connection with proposed expenditures during the current year in respect of obligations for which France must be recouped later by Germany."

Service Is Already Begun Between Antwerp and Galveston.

The agents of the Lloyd Royal Belge in this city announced yesterday that a cable message had been received from the head office in Antwerp informing them that a direct service had been established between that port and Galveston. Two steamships have already sailed, the Olympier, a freighter with limited passenger accommodation, and the Danier, which carires cargo only.

The company already has services from Antwerp to New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and New Orleans.

ARMISTICE HELPS COTTON MARKET

Final Crop of About 12,800,000 Bales Indicated—Future Figures Discounted.

There was very little to Saturday's cotton market. At the start prices were unchanged to 10 points down from the previous closing, and there was some little selling after the call, mainly belated orders which had not come in in time for execution on Friday. But this selling did not force much of a recession in prices and there was no new selling by local and trade operators who had been active in the drives of Thursday afternoon and Friday.

In the second hour, when news of the armistice granted the Poles by the Russian Soviets was received, the market turned rather strong and not only recovered all of the early losses but rose to levels which were 17 to 22 points net advanced on the day. Before the close, however, this gain also had been lost and final prices were changed only nominally. October was up 6 points, but the others were unchanged to 4 points down.

The trade was again talking of the forthcoming Government report. Mostly, the talk was bearish. The National Ginners' report made the condition 76.5 per cent. and the indicated crop about 13,000,000 bales. Saturday the J. W. Jay & Co. report was published, making the condition 75.3 per cent., and giving an indication of a final crop of about 12,800,000 bales. This news, while bearish, appeared to have been pretty well discounted.

Rochester Manufacturer, 90 Years Old, Celebrates by Distribution to His Employes.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 25.—The ninetieth birthday of John Jacob Bausch, a pioneer in the industrial activity of Rochester is being celebrated. Mr. Bausch, founder of the Bausch and Lomb Optical Company, became a nonogenarian today.

The feature of the celebration took place Friday when a fund of $250,000 was distributed among the several thousand employes of the optical plant. Length of service was the basis of the individual gifts, each employe receiving $1 for each month he or she had been in the service of the concern. Mr. Bausch announced also that he had made an additional gift of $50,000 to be added to the benefit fund of the employes.

Mr. Bausch acted as host to a delegation of his employes at his home this morning. At that time a bouquet of ninety American beauty roses were presented to him on behalf of th employes, and the Early Settlers Club, which includes in its membership 191 persons who have been associated with him for from twenty-five to more than fifty years, presented him with an album containing the portrait of each of the "early settlers."

"Failures have frequently fallen to my lot," said Mr. Bausch today, "but I have never given up hope and have been astonished frequently at the success which has crowned my efforts in the end. Perseverance, industry, honesty and a striving for knowledge have been my objectives."

SILK STRIKE CALLED OFF.

Paterson Local Abandons Idea at National Body's Order.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., July 25.—The strike of 2,500 silk workers which was called for Tuesday morning by the United Textile Workers and the Amalgamated Silk Workers' unions was definitely called off today by the leaders in both organizations. Decision to abandon the idea of calling a general strike against a reduction in wages came when John Golden, President of the International Union, wired that the National Emergency Committee of the union had refused to sanction such action.

Louis Magnat, local head of the United Textile Workers, and Evan Thomas, business agent of the Amalgamated Union, both announced that plans for the strike had been given up. Mr. Magnat said, however, that his organization would sanction small local strikes in shops where the wages of weavers had been cut. He said that four such strikes, affecting about 300 men, are in progress now. Mr. Thomas said that his organization would be unable to conduct a strike without the support of the other union.

JOIN PHONE WORKERS' UNION

New England Men Quit Electrical Workers to Enter New Brotherhood

BOSTON, July 25.—A unanimous vote by 20 of the 25 unions of mechanics employed by the New England and Providence telephone companies to surrender their charters in the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, was announced after referendum ballots had been tabulated at a meeting here today.

It was voted also to apply for charters in the recently formed International Brotherhood of Telephone Workers.

John A. Dolan, President of the new brotherhood, announced that the union of the inside telephone men of Boston had taken similar action by a vote of 198 to 120. T. F. Murphy, representing the Boston linemen, said that more than 100 of the 200 members of their local had announced their intention of leaving the old brotherhood and would meet this week to apply for a charter in the new organization.

Ship Bound Here Hits Rock.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 25.—The British steamship Willdomino, from Palermo for New York, via Halifax, struck an uncharted rock off Canso, N. S., on Saturday and tore a big hole in her bow. Her forepeak is full of water. The Canadian Government steamship Lady Larier has been dispatched to her aid. The freighter is anchored five miles off White Island and is sixty-five miles from Halifax. The Willdomino was formerly the War Convoy, and was built at Vancouver, B. C., in 1919. She registers 5,755 gross tons.

debt amounted to $24,264,309,321.54, showing a further reduction of about $35,000,000, after taking into account the $201,061,500 certificates issued under date of July 15.

"The floating debt (loan and tax certificates unmatured) on June 30, 1920, amounted to $2,486,552,500, as against $3,267,878,500 at the close of the previous fiscal year on June 30, 1919, and $3,938,225,000 on Aug. 31, 1919. On July 20, 1920, the loan and tax certificates outstanding amounted to $2,433,946,500, showing a further reduction of about $31,000,000 as the result of the redemption of loan certificates since the close of the fiscal year 1920 in the amount of some $232,000,000, and the issue of loan and tax certificates dated July 15 in the amount of some $201,000,000.

"Further issues of Treasury certificates will be offered as necessary from time to time to provide for the current requirements of the Government, and to meet maturities of Treasury certificates now outstanding. The amounts of these issues will depend in large measure on the extent of the burdens imposed on the Treasury by the transportation act of 1920 in connection with the return of the railroads to private control, including particularly the liability on the guaranty, which is as yet unascertained. While, as the result of new issues of Treasury certificates in the intervals between the large income and profits tax installments, there may be temporary increases in the gross debt and floating debt, the Treasury expects, though it is impossible to speak positively, that both gross debt and floating debt will during the first two quarters of the current fiscal year be reduced below the figures outstanding on June 30, 1920, and that unless additional burdens should be imposed by legislation there will be an important further reduction in the last two quarters of the fiscal year."

NIXON WOULD SPEED HIGHER FARE PLEAS

Public Service Commissioner Issues Suggestions Designed to Hasten Decision.

REITERATES FLEXIBLE PLAN

Recommends Appraisal Committee to Fix Investment Entitled to Return.

To expedite proceedings on applications of surface railroads for higher fares Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon has prepared a program for applicants.

Mr. Nixon suggests that the companies act in concert, that application be made to the Court of Appeals for a commission to appraise the values of plants with a representative of the city on the commission, and explains that any attempt to render decisions piecemeal would greatly delay the disposal of applications. He reiterates his belief in flexible fares and criticises the city administration for "lack of any cooperation or assistance" in solving the financial problems of the companies.

These are Mr. Nixon's suggestions for facilitating prompt action on applications for fare increases:

Each of the present railroad systems to be simplified by the consolidation or merger of its constituent companies into one railroad corporation, and, if possible, a unified control of all systems brought about.

All holding companies (not railroad companies) should be abolished.

Perpetual franchises to be surrendered and be replaced by terminable or indeterminate franchises.

All leases and underlying contracts to be terminated.

The city to have the option of acquiring the properties at an agreed valuation. If the city so elect, the purchase price may be amortized out of earnings.

A flexible fare to be provided, automatically adjusted to meet the cost of service. The cost of service should be so fixed as to cover reasonable return on values, the rates paid on such investment to be those warranted by fixed rather than speculative return.

A standard of service of car mile per revenue passenger to be fixed arbitrarily for six months, between certain limits. During such time careful investigation shall fix such limits definitely.

Recommendations covering the purchase of new equipment and the putting into effect of service to secure greater efficiency shall be submitted.

The investment which is entitled to return shall be determined by a committee of three to be named by the Court of Appeals, if it can so act, of which one member, however, shall be nominated to the court by the city.

Mr. Nixon says that the cost of service should yield a fair and adequate return on the capital invested, but that "this does not mean the cost of reproduction nor the carrying of obsolete, worn-out or dead equipment of facilities;" that outstanding bonds and other capital issues must be weighed with full history of their issuance, the prices received for them and what disposition was made of the proceeds.

"I am satisfied," he says, "that by providing certain surplus funds this seemingly intricate solution can be arrived at within six months. With the appointment of a sincere public spirited appraisal committee, earnestly determined to arrive at a fair appraisal, a tentative plan o foperation could be effected within ten weeks.

"Some lines will be more profitable than others. It would not do to fix the rate by that of the most expensively operated system, but adjustment funds in the earlier periods of operation could within a year fix very definitely the universal rate."

Mr. Nixon says that reports of the condition of the companies should be made frequently and so clearly that all could understand them, and that the investment account, once determined and approved, should not be increased without the approval of the commission. He suggests the establishment of a renewal and replacement reserve and a reserve to meet charges for injuries and damage. He also says that a complete disintegration of the present system and a re-establishment of it would probably be followed by a greater fare than would come with the adoption of his flexible fare idea. Concluding his statement, Mr. Nixon says:

"This commission does not wish to see fares increased and it is using every effort to bring about a cost of service fare which will be but little over the present average and will in a short time lead to a decided reduction.

"Chasing the bus rainbow has diverted some minds from the real issue, which is that the day of reckoning is coming when the people seeing service depreciated will demand to know why they were betrayed."

SCRIP DIVIDEND EXPLAINED.

President Dixon Says Tobacco Products Corp. Is Conserving Cash.

James M. Dixon, President of the Tobacco Products Corporation, in commenting on the resumption of the company's quarterly dividend on the common stock payable in two-year scrip on Aug. 16 to stockholders of record Aug. 2, said in part:

"Although the company's finances are on a very satisfactory basis the board deems it advisable, in view of uncertainty of the money market at the present time, to declare this dividend on the common stock in scrip bearing interest at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum. The cash resource of the company will thereby be conserved for the purpose of purchasing raw materials to carry for the rapidly increasing business of the company. The tobacco markets are now opening."

LIMESTONE FAMINE JUMPS CEMENT PRICE

LUMBER PRICE CUTS STOP

Spruce Expected to Sell at $60 to $80 Base Before September —Pine Firmer.

Railroad car restriction orders circumscribing limestone as well as coal deliveries at cement manufacturing plants added another 30 cents a barrel to construction costs last week.

Plants in the Lehigh and Hudson cement manufacturing districts are closing down because they can get neither limestone nor coal and yet the current stock on hand is 25 per cent less than that of a year ago with demand probably eight times what it was then.

Production in Zones 1 and 2 supplying this market is 35 per cent. greater than at this time last year, with shipments to New York and New England at least 75 per cent. greater than at this time last year so far as the first six months of this year are concerned. Shipments into New York and New England for the first fifteen days of July were 25 per cent. greater than they were last July at this time despite the car shortage, which gives a fair idea of the part that the motor truck has been playing in keeping building under way this year.

The demand for cement even at the advancing prices has been so insistent that the non-delivery of coal under contract, the cost of the coal consumed at the premium prices manufacturers now have to pay for fuel for the manufacture of a single barrel of cement, is more than the cost of a whole barrel of cement, burned, packed and delivered, only a little more than a year ago. Cement in stock in all the manufacturing plants in the country today is 25 per cent. below the total quantity available for sale at this time last year.

There are many persons contemplating building construction who have been holding back in anticipation of lower prices of lumber, cement, brick, lime and plaster this Autumn and next Winter and Spring. The foregoing cement statistics, which are official, show the futility of such policies.

Lumber, which has been the weak spot in the building material market owing to a temporary financial embarrassment of heavy holders, last week passed out of the depression and the upward price trend is again under way. Eastern spruce will be retailing at $60 to $80 before Sept. 1.

The demand is abnormally heavy—there is no surplus and the cutting at the mills is far below what it should be. The supply of maple flooring is improving.

It is a good time to buy this material now as prices are going up soon, as practically the entire available supply is now on the way into this market for this year's needs.

North Carolina pine is in fairly good supply on 4-6-8 and 10s with higher prices scheduled in the near future. South Carolina box is already up. Any way of citing the turn in this market random orders are no longer accepted in general trade. All widths are now specified with a carload to a width.

There is still great difficulty in getting lime in sufficient quantities to meet the market's needs, but outside of this instance, there are unmistakable signs that an improvement in the building material supply situation may be conservatively looked for from now on, says the Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

PUGSLEY FOR TAX REFORM.

Democratic Senatorial Aspirant Favors a Revenue Board.

A permanent revenue commission of tax experts, appointed by Congress, to draft a comprehensive revision of the tax laws and to indicate from time to time the most equitable sources of governmental revenue, is one of the planks in the platform of Chester D. Pugsley, candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator in the September primaries. Others of his planks are:

Retrenchment and curtailment of governmental expenditures so that a considerable part of the Federal revenue may be applied to the war debt; a committee of Congress to study the whole question of governmental and departmental organization, and a budget system.

SEES GAS PLANT CRISIS.

Association Head Declares Rates Low and Raw Materials Scarce.

George B. Cortelyou, President of the American Gas Association, in a statement issued yesterday, said:

"The emergency is immediate and far-reaching. It embraces the entire gas industry. Economic conditions—many of them world wide extent and influence—affecting the supply of coal, oil and other essential materials required in the manufacture of gas, of labor and of the funds needed to maintain and develop our properties, are not bogies invented by the industry to secure preferential treatment, excessive rates or unwarranted returns upon the investment.

"What the gas companies need and should have, in the interest of the public, is the reasonable certainty of adequate rates and sufficient supply of oil, coal and other necessary supplies, and such manufacturing and operating conditions as will utilize and conserve these materials, as well as contribute to all other economies of production and distribution."

ADVERTISING SERVICE MAN.

Here is a well-developed organization—with a splendid name and reputation and determined to earn a far greater one.

Service means success to us—and to the man who knows printing and how to buy it economically, who can write punchy letters and advertising copy, as well as understand the production phase of advertising, will be offered a square-deal proposition where there will be no barrier to his progress.

The man we want will be between 25 and 35 years of age, with a mature mind and capable of rendering important decisions; at the same time he must be young enough to have energy, enthusiasm and ideas as well as ideals.

If you frankly feel that you are the man for this job, there is a niche in our organization in which you can develop to the maximum of your ability.

Write us fully about yourself. Give experience, age and present earnings.

DEVIL'S CHORUS SUNG BY GIRL RIOTERS

OUTBREAK PURELY VOCAL

Disturbances Vindicate Miss Cobb, Resigned, Says Ex-Manager Barrett.

Special to The New York Times.

BEDFORD, N. Y., July 25.—The seventy inmates of the Bedford State Reformatory for Women who joined in a race riot yesterday looked out through the bars of their cells today, saw six determined looking State troopers, one of them with a bandaged bitten hand, walking up and down the lawns, and decided that the violence of today's program might just as well be purely vocal. So they began to chant and then to yell and then to scream a bedlam chorus that sounded like—well, like Dante's Inferno set to jazz.

Ordinarily on a calm Summer's night, like this appears to be, the sound of religious songs would come from the reformatory grounds to the listening Bedford villagers. New York business men endeavoring to rest on their porches, after a week's tireless attendance at the Polo Grounds, would lean back in their wicker chairs, close their eyes and be lulled by the voices of the 300 or so women committed to the institution from the New York streets.

But tonight was there any singing of religious songs? Not a sing. Yet no Sabbatical stillness brooded over the Reformatory. No such thing. Gales of catcalls, hurricanes of screams, cyclones of rage, tornadoes of squeals were poured forth by the caged seventy to blend into one hair-raising, ear-testing Devil's chorus. Balked in their efforts to deposit hot flatirons on each other's heads, and to sink butcher knives into the backs of policemen, the girls were singing their swan song.

Commenting on the riots yesterday, in which 150 negro and white girls participated, William Barrett, who resigned last Winter after ten years as a member of the Board of Managers, said at his home in Port Chester, "Things have turned out just as I expected."

"This vindicates Miss Helen A. Cobb, who resigned following the investigation into charges of cruelty," Mr. Barrett went on, "and sustains my position in resigning. In my ten years on the board neither Miss Cobb nor any other Superintendent ever had to send for the police. If Miss Cobb can be induced to return the Board of Managers ought to restore her to the Superintendency out of fairness."

It was reported that, when the present head of the reformatory, Miss Florence Jones, resigns on Aug. 1, Miss Cobb would be asked to return. Her assistant, Miss Julia Minogue, telegraphed today that she would "return, if requested." The inquiry into conditions at the reformatory was conducted by Commissioner John S. Kennedy, who is now stationed at Sing Sing Prison.

"I still maintain," said Mr. Kennedy, "that the right person can run the Bedford institution. They need to classify and segregate different classes of prisoners. There should be kindly firmness shown. Nobody believes you can run any institution without discipline."

HEAR RUSSIAN ARCHBISHOP.

The Most Rev. Alexander Conducts His First Service in English.

The Most Rev. Alexander, the Holy Russian Orthodox Church Archbishop of North America and the Aleutian Islands, made his first visitation yesterday morning to the American Orthodox Church of the Transfiguration, 233 East Seventeenth Street, where the service was conducted in the English language.

It was the first time Archbishop Alexander had used English in a public service. He did this because the Church of the Transfiguration is the American Mission of the Holy Russian Orthodox Cathedral of St. Nicholas in Ninety-seventh Street, just east of Fifth Avenue. The first worship of the downtown mission was held a week ago today.

The Archbishop was assisted by three Russian priests and four American priests. Abbot Patrick, rector of the mission, preached the sermon. He declared the new church was "no new sect, but just the ancient Greek Church service, the Mother Church of Christendom."

The Archbishop and the clergy were in full vestments. A group of students from the Russian Theological Seminary at Tenafly, N. J., assisted at the mass.

OIL OVERBOARD, SHIP FLOATS

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 25.—After pumping into the sea a thousand gallons of crude oil, the United States Shipping Board steamship Cabrille, which has been aground since Friday on Brigantine Shoals, four miles from here, worked herself off the bar, with the assistance of a tug and revenue cutter from New York, at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The freighter, apparently undamaged, proceeded on her way to Bayonne, N. J.

Captain T. J. Wathey of the Cabrille only consented to lighten his vessel by pumping out the oil after the revenue cutter and tug, which arrived this morning, worked for three hours at high tide without success.

ROADHOUSE RAIDERS GET 20

Subpoenas Served on Valley Stream Proprietor and Guests.

VALLEY STREAM, L. I., July 25.—Twenty men were rounded up in a raid early today on a roadhouse here conducted by Lester Blake. County Detective Plant, with his deputies, Leonard Thorne and Thomas Barbuti, and five members of the State Constabulary, who made the raid, say the men were at a table on which a dice game was in progress. Blake and the men under arrest were subpoenaed to appear in the District Attorney's office at Mineola, Tuesday morning.

The road house is a mile away from Hewlett's, where a raid was made last week.

Crowds Witness Aerial Fireworks as Firemen Put Out Flames.

A short circuit put the "Lucky Strike" sign over the Brill Bros. Building at Forty-ninth Street and Broadway out of business at 8 o'clock last night and furnished people in Times Square with a spectacle.

There were a number of flashes and the electric globes on the big sign winked out and then flames appeared in the power box at the rear of the top of the sign. Firemen of Engine Company No. 54, under Lieutenant Rudolph Eisele, ran up an extension ladder from the roof of the building and put out the blaze before it reached the wooden structure on which the power box rested.
